WEARY OF LOSSES, ART DEALER TO GIVE TREASURES AWAY

G. J. Demotte, Closing His Establishment Here, Offers His Sculptures.

TOTAL GIFTS $500,000

LIST OF HIS DONATIONS

Several Institutions Will Benefit by Distribution of His Collections.

G. J. Demotte, an art expert and dealer of Paris and an authority on Gothic art, is preparing to close his New York establishment at 8 East Fifty-seventh Street, and for two years has been giving away many valuable sculptures, bits of pottery and other objects to American museums. He has invited Directors of museums to select a limited number of things from his collection here, and it is expected that his total gifts to American museums will be more than $500,000.

Mr. Demotte became discouraged because of losses in connection with his American venture a year and a half ago, and he caused the arrest of his New York manager.

"Everything Demotte touched here turned out badly," said a friend last night. "He accepted notes in payment for many art objects, which he said had often been his custom in Paris. But in Paris the notes were paid and they were not paid here. He has learned many times recently of money that should have come to him, but which was diverted. But he retains only the liveliest liking for America and the appreciation of art which he found here, and so he determined to give away much of his collection in this country before returning to Paris."

Will Write on Art.

So thoroughly disgusted has Mr. Demotte become with dealing in art—for in addition to his other troubles, business in rare tapestries and sculptures has not been brisk recently—that he intends in the future to devote himself largely to writing on the subjects on which he is an authority. More art objects of the periods in which he is most interested have been available since the war than ever before, and in Paris he will be in constant touch with them. What business he continues will be conducted from Paris, although he will hold two exhibitions a year in this city.

When he established his business here he leased from Henry E. Huntington the house at 8 East Fifty-seventh Street, and converted it into a museum. He had many well known clients, among them many of the larger musuems. About the time that he caused the arrest of his New York representative the place was closed, and a watchman was the only occupant of the building which housed a small fortune in rare art objects.

"I have encountered the best friends and found the greatest sympathy among the Directors and other officials of the leading American museums and in other circles of American life during the two years I have been here," said Mr. Demotte yesterday. "I feel that Gothic art, especially of France, is worthy of a more important representation in the museums of the United States, and it gives me pleasure to be able to enlarge the public collections in this country—although what has been done by the museums during the recent years is wonderful when it is realized that everything had to be created."

Some of His Gifts.

Among the gifts he has made up to the present are:

Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York—A life-size statue of the Virgin, fifteenth century, from Bar-le-Duc, Meuse Department, in the eastern part of France; collection of ten Sassanian potteries, with groups of personages in high relief, the most important potteries representing this period of Persian history of the fifth and seventh centuries, A. D.; also fragments of marble of the late sixteenth century, from the Burgundian bas-relief.

Fogg Art Museum, Harvard—A life-size statue of the Virgin, of the school of Troyes, the capital of the Champagne district, made in the early sixteenth century during the transition between the Gothic and Renaissance periods; also two models sculptured in limestone, Egyptian, eighteenth dynasty, one in the rough, the other finished.

Minneapolis Institute of Arts—A Romanesque statue from Southern France, eleventh century, of a clerical figure holding his beard in one hand and a tau in the other; a twelfth century Romanesque capital from Angers, representing Daniel in the lions' den; a tombstone of the thirteenth century, from the Abbé of Bobigny and his wife, founders of the abbey.

Cleveland Museum of Art—A life-size group, school of the Loire, about 1500, representing Sainte Anne educating the Virgin; a fine Mosan enamel of the twelfth century representing two fantastic, bird-like animals, with scrolls in champlevé enamel.

Detroit Institute of Arts—A twelfth century Romanesque bas-relief marble from the Abbey of Sainte Genis de Fontaines, in the Pyrenees, representing Saint Grisesant; a large and decorative baptismal stone font, Romanesque, of the twelfth century, and a stone Virgin and Child of the School of Troyes, sixteenth century.

The museums of Brooklyn, Washington, San Francisco, Boston, St. Louis, Denver, Kansas City and Chicago have been or will be invited to make selections from Mr. Demotte's collection before he holds an exhibition at the Anderson Galleries on Feb. 8, where he will show some Gothic tapestries and sculpture, before sailing for France.

Orders 1,500,000 Bibles For Sale at 1 Cent Each

The American Bible Society yesterday announced it has placed the largest single Bible order ever given by any organization in the United States, perhaps in the world, to a firm in New York City. It is for 1,500,000 volumes of Scriptural portions, consisting of the Gospels of Matthew, Mark, Luke and John, the Book of Acts, and the Book of Proverbs, in English and Spanish.

"These little books of sixty-four pages each," says the announcement, "will be sold throughout the United States and South America for 1 cent each. Advance orders of 800,000 have been received."

HARDING TO RESTORE OUSTED EMPLOYES

President Now Convinced a Wrong Was Done to Engraving Bureau Workers.

NO LOSS ON BOND ERRORS

Hundreds of Duplicates Were Turned Out Through Mistakes of Workers.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—Informal announcement was made at the White House today that President Harding had taken up personally the question of reinstating the division and section chiefs of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, who were dismissed last March "for the good of the service" under circumstances of much mystery.

In connection with the announcement it was disclosed that while the President thought there might have been some petty dishonesty in the bureau, he was now convinced that there had been no conspiracy to defraud the Government through the duplication of war bonds. The President, it was said, had reached the conclusion, as a result of an investigation, that the duplications were due mainly to mechanical errors and carelessness.

Some of the dismissed employes have already been reinstated in the Government service, but tat salaries lower than they were receiving in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing. Of the 29 employes dismissed, all but one are expected to obtain reinstatement.

A sensation was created when the dismissals were announced on March 31, 1922. Those dismissed were the Director of the Bureau, James L. Wilmeth, and the heads of nearly all the mechanical divisions and sections of the establishment, where the Government prints its paper money, bonds, postage and internal revenue stamps, and liquor permits.

Attacks Made in Congress.

No explanation was given at the time of this action. The most that was made known officially was that a serious condition of affairs had been discovered which the Government could not disclose for important reasons. Charges were made in Congress at the time that the dismissals were due to partisan considerations. It was alleged that the Administration had made the dismissals in order to provide more places for Republicans. Administration officials answered this with the statement that twenty of the twenty-nine persons dismissed were Republicans.

It came out subsequently that the dismissals were the result of the discovery that there had been a wholesale duplication of Government bonds printed by the bureau. The supposition of the Government was that these duplicates were taken from the bureau and sold for private gain. In refusing to give any reason for the dismissals officials were actuated by the fear that if their suspicions became known there would be a panic in the bond market and Government securities would suffer.

The discovery that there had been bond duplications came about through the return of interest coupons for redemption. It was apparent that the duplications were considerable. When the facts were laid before President Harding he ordered an investigation by the Department of Justice. The circumstances were held to indicate a conspiracy in the bureau, and, with the object of conducting the investigation better, a clean sweep of all the chiefs of mechanical divisions and sections was determined upon.

Since the wholesale dismissals were made in March the investigation has

PECORA QUESTIONS ANDERSON 2 HOURS; GETS MINUTE BOOKS

PHILLIPS SUBMITS DATA

INQUIRY WILL GO ON TODAY

Acting District Attorney to Examine League Accounts—League Directors Declare Faith in Anderson.

Accompanied by Orville S. Poland, counsel to the Anti-Saloon League of New York, William H. Anderson went to the office of Acting District Attorney Pecora yesterday afternoon, where for more than two hours he was questioned in connection with "information" that he had carried out an arrangement with O. Bertzell Phillips, one-time chief financial field representative of the organization, whereby he received one-half of Phillips's commissions over $10,000. Mr. Anderson, who followed the Rev. Dr. George Caleb Moor, Secretary of the league, produced the minute books of the organization.

It was definitely announced that Mr. Anderson when he returned again today would bring along the books of accounts of the Anti-Saloon League, and in the absence of a denial on the part of Mr. Pecora it was assumed that he would be requested to furnish the authorities with his personal bank books. In answer to a question as to whether he was prepared to submit information in his possession to the Grand Jury Mr. Pecora replied that the "facts warrant continuing the investigation."

Phillips Replies.

Mr. Anderson's disavowal of the truth of Mr. Phillips's charges brought a sharp rejoinder from the latter. Phillips declared he was prepared to substantiate by witnesses and documents any charges he had made. With reference to a statement made yesterday by Mr. Anderson charging that Phillips had wrongfully obtained $500 from the league, Phillips said he would welcome a complaint in court, adding that "an interesting story" would be brought out in that event.

Dr. Moor, who is also pastor of the Madison Avenue Baptist Church, arrived at the Criminal Courts Building carrying with him a brief case apparently filled with papers. While waiting to be received by Assistant District Attorney Pecora he was asked for a statement.

"I simply brought down records and other papers," he said. "That is all I can say at present. All of the books of the league are open to the District Attorney's office. We have nothing to conceal. Of course, I am not involved in this in any way."

Dr. Moor remained in Mr. Pecora's office about two hours. When he left Mr. Pecora refused to divulge the nature of their talk.

"Dr Moor has willingly responded to my call in a manner highly gratifying," he said.

Mr. Anderson at first declared he had nothing to say, adding that he had issued a statement earlier in the day setting forth his side of the issue. Pressed with questions he made a few replies while he walked quickly toward the street.

Says Funds Were for Publicity.

"You said in your statement that it was obvious why the $24,700 publicity bill, unaccompanied by vouchers, could not be explained. Why do you take that stand?" he was asked. Mr. Anderson at first said he did not remember saying that. Then he replied:

"The funds were for publicity; I will go further and say straightforward promotion. The Board of Directors understood it generally."

"You mean by that they knew unofficially?"

"Yes."

"What enterprise could a legitimate organization go into that could not be spread on the record?" was asked.

"The work was confidential," Mr. Anderson replied.

After he had denied that the money had been used in "getting something on" persons, he was asked if any of

Broadway Taxi Bandits Rob Cigar Store; Force Clerk to Crawl to Safe and Open It

Three taxi robbers got $100 from the United Cigar store at the northeast corner of Broadway and Twenty-eighth Street while hundreds of persons passed the entrances of the store last night.

Mitchel Mannheimer of 210 West 147th Street, the clerk, was sweeping the store and talking to Frank Scott of 170 West Eighty-fifth Street, a customer, when the first robber entered, soon followed by another.

Scott was ordered into the tiny stock room in the rear of the store and the clerk was then forced to get on his hands and knees, and, with the first robber's revolver held against his head, was made to crawl along the floor behind the counter to the cash register, which he was ordered to open. The robber got $30 from the register and then ordered Mannheimer to crawl back to the safe and open it.

The clerk tried to convince the bandit that he could not open the safe, pleading that he was a new man and did not know the combination.

"Either you'll open it or I'll kill you," the robber told him, and, placed the muzzle of the revolver in the clerk's ear. Noting the hold-up man's condition, Mannheimer opened the outer door of the safe and the bandit took $70 from the tray in the outer compartment.

Meanwhile the robber who had stood guard over Scott had robbed his captive of $5 from his pockets. Mannheimer was pushed into the room and warned to stay there for ten minutes after the bandits left. The men then left. Mannheimer rushed out and saw the robbers enter a taxicab which was driven east on Twenty-eighth Street and down Fifth Avenue. A third robber stood guard at the door, but took no active part in the crime.

Soon after the hold-up had been committed, Detectives Michael McNamara, Henry Kilmer, Walter Clancey and William Karlson of the West Thirtieth Street Station took Mannheimer in a high-power car on a tour of east side saloons in a search of the hold-up men. After a score of saloons had been visited, the detectives drew up in front of a saloon at Twenty-ninth and First Avenue, opposite the City Morgue. The doors were locked, but Mannheimer peered into the place and excitedly declared he recognized one of the men inside as the robber who had held a gun to his head. The police then forced an entrance and ordered every one to put up his hands. Mannheimer made a rush at the man he identified. Restrained, he looked all the men over and picked out a second man who he said had accompanied the other into the store. Both were taken to the West Thirtieth Street Station. There they described themselves as John Downey, 33 years old, of 327 East Twenty-third Strete, and Peter McDermott, 21, of 2,443 Eighth Avenue. In Downey's pockets, the police say, $3 in nickels, dimes and quarters was found, together, they allege, with a quantity of United Cigar Store coupons. At the station house they denied all knowledge of the hold-up.

Both prisoners were formally placed under arrest charged with assault and robbery, and they will be arraigned in Jefferson Market Court today.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 26.—Lord Armstrong is closing his historic mansion of Cragside, one of the glories of the Northumbrian border, and will live in a twelve-room house in the grounds formerly occupied by his agent. His decision is a tribute to his heavy taxation and to losses in a business enterprise. Lord Armstrong is grand nephew of Lord Armstrong, who invented the Armstrong gun and founded the great armament firm.

The present lord has been a generous friend to charities. He gave £100,000 to the Royal Infirmary at Newcastle when he inherited a fortune of £1,250,000 from his granduncle.

LAWYER IS ACCUSED OF $100,000 FRAUDS

USED "DEAD" DEPOSIT LIST

Alleged Operations Said to Have Been Going On 9 Years—Empire Trust Co. Complainant.

That banks and trust companies in this city have been steadily and methodically swindled out of sums amounting to $100,000 during a period extending over the last nine years was declared by the police early today, when Lazarus Shenfeld, 31, a lawyer of 1,197 Grand Concourse, the Bronx, was taken to Police Headquarters by Detectives Louis Barrott and Thomas O'Brien of the Safe and Loft Squad and locked up charged with grand larceny.

Lazarus was arrested in the District Attorney's office after an examination which started late yesterday afternoon and lasted until shortly before midnight. During that time Assistant District Attorney Harold W. Hastings submitted Shenfeld to ceaseless questioning that finally brought evidence, according to the police, which caused Mr. Hastings to call in detectives and order Shenfeld's arrest.

The Empire Trust Company, 120 Broadway, was stated by the police as the specific complainant against Shenfeld, but the police allege that eight additional banks and trust companies will be notified of Shenfeld's arrest in connection with similar complaints made by them. Shenfeld is alleged to have obtained $3,500 from the Empire Trust on December 5, 1921.

Shenfeld has been practising law since 1914. He has offices in the Equitable Building, 120 Broadway. Since 1914, according to the police, by means of forced affidavits, birth and death certificates. He has swindled banks and trust companies of large sums known as dormant accounts. These are the accounts which for years have lain unclaimed by the depositors. At intervals as required by law, these accounts are advertised, the name of the vanished depositor and the amount held in his name, being given.

Shenfeld's method, the police allege, was to forge birth certificates, death certificates and affidavits purporting to establish the claim to the account of a beneficiary of the supposedly dead depositor. Claiming to act for the non-existent beneficiary and claimant, the police say, Shenfeld would collect the account, after obtaining an order for it from the Surrogate's office.

One account which Shenfeld is alleged by the police to have obtained in this way had been unclaimed for eighty-three years. The amount was not made public.

The first rift in the scheme appeared last Summer, when Shenfeld made a trip to Europe. He had an account with the Empire Trust Company, and when the check with which he had paid his passage was sent back for payment, the police allege that a similarity between Shenfeld's signature and the writing and signature of the affidavits and certificates used in obtaining a dormant account from the trust company was observed. The company began an investigation through its own channels and then went to the District Attorney's office with the evidence gathered.

Shenfeld was summoned to the District Attorney's Office where Acting District Attorney Ferdinand Pecora and Assistant District Attorney Hastings questioned him. Later Mr. Pecora left and Mr. Hastings continued the examination. At midnight the detectives were called in and arrested Shenfeld.

Friends of Shenfeld communicated with Acting District Attorney Pecora after Shenfeld was arrested and asked what bail the District Attorney would require. Mr. Pecora replied that he would ask $100,000.

REPORT DUTCH SEIZE COAL BOUND TO FRANCE

They Are Said to Be Acting on German Request—Ruhr Shipments Now Rerouted.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 26.—The Echo de Paris says that coal rerouted by the French in the Ruhr has not reached France, because the German railroad workers in the occupied territory on the west bank of the Rhine diverted it when not guarded, and have been sending it back into unoccupied Germany.

This paper also says that many barges of coal seized in the Rhineland by the French and sent down the Rhine to a French destination have been halted by Dutch authorities, acting at the instance of the German Government, and Dutch courts will rule on its ownership. This recalls to the Echo de Paris that the Kaiser is being sheltered by Holland.

This report is backed up by the fact that coal seized yesterday on the Rhine was sent by the French up the river to Strasbourg, instead of down stream to Dutch ports.

LOWDEN PICTURES DECAY OF AMERICA AS EUROPE DECLINES

Estimates Price of Isolation as Half the Cotton, a Third of Our Wheat, a Fifth of Our Corn.

FARMS TO BE PRAIRIES AGAIN

CONDEMNS TROOPS' RECALL

Belgian Commissioner Pleaded for at Least 50 Men as Guard for Stars and Stripes.

Criticism of the foreign policy of the national Administration, with specific condemnation of the withdrawal of American troops from the Rhine, was expressed last night by Frank O. Lowden, former Governor of Illinois and a leading candidate for the Republican nomination for President in 1920, in a speech at the dinner of the Council on Foreign Relations at Sherry's, East Forty-ninth Street and Park Avenue.

Ex-Governor Lowden condemned the policy of isolation, declared the United States had not had isolation during the last generation and asserted that the price this country would have to pay to get it back would be the sacrifice of 30 per cent. of its wheat fields, 20 per cent. of its corn fields, 50 per cent. of its cotton fields, the closing of part of its mines and a general revolution of commerce and industry.

He declared he did not see why it should be the American policy to hold aloof from European affairs and asserted that the United States had not done its full duty since the armistice.

"The statesmen of the world are pursuing shadows," he said. "Since the armistice was signed they have indulged in all kinds of illusions."

Reparations Too Much for Germany.

He said the trouble in France was that that country had been balancing its budget by including the German reparations, which it was humanly impossible for Germany to pay. He said that the high taxes here had impeded business and that it was obvious that Germany could never set up the taxation to produce the enormous revenue. He added that there was a false impression that Germany was at work and feeling prosperity, but that what had happened in that country was but the result which always follows an inflated currency.

Governor Lowden, who returned recently from Europe, said he found the people there had generally gone to work and had regained their sanity more quickly than the statesmen. The people of Europe, he said, had implicit confidence in the integrity of the United States and its people and deep respect for the moral influence of this nation.

"The question is how long will that moral influence remain in view of our present attitude toward Europe," he said. He condemned the withdrawal of the American troops from the Rhineland and told how the order threw the allied High Commissioners into almost a panic.

"The Belgian Commissioner appealed to me," he said. "He said that anything might happen if the American troops were recalled. He urged that 1,500 men be left, or, if that were impossible, fifty men—enough for a guard for our flag. That flag withdrawn, the Belgian Commissioner said, the people will believe that America has lost faith in us and given us up."

"No Right to Haul Down Flag."

He added that Berlin was equally insistent, and said:

"We didn't have any right to haul down the flag there."

Referring to the isolation of America, Governor Lowden said that the word might be sweet to many Americans but the fact was that America had not had isolation for a generation. "As soon as we recognize that fact," he continued, "we will seek an effective foreign policy.

"Since we are involved in the world's affairs, are we going to do something to avoid a war, or are we going to wait until we are engaged in another great war?

"If we are willing to pay the price, maybe we can get back our isolation. But let me tell you the price. It would be the reversion of 30 per cent. of our wheat fields and 20 per cent. of our corn fields back to the native prairie land; 50 per cent. of the cotton fields of the South would go back to the original forest; we would close up a lot of copper mines; and we would have to completely revolutionize our industry and commerce if we would regain that isolation which we long ago lost. Are we willing to pay the price?"

Governor Lowden said he sympathized with France in her attempt to enforce the payment of the German reparations by the invasion of the Ruhr but did not believe it would do any good. He recalled

President to Take Wife South After March 4; Holds His First Cabinet Session in 10 Days

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—President and Mrs. Harding are planning to go to Florida after the adjournment of Congress on March 4, leaving as soon as business will permit.

The state of Mrs. Harding's health and the situation in Congress have prevented the President from planning to go South before this time.

It is virtually certain that the President will accept no invitations for public functions while away. The prime reason for the trip is Mrs. Harding's health, while Mr. Harding, who has just recovered from the grip, has had no relaxation since July.

Attorney General Daugherty was absent, being ill in his apartment with the grip, while Secretary Davis is recuperating in Florida from the same ailment.

With the exception of an appointment with the Budget Director, General Lord, the only other engagement on the President's schedule was with the correspondents.

BOYDEN PROPOSALS BURIED

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 26.—The reparation struggle between France and Belgium one one side and Germany on the other became an open-and-shut fight today when the Reparation Commission cut off all legal trimmings by declaring Germany in general and complete default in all her reparations obligations to France and Belgium under the Treaty of Versailles. Whatever rights the treaty gives to France to take action against Germany she now enjoys without any strings.

This action by the Reparation Commission was taken today at a session called originally to pass upon a new French reparations plan which was to have been served on Germany with a fifteen days' ultimatum to accept. Yesterday M. Poincaré fixed another system, and today Louis Barthou, the French member, and Leon Delacroix, the Belgian member, presented a demand that the new plan be not sent to Germany, in response officially to her request for a moratorium on cash payments, but rather that Germany be told that her actions since the French occupation of the Ruhr in refusing all payments to Belgium and France constituted a general default to France and Belgium, which rendered unnecessary any reply to her moratorium demand, and therefore that the schedule of payments of May 5, 1921, be entered into automatically.

With Sir John Bradbury, the British member, refraining from voting, the commission, by the votes of France, Belgium and Italy, took this action.

The French plan now remains in suspense, ready to serve as a basis for negotiations at any time Germany desires to reopen conversations with the Reparation Commission. Under the 1921 schedule of payments Germany would have owed 500,000,000 gold marks on Jan. 15, but this has been postponed until the first of February.

By today's action the French have averted another crisis which would have been caused by the certain German refusal on Feb. 15 to accept their plan, and they now have all the rights to action which they would have had by waiting for the German default on Feb. 15.

Text of the Decision.

"The Reparation Commission has decided: First, that by its declaration of Jan. 13 the German Government has canceled its request of Nov. 14 for a moratorium, and that no action is required to be taken in respect of that request, which had become null and void as a result of the act of the German Government. In consequence, the schedule of payments of May 5, 1921, is in operation as from Jan. 1, 1923.

"Secondly, to declare and to give notice of, to each of the Governments concerned, under Paragraph 17, Annex 2, of the Treaty of Versailles, a general default on the part of Germany in the performance of her obligations toward France and Belgium."

At the same time the following covering letter was sent to the German Government:

"In letters dated Nov. 14 and 27, 1922, addressed to the Reparation Commission by the Kriegslasten Kommission, the German Government asked to be relieved from all payments in cash and for the larger part in deliveries in kind for a period of three or four years.

"On Jan. 13, 1923, the Reparation Commission informed the Kriegslasten Kommission that it would postpone the payment due on Jan. 15 until Jan. 31.

"On the same day, Jan. 13, the German Government notified the Reparation Commission that it was stopping

French Ready to Close Ruhr; Hint That Foch Will Command

ESSEN, Jan. 26. (Associated Press)—The customs barrier with which the French are threatening to encircle the occupied Ruhr region is expected to become effective at midnight tonight.

The occupation authorities decline to reveal their proposed plan, or to indicate the methods they will take for enforcement. "Ask Marshal Foch," was the uniform reply given the newspaper correspondents today when they asked for information.

This is interpreted as indicating that Marshal Foch will have headquarters in Essen and be in charge of the customs embargo, which it is presumed will permit of exports and imports to and from occupied Germany only with the consent of the French authorities.

German Industrialists declare that if the ring is established it will mean ultimately the definite shutting down of industry in the Ruhr.

PRESSURE FAILS TO MOVE HARDING

He Will Not Be Influenced to Act Now in European Crisis, Says White House Spokesman.

NEW MOVE FOR CONFERENCE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—The Administration refuses to be influenced to take action in the present European crisis by pressure from Congress and elsewhere. This attitude was reiterated at the White House today by a spokesman for President Harding. The position of President Harding and Secretary Hughes is that until a plan likely to bring results helpful to Europe, is brought forward for adoption by the Government it would be foolish to try this and that project. Thus far the Administration has seen no suggestion that seems to meet the need.

The position of the President and his advisers was restated in the face of renewed agitation in Congress to have this country take action to help settle Europe's problems.

In the House today Representative Chalmers, Republican of Ohio, offered a resolution calling for a joint committee of ten to request the President to summon a world peace conference. On Monday, Senator Borah will again offer his resolution, requesting the President to invite the principal powers to a conference to discuss world economic questions and take further steps for the reduction of armaments.

According to the White House view the present agitation is due to a curious state of mind in the United States. The idea appeared to prevail, it was said, that America could wave some sort of magic wand and the world would respond. It was pointed out that there was a vast difference between proposals to help Europe made by persons not connected with the Government and proposals to help Europe made by the President or the Secretary of State. Nobody connected with the Administration, it was said, had found a method that would be helpful in the present situation but the Administration would be glad to receive suggestions.

The Administration, according to the White House spokesman, was going ahead in a sane and normal way with the desire to take advantage of any opportunity to be helpful when such appeared.

"Boyden Plan" Before Committee.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee discussed behind closed doors the "Boyden plan" for settling the reparations problem, which was submitted by Secretary Hughes yesterday with other confidential information. The plan was not productive of any sensations. Senator Hitchcock, ranking Democrat on the committee, called the plan "innocuous." Senator Johnson said he had not changed his opinion regarding this country's course and held that we should abandon participation in European affairs.

The committee was in session two hours, but did not act on the resolution of Senator Robinson, which would authorize the President to name an American member of the Reparation Commission. The resolution, however, is deemed. Senator Lodge said this afternoon that when it did come up for consideration a motion to postpone action indefinitely would undoubtedly prevail.

Realizing that his resolution was on the shelf to stay, Senator Robinson announced that within a few days he would make a speech, calling upon the Foreign Relations Committee to summon Secretary Hughes to question him regarding the European situation.

Discussing the Boyden plan, one member of the committee described it as "filled with platitudes, opening with an admonition to France and closing with another admonition directed to Germany." Generally speaking, he said, the document might be interpreted as a plea to Germany and France to get together and "stop fussing."

The Republican "irreconcilable" members of the committee were for the most part very quiet, following the meeting. A report persisted in the corridors that most of them had swung into line for the Administration and that when the promised "flare-up" in the Senate developed several of these Senators, who DUESSELDORF, Jan. 26.—Düsseldorf tonight is under a very firm hand. All the café and restaurants were closed at 10 o'clock by order of General Simon, and arrests are going on all over town.

Four well-dressed men in charge of the military police, with drawn revolvers, protected by a squadron of cavalry, have just passed the hotel going to barracks.

The whole town is in a state of nervousness and excitement. Dragoons and squadrons of armored cars are patroling the streets in every direction.

During the disturbances at Duesseldorf yesterday nineteen persons were taken in custody by the troops. Acting Burgomaster, Dr. Schmidt, and the Chief of Police, Dr. Oexle, were arrested and imprisoned pending trial on the charge of having contravened French military orders for the proper government of the city.

From the list of those arrested yesterday the composition of the crowd is apparent. There are four bank clerks, one engineer, one newspaper man and the rest small storekeepers or store assistants. Among them there were no laborers and this agrees well with the appearance of the crowd as it paraded the streets. It was composed almost without exception of well dressed middle class people. There was no rowdy element. Almost all the people taking part in it were engaged in business or official jobs which had closed for the two hour strike.

City Officials Condemned.

One feature of the evening was that no, or only a few, German police were to be seen on the streets. Like the Post Office and other functionaries, the police had quietly withdrawn during the strike hours and it is because of this that the chief has been arrested today.

Both he and the Burgomaster plead complete innocence. When interrogated by General Simond this morning the Burgomaster declared that he could not be held responsible as the strike was instigated by syndicates and functionaries over which he had no control. The Chief of Police had the same excuse. It was against orders he said that part of the police force had withdrawn from the streets but these explanations availed nothing, both men being imprisoned in the local police barracks with special provision that food can be supplied from their homes.

On the railroads of the district there is a complete tie-up. At Düsseldorf, Duisburg, Kettowjt and other stations the whole personnel has quit work. There are only a few trains running out from Cologne to the outer suburbs of Düsseldorf, and only a few military trains running in the Ruhr basin.

Düsseldorf Station is an armed camp. It is picketed by several hundred men and the gates are kept closed. At Essen the Station Master returned to work today in the hope of getting the tangle straightened out. When he arrived, however, he found the French Military had taken over seven out of eleven telephone lines and that with the best will in the world he could not operate the station system.

No coal is being shipped either by rail or water. On the Rhine all traffic is stopped. From the mines there are no reports reaching French headquarters. It is inevitable, however, that the output must cease if the railroad strike continues. The mine owners have promised that wages will be paid at an increased scale whatever happens, and, as the railroad men are employed by the German State, whose orders they are obeying, their wages likewise are assured.

Enough Food for a Week.

Already in the towns there is a shortage of some commodities, but it is stated that it will be a week more before any food crisis arises. French army supplies are being brought in and distributed by motor truck, and nothing is being bought or requisitioned locally.

At all customs stations the German Government order to the functionaries to refuse information is being carried out, and more arrests and expulsions are being made tonight. In the mines the technical staffs also are refusing to give any information to the French engineers. Measures of coercion which were envisaged in their case have not been put into execution for the reason that, with the railroad strike preventing output, there is no immediate necessity.

Both in coal and revenue, M. Poincaré's plan, after a fortnight's trial, has yielded not one penny to France, and, though it is yet too early to foresee the ultimate result, the difficulties which the Germans are putting in the way by passive resistance are such that the outlook is greatly depressing to those charged with the task.

The whole Rhineland and Ruhr were effervescing with excitement last night. Outside my hotel here in Düsseldorf a French picket fired over the heads of an immense crowd and it seemed almost impossible that serious trouble could be avoided. The crowd here was unarmed and for a while it seemed good tempered, but two or three incidents completely altered its character. Cavalry and infantry patrols three times had charged and the whole city surged with people singing "Deutschland über Alles" and "Die Wacht am Rhein."

During the early part of the evening French soldiers and officers were not molested, but the incident in front of the Hotel Breidenbacherhof which I saw arose out of the hooting of an officer. He turned on the crowd, which began mobbing his car, and his orderly immediately whipped out a revolver and charged threateningly. The crowd scattered, but its temper was aroused and it surged once more to the door of the hotel. The officer seized his orderly's revolver as if he intended that if there was any shooting he would do it himself. At that moment a patrol luckily came around the corner of the street and charged. The crowd immediately scattered while half a dozen shots were fired over their heads.

The French had hoped that by giving light sentences to the coal owners they would avoid making martyrs of them. The Germans, on the other hand, interpret the sentence as showing that the French were afraid to be severe. Crowds gathered singing their patriotic songs in good temper, but with far more air of success and hope than has been heard since the occupation began.

Thousands of young and old men began parading Düsseldorf at 5 o'clock, the women and children standing on the sidewalk joined in the songs. They were far from an organized revolt yet, but all such dreams as may exist in France of making the Rhineland a separate republic and winning the allegiance of the people away from Prussia looked like utter foolishness in the face of such emotion.

More clearly than ever it is becoming apparent that victory in this struggle will be to the country which can hold out longest. A German industrialist with whom I talked said that it would be six weeks at least before there was any indication from which it would be possible to gauge the outcome. The rest of Germany had ample coal supplies for that time and could purchase in England for almost the whole of this year.

"We will have to pay dollars," he said, "but we have plenty of dollars and in the meanwhile we can still undersell other countries and so keep our accumulations of foreign currencies replenished. It will be the Ruhr which will suffer most and it will be for the French to see to it that it doesn't suffer too much."

This somewhat optimistic outlook is universal among German people. They don't believe that the Government or the industrialists will yield and they don't believe that France can ever obtain from the Ruhr either by the extraction of coal or by a customs line enough to recompense her for the outlay and to pay reparations.

M. Le Trocuer, the French Minister of public works who arrived yesterday is visiting the whole district in an attempt to arrange with the mining mission for some schedule of work and with him came General Weygand and M. Guillaume, chief mining engineer of France. The French are preparing for a long stay and the disposition of the troops in more permanent quarters has been completed.

There are in all two army corps in the Ruhr basin. These are made up of the 128th, 40th, 13th, 33rd and 47th infantry divisions with cavalry detachments posted at various points.

Duesseldorf Closed Up Tight.

DUESSELDORF, Jan. 26 (Associated Press).—What practically amounts to martial law has been declared in the occupied area.

All cafés, hotels, theatres and cabarets were closed at 10 o'clock tonight, German time, which is 9 o'clock French time.

More arrests are likely tomorrow if the Germans carry out their decision to refuse to obey the French. This decision was reached today at a meeting of all the Burgomasters, Chiefs of Police, prominent State officials and the Directors of the Reichsbank in the Rhine Province. The meeting was presided over by Dr. Groetzner, President of the Province of Rhenish Prussia, who later was taken into custody but afterward released after a conference with General Simon, who informed him that he would be rearrested if he remained recalcitrant.

It was explained by the French tonight that Dr. Groetzner was arrested for his activities against the French, which culminated in the meeting presided over by him this afternoon, at which certain instructions were given to those present for carrying out measures against the occupation authorities.

It is understood that Dr. Groetzner at the conference with General Simon agreed to withdraw these instructions, and that General Simon informed him unless such action was taken before 11 o'clock tomorrow morning he would again be taken into custody.

Area Quiet With More Strikes.

Quiet prevailed throughout the Ruhr today. There was no recurrence of Thursday's clashes, but the temper of the population was more openly defiant in the prevalent depressing atmosphere of hate. New forces of troops came into Düsseldorf today to meet any eventuality that may arise here or in any other part of the Ruhr. The streets of Düsseldorf are under military guard, due to the absence of the German police.

The miners throughout the Ruhr continue gradually to throw down their picks, and workmen in other industries also are leaving their jobs. Smokeless chimneys are now everywhere in evidence throughout the once prosperous valley of the Ruhr. Locomotives, cold and silent, are stalled in shops or at stations; many pitheads, from which formerly thousands of tons of coal daily were handled, show no sign of activity.

The next move in this great battle will come from Paris, probably early in February, after the Germans have failed to meet their Jan. 31 payment of 500,000,000 gold marks. Germany must submit to the ultimatum which then will be sent them or further military operations, the nature of which have not yet been announced, will begin.

The economic side of the occupation of the Ruhr apparently has proved a failure, and the belief prevails that it is not likely the situation will improve with the increasing of difficulties in working the industries due to the spreading of strikes.

Big Troop Movement Expected.

It is understood, however, that France has decided upon a further use of force to bring Germany to terms. It is known that some of the engineers who came into the Ruhr with the mission of M. Coste, head of the French industrial delegation, are returning to France. The mission is marking time until the Reparation Commission renders its decision at the end of the month.

Two additional French army corps are arriving in the Ruhr and it is reported that the military operation projected is of such magnitude that the mobilization of several French classes will be required for its execution.

The French here are hopeful that a further show of force on the part of France will cause the Germans to give up their present plan of non-co-operation and, therefore, make it unnecessary to enforce the Reparation Commission's ultimatum, but they are ready to go through with their plans if the German Government remains stubborn. The visit to the Ruhr of General Weygand is said to have been with the purpose of settling the final details of the proposed operations by the French troops.

The arrests made during the course of Thursday's demonstration tend to show that labor refrained from participating in the disorders. Out of the nineteen persons taken into custody there were seventeen State functionaires and shopkeepers. The other two were newspaper men. The labor newspapers, especially those of Communist and Socialist leanings, today openly denounced the manifestations.

But while a majority of the laborites are inclined to continue work, the effectiveness of the railroad strike gradually is forcing the miners out of the pits and the steel workers from their plants. Navigation on the Rhine is at a standstill, but French crews today succeeded in starting for Strasbourg from Ludwigshafen fourteen barges of coal.

Burgomaster Schmidt and Dr. Oexle, Director of Police of Düsseldorf, were arrested during the day in connection with Thursday's disorders, and slept behind prison bars tonight. They will be tried by court-martial at Mayence on a charge of failure to enforce law and order. Dr. Oexle is said to have aggravated his case by being defiant when summoned before General Simon, the Military Governor of Düsseldorf.

"I gave official instructions to my police to remain on duty, but they disobeyed. I fully approve of their attitude," Dr. Oexle is quoted as having said.

When informed that he was under arrest, the Chief of Police is reported to have said to General Simon: "You French will find the Ruhr a tough morsel to digest. Beware of Ruhr indigestion."

The train for Paris, by way of Cologne, left on schedule time today, manned by a French crew. The French are insuring their lines of communication for service supplies by way of Neuss Junction, a few miles southwest of Düsseldorf, eliminating passage through the Cologne bridgehead where the British are. They have been unable to handle trains bringing food into the Ruhr for the civilian population, and have so informed the Reich President. They are placing the responsibility on the German railwaymen should a famine ensue.

Belgians Punish Aix.

AIX-LA-CHAPELLE, Jan. 26.—All the newspapers here have been suppressed for three days by the Belgian occupation authorities as a punishment for publication of an offensive address delivered by a local German official.

BERLIN, Jan. 26 (Associated Press).—A state of siege has been proclaimed in the Aix-la-Chapelle and Kreutznach districts by the occupational authorities as the result of yesterday's demonstrations, according to the correspondent of the Berliner Tageblatt at Aix-la-Chapelle.

LONDON, Jan. 26 (Associated Press).—This afternoon the railway workers in Düsseldorf tore up the railway lines, isolating Ruhr main line traffic, says a Reuter dispatch from Duesseldorf.

The French have organized convoys of motor lorries, some 400 of which made their way through Neuss with rations and supplies for the troops. The route through Neuss, which is in the Belgian zone, was taken in order to avoid having to cross the British area.

A clash between French troops and the inhabitants of Düsseldorf today is told of in a Central News dispatch. The inhabitants are said to have grappled with the soldiers, capturing several of their weapons.

The Police President of Essen is credited by the Essen correspondent of The London Times with the statement that the French commandant requested that in future policemen unable to control crowds should retire behind the French troops. To this the Police President says he replied that the police would never stand behind the French troops to afford the French a free field for firing on fellow Germans, but would remain at their posts until the last to try and prevent collisions.

French to Try to Open Railroads.

ESSEN, Jan. 26 (Associated Press).—The mine situation was reported normal today, although Germans say the traffic situation was less favorable than on previous days.

The French will attempt to operate the railway lines. Already they control the stretch between Cologne and Altessen, and announce that 3,500 French railway workers are due to arrive in the occupied area tomorrow.

The post and telegraph authorities have issued an ultimatum to the French demanding the evacuation of telephone, postal and telegraph quarters; abolition of mail censorship, removal of military patrols from governmental premises and non-interference with the Government administration.

No mail has been sent out of Essen for two days.

FRENCH BUDGET VOTED BY CHAMBER FOR 1923

PARIS, Jan. 26 (Associated Press).—By making a special effort, the Chamber of Deputies tonight voted the 1923 budget. It did not, however, balance the budget, leaving that task to the Finance Committee, which will seek ways and means to effect an equilibrium next week.

The total sum voted is 23,956,000,000 francs. Most of the proposed economies disappeared during the lengthy discussion of the budget, which began last Fall.

The Chamber has been sitting mornings and afternoons for the past three weeks, as it did during most of November and December, in order to hasten the budget vote. A report that the Senate intended to take its own time discussing the budget speeded up the Chamber's deliberations in the hope that a final vote would be taken before the end of February, thus obviating further provisional monthly credits.

One clause of the budget measure demands the suppression of 15,000 additional State employes, to be chosen by the head of each department, but there will be no lessening of employes in the Department of Public Instruction.

The number of effectives in the French Army provided for by the budget is fixed at 630,000, including auxiliaries and all men on leave or absent for any cause. The army appropriations are divided among the War Department budget, the recoverable expenses budget and the special account for the occupation troops.

CLEMENCEAU ASKS US TO DISSEMINATE TRUTH

Fellowships Established With Funds From His Trip Will Help, He Thinks.

PARIS, Jan. 26.—"Truth needs some help to get about these days, and you can give it," said Georges Clemenceau today in receiving a delegation of fellows of the American Field Service Fellowships.

The delegation handed to M. Clemenceau resolutions signed by the leading members of the fellowship association establishing fellowships for one American in France and one Frenchman in America with the proceeds of the Tiger's recent tour of the United States.

The delegation, which was presented by Budd Champlin of New York, included the former Premier's godson, Jacques Clemenceau Leclercq. M. Clemenceau announced to his visitors that the proceeds of his tour at the disposition of the fellowship association amount to $40,000.

He seemed to enjoy the students' informal visit thoroughly, chatting gayly with them, cracking jokes and declaring how glad he was that his trip, if it accomplished nothing else, would do something to help along their good work.

POPE URGES MODERATION.

Cologne Cardinal Protests Against Ruhr Occupation.

ROME, Jan. 26.—With reference to a protest from Cardinal Schulte, Archbishop of Cologne, against French occupation of the Ruhr, it was said at the Vatican today that Pope Pius several days ago sent communications to Mgr. Cerretti, the Papal Nuncio at Paris, and Mgr. Pacelli, the Nuncio at Berlin, urging them to exert influence to avoid Franco-German complications.

MARTIAL LAW DECLARED

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 26.—German Government circles consider that the situation caused by the French invasion is only now entering a critical phase. The expulsion of German officials from the Rhenish province as well as the Ruhr district, and measures taken by the French to separate the Ruhr from the rest of Germany and establish a new customs frontier, as well as to set up a new currency for the occupied territory, are regarded as determined attempts on their part to mutilate Germany in such a manner as to reduce her politically to the rank of a Balkan nation and at the same time to destroy her industrial and mercantile importance.

It is considered significant that at the moment when these measures are announced by the French press the Nationalist chieftain, Hitler, proclaims, in the face of the Bavarian Government, which had told him to lie low as long as the French Tricolor had not been hauled down on the banks of the Ruhr, that nothing will deprive him any longer of opening an attack on what he calls the enemies of Nov. 9, 1918, the men who proclaimed the German Republic.

It will be remembered that the National Socialists planned a great demonstration for last Sunday which, however, was deferred at the last moment. Yesterday Hitler declared to the Munich newspapers that this demonstration would come off tomorrow night or Sunday and that he "did not give a damn" whether the Government and the police liked it or not.

Munich Government Endangered.

The Munich Government, which once encouraged Hitlerism, is now, according to a correspondent of the Catholic Germania, actually frightened at it, for it has penetrated all the public offices, even the police and the army, and may prove stronger than the Cabinet itself. For this reason, during the last few days, untrustworthy Munich troops have been replaced secretly by more reliable forces from other places.

Nevertheless, the Vossische Zeitung says this afternoon that it is doubtful if these measures will persuade Hitler to call off again his so-called demonstration which, as all competent judges agree, can only mean another "putsch," perhaps connected with a pogrom, and bound to end either in the separation of Bavaria or in a sanguinary civil war.

Late this evening news came from Munich that the Cabinet had held a session to consider the situation, and was afterward announced that, as large numbers of so-called National Socialists from all parts of Germany had assembled in the Bavarian capital and as by this unexpected gathering of strange elements order and peace might be endangered, the Cabinet had seen fit to proclaim a state of martial law for the time being. Afterward it was stated that martial law had been declared for the whole of Bavaria.

Border States Distrusted.

Added to the seriousness of the situation is the attitude of the border States, especially Poland and Lithuania. The latter has already made use of the occasion by attempting to annex the Memel district, according to a view taken here, while Poland is believed to be restrained from laying her hands on parts of Eastern Germany only by Russia's threatening attitude.

German politicians believe that it is to be expected at any moment that France will cause a Rhenish Free State to be proclaimed under the protection of her army of occupation, the time being especially propitious for France's plans because the American troops have been withdrawn and the British alone, are evidently not prepared to interfere with French plans. Vorwärts calls upon the Socialist Party and the labor elements of all Germany to stand together and ward off this blow, which, it declares, is aimed from three sides simultaneously at the independence and integrity of the German republic.

Guerilla Volunteers Held Back.

BERLIN, Jan. 26.—Curt diplomatic exchanges between Berlin and Paris, official instructions to police, Reichswehr and railroad authorities throughout Germany to prevent organizations of adventurous youths from going to the Ruhr to start guerilla warfare against France, and published orders to railroad workers explaining that the French occupation is a violation of the Versailles Treaty and forbidding them to carry troops or munitions on trains, mark the official developments of Wilhemstrasse today in the economic war against France.

Premier Poincaré followed his refusal to accept the German protest against the killing of a Red Cross man with a curt note, received today, declaring that all further notest protesting against French action in the Ruhr will be unacceptable. Despite this, the Wilhelmstrasse dispatched a new note protesting against the arrests and deportations of seven more officials from the occupied area, including the Governor of Wiesbaden, on the ground of a violation of constitutional law, forcing people to act against their own countrys orders. The hardships imposed in the deportations on only a few hours' notice, as well as extending the deportations to innocent members of the families, are complained of.

Wilhelmstrasse is distressed over adventurous youths in various parts of the country being whipped into a patriotic fever by Nationalists, who are organizing Selbstschutz companies similar to those which drove the insurrectionary Poles from upper Silesia. About 1,000 reached Hanover today, went to the Reichswehr barracks and demanded the right to fight.

Denied this, they went to the house of Field Marshal von Hindenburg, who refused even to speak to them, despite demonstrations. They then demanded free tickets from the station master to Berlin. This was refused, the Chief of Police explaining that they were only endangering their country.

Several hundred accepted the advice and returned to their homes. Others, however, are paying their fares or stealing rides to Berlin. Several hundred also are here from the Hamburg district.

The Government orders all officials to dissuade these and similar misguided patriots from doing anything which might endanger peace, sending those here home.

The report that the Reparation Commission has decided that the moratorium application is no longer valid, owing to the stoppage of deliveries in kind, while not more than was expected by Wilhelmstrasse, has aided in the depression here, causing the mark to hit a new low record of 23,800 to the dollar.

Leaders Expect Sacrifices.

BERLIN, Jan. 26 (Associated Press).—The German Government has issued an appeal to the nation, signed by President Ebert and Chancellor Cuno, urging the people to renounce luxuries and extravagances of every kind and to make the greatest possible sacrifices "in view of the common need of the whole country, which involves the very existence of all future Germany and the liberties and rights of the whole people."

Leading industrial and commercial firms have issued similar appeals to employes and workers throughout the Reich.

Neither Finance Minister Hermes nor Dr. Becker, the Minister of Economics, would discuss today the customs ring which has been proposed to be built around the occupied Ruhr, or admit that the Government was prepared to counter it.

The Cabinet's deliberations continue behind locked doors. The secrecy now extends to the conferences with labor leaders and other non-official personages who are being called in freely by Chancellor Cuno for consultation.

The Government fared well in the Reichstag today when several speakers linked the Ruhr situation with the debate on the current budget. Dr. Karl Helfferich, former Secretary of the Treasury, speaking as the Nationalist leader, said that "this hour of need it is immaterial whether Germany is a monarchy or a republic—it is now the common duty of all citizens to help rout the invading foe."

His party, he declared, did not propose to exploit misfortune of the nation's present plight by furthering party propaganda. He said that any man who deserted the Ruhr industrialists and workers now was a shameful traitor. Dr. Breitscheid, the Socialist leader, charged Premier Poincaré with having struck "an almost mortal blow at the German Republic." He emphasized that the Ruhr workers could not be driven down into the coal pits at the point of the bayonet.

All the speakers lauded the Ruhr leaders and miners for resisting the French.

LONDON, Jan. 26.—As an outcome of the boycotting of Frenchmen and Belgians in the German capital, says the Berlin correspondent of Reuter's, the Counselor of the French Embassy, M. St. Quentin, has received a letter from the proprietor of a well-known restaurant there, who accustomed to take luncheon, requesting him to abstain from further visits to the restaurant.

WEYGAND AT WORK ON IT

Strikes, Boycotts, Demonstrations and Expulsions Unsettle the Whole Rhine Area.

DUESSELDORF, Jan. 26 (Dispatch to The London Daily Chronicle).—Interest in the situation veers round at the week-end to various plans which the French representatives are now contriving here for setting up what must be described as practically a separate Ruhr State. A long, momentous and I am informed stormy conference took place here yesterday. What happened has been camouflaged almost out of sight in official communiques, but the gathering marked the real beginning of the second act in the Ruhr tragedy.

There were present at the conference M. Le Trocquer, French Minister of Public Works; General Weygand, chief of staff to Marshal Foch; M. Guillaume, prominent engineering expert; M. Tirade the French Rhineland Commissioner; and General Degoutte. The conference lasted several hours and heard many experts but it only led to one direct decision.

Steps are to be taken at once to cut off the Ruhr coal area from Germany. That was all that was definitely decided because of serious differences of opinion that manifested themselves. Military representatives were rather sore that they had not been allowed to show a stern hand.

Enthusiasts see no difficulties in setting up and maintaining a special customs frontier in a part of Europe where frontiers are rather too numerous as it is. How will the French manage this without the willing co-operation of German officials, without consent of trader, industrialist and financier? That is the question General Weygand has to answer, and one from which the General might well ask to be excused.

But the French Government have given him his job and a time limit. In a week he must be ready with his scheme. Meanwhile French officers of all sorts are being poured into the Ruhr regions and more troops are arriving.

There has been but little change in the situation during the last twenty-four hours. The position with regard to railways is still as I reported it to be late last evening. Düsseldorf and Trèves are still practically isolated, as their chief stations are shut. People who want to go there must travel to the nearest station and proceed onward as best they can. The number of stations which are closed grows hourly. Movements of troops are greatly hampered, and the railway timetable practically has become so much waste paper.

On the Rhine, too, all work is still suspended. The river, usually a busy highway, I believe, not carried a single coal barge since yesterday afternoon. And the number of expulsions grows greater every day. A little army of German officials, high and low, is being escorted continually across the Rhine, and the latest notable expulsions are those of the Chief Burgomaster of Mayence and the deputy here in Düsseldorf.

At Trèves the expulsions have been so numerous that a general protest strike broke out yesterday and the railway station was shut, trains ceased to run, and there was no gas, water or electricity. Most business stopped, cafés and restaurants were shut and big demonstrations were held, and the French authorities replied by proclaiming martial law, as they have also done at Mayence, on account of the prolonged demonstration which followed the Mayence court-martial.

Here in Düsseldorf the postal service is working very badly on account of the extensive train stoppage. Most of the authorities are not accepting parcels or money orders. The telephone and telegraph services are working erratically over a large part of the Rhine area and business is beginning to suffer severely. The boycott of French and Belgians, which is fairly general throughout unoccupied Germany, has appeared in the occupied zone. At Aix-la-Chapelle a large number of shopkeepers refused to serve French or Belgians, with the result that the shopkeepers have been expelled from their shops, which have been put under official management.

A performance of "William Tell" at the Municipal Theatre at Coblenz last night was forbidden by order of the Interallied Rhineland Commission. It was probably feared there would be a repetition of the scene which took place at the Municipal Theatre at Hamborn when the play was received with tremendous enthusiasm and several parts of it had to be performed thrice in response to the demands of the audience.

For two days there has been no delivery of letters in Essen. Cologne railway officials held a general meeting this afternoon and decided they would maintain an attitude of strike neutrality. While the British remain here they will continue to transport French and Belgian soldiers, but on the first intimation of the British leaving they will join in the tactics of the other districts—spasmodic strikes with general passive resistance.

MOB SMASHES UP DORTEN'S NEWSPAPER

Office of Separatist Leader Twice Raided by Angry Rhinelanders.

COLOGNE, Jan. 26.—In consequence of rumors that a Rhineland Republic had been proclaimed at Coblenz, a crowd last night stormed the offices of the newspaper, which is controlled by Dr. H. A. Dorten, the Separatist leader, smashing windows and throwing furniture, documents and appliances into the street.

This morning another attack was made and further destruction caused.

LONDON PAPERS LAUD PAGE.

Pay Tribute to War Ambassador for Whom Memorial is Proposed.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 26.—Supporting the proposed erection of a memorial in London to former Ambassador Page, The Daily Telegraph says:

"There are probably not many occasions which would draw the Prime Minister of this country, his three surviving predecessors in that high office and Viscount Grey of Fallodon to set their hands to the same document, nor can there be many men among the most choice and most rare spirits of their time whose praise they would join in sounding with equal heartiness and whose memory they would conspire to perpetuate with like enthusiasm.

"But we published yesterday a letter bearing the names of these five distinguished signatories and relating to the late Walter Page, one of the best of the many supremely good Ambassadors that the United States has sent to the Court of St. James, one of the greatest gentlemen, one of the most devoted lovers of his own country and one of the truest friends of this country.

"The letter did not need more signatories, nor would more have added anything of weight.

"These signatories in their letter say that when, in 1917, America entered the war 'Mr. Page was the happiest and most liberated man in Europe.' That is a striking phrase which shows how inestimable was his services and how spontaneous should be our recognition of it.

"'Anglo-American friendship,' in the opinion of many of us, is the best hope of the world. No man did more than Mr. Page to widen its horizons and to strengthen and eternalize its bond."

The Mail, in an editorial of appreciation of Mr. Page's work, says:

"Among the influences that drove America into the war his was one of the chief. His advocacy of Anglo-American co-operation amounted to reasoned passion. As man he inspired instant confidence and affection in all who came in contact with his human, humorous and upright personality."

LABOR CONFERS ON RUHR.

Joint Session Held of International Federation With Radicals.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Jan. 26.—At a joint meeting of the International Federation of Trade Unions at Amsterdam today with the London Second International and the Vienna International to discuss the Ruhr situation no resolution was adopted. It was expected yesterday that the conference might last two days, and it is thought somewhat important owing to the possible influence that a resolution might have on strikes in the Ruhr.

The executive of the Netherlands Trades Union, comprising a quarter of a million members, has offered 150,000 guilders, being 2½ per cent. of their capital, to the German strikers in the Ruhr. This executive has sent a request to the Secretary of the League of Nations concerning the situation in the Ruhr, stating that economic life may be paralyzed in Western Europe if the workmen refuse to work under the menace of arms. The executive holds that the danger of war, referred to in Article XI. of the peace treaty, is now threatened and consequently every measure should be taken to enforce peace.

LINER SAVES FISHING CREW.

Empress of Scotland Picks Up Five Men From Burning Schooner.

According to a wireless message received late yesterday at the offices of the Canadian Pacific Steamship Company from Captain James Gillies of the liner Empress of Scotland, due to arrive late tomorrow from Southampton with 138 passengers, he had rescued the crew of the fishing schooner Clintonia, 105 tons, of Lunenberg, Nova Scotia, about 700 miles east of Sandy Hook.

The position of the rescue was given by Captain Gillies as "42.30 north and 50 degrees west longitude, dangerous to navigation."

The message added that the lookout on the Empress of Scotland was attracted to the schooner by the flames that were shooting up from her hold forward and the five men of the crew were quickly taken off in one of the liner's lifeboats.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 26.—The Daily Express correspondent at Mayence says he understands on excellent authority that a proclamation dated February 1 has been placed in the hands of printers at Mayence, and adds that the greatest secrecy is maintained regarding plans relating to the proclamation.

Fire Holds Up 5th Avenue Traffic.

A small fire on the second floor of the studio building, 6 West Fiftieth Street, held up Fifth Avenue traffic for fifteen minutes yesterday afternoon, caused a congestion of promenaders, and alarmed a number of women who were trying on new gowns in the building at 5 West Fiftieth Street, which is given over to modistes. The fire was on an unoccupied floor and was extinguished by employes and tenants before the firemen got there.

DECIDE TO RETAIN BRITISH ON RHINE

LABOR IS USING PRESSURE

LONDON, Jan. 26.—A Cabinet meeting presided over by Premier Bonar Law today discussed the Ruhr situation.

The Government's attitude toward the French action in the Ruhr remains the same pending further developments. So far it is held that circumstances do not necessitate the withdrawal of the British troops from the Rhineland.

LONDON, Jan. 26 (Associated Press).—The occupation of the Ruhr and the cognate question of maintaining or withdrawing the British Cologne garrison, were understood to be the chief topics of discussion at the full meeting of the Cabinet today.

While it was believed that the recent assurances given to Lord Crewe at Paris had been accepted as removing the likelihood of the recurrence of such incidents as the Lassnaur expulsion, it was said that the whole situation was causing the Government increasing anxiety and that the time had come when in the opinion of some of the Cabinet members the whole question of the British attitude toward the French policy must be reviewed, perhaps revised.

According to some of the political writers in the newspapers the Cabinet is divided on this question, especially as regards keeping the British troops in the Rhine zone. It is reported that Premier Bonar Law favors the return of the troops and that in this he is supported by several of his colleagues.

Other members of the Cabinet are said to feel that withdrewal at this time would not only increase the tension by involving the substitution of a French garrison and removing a moderating influence upon the policy of the Government, but would probably destroy the Entente as well as cause injury to British commercial interests, for the control of German export licenses would pass to the successors of the British garrison.

The diplomatic expert of The Telegraph, discussing the Government's difficulty, says that the views of Washington and American opinion are generally received with the closest attention here.

British labor organizations are planning a campaign against the Ruhr occupation and are arranging an international protest against the continuance of a situation which they are convinced is leading in the direction of immeasurable disaster. Secret communications are constantly passing between the leading British and Continental labor organizations and Socialist parties, including German, French and Dutch.

The Continental workers are reported to be looking to British labor to lead in the movement by exerting pressure upon the London Government to recall the British troops on the Rhine and to refuse to countenance further the Franco-Belgian policy, forcing the abandonment of the Ruhr adventure and bringing the whole reparation problem before an international conference at which organised labor would be represented.

Some of the British labor leaders are now on the Continent arranging for combined international action. Edo Fimmen, Secretary of the International Federation of Transport Workers, is here on a similar errand. It is said that American labor is moving in the same direction.

BELGIAN LABOR PROTESTS.

Party Favors League Settlement of Reparation Question.

BRUSSELS, Jan. 26 (Associated Press).—The Belgian Labor Party issued a manifesto today assailing the occupation of the Ruhr.

The manifesto contains a proposal to solve the reparation problem by an appeal to the League of Nations, cancellation of the interallied debts, reasonable reduction of the German debt, an increase in the French, Belgian and Italian reparation shares by the suppression of the British claims and a vast international loan with the help of America.

FRANCE TO SEEK OUR TRADE.

PARIS, Jan. 26.—The French Government is about to establish a special commercial mission in New York, with the object of fostering commercial relation between the two countries and generally endeavoring to secure for France a greater percentage of the American import trade.

The mission will be headed by A. L. Leneveu, formerly commercial attaché of the French Embassy in Washington. M. Leneveu sails for New York tomorrow.

O'RYAN URGES REPARATION.

General Tells of Havoc He Saw Inflicted on France.

ALBANY, Jan. 26.—Major Gen. John F. O'Ryan in an address before the annual convention of the National Guard Association of New York State, tonight said:

"It is most interesting to soldiers, particularly the veterans of the World War, to consider what is now going on in Europe and the attitude of mind of certain elements of our people toward those events. To observe the editorial attitude of some newspapers and to hear the comments of some persons one would think that our ally was Germany and not France. The manner in which the facts are at times misrepresented and obscured tends to lead the unthinking and the unstable to shift their loyalty from the cause of France, which was our cause, to the cause of political expediency or of business opportunity.

"France has been more generous in her attitude toward the people of Germany than the soldiers of America, but this has not obscured the basic fact that the World War was a German conspiracy against the civilization of the world, and that the untold casualties, grief, suffering and destruction which followed were the direct results of the deliberate and brutal planning and actions of the German people, whose morality had been as esthetized by the Darwinisoes who constituted the German military party. If the German people for the next thousand years voluntarily made slaves of themselves in an attempt to make good the results of their barbarism of 1914-18 they could not succeed. This was recognized by the forces of civilization which in 1918 succeeded in stopping, at least temporarily, their brutal irresponsibility.

"In considering the present policy of France, it is well to remind ourselves what some persons are beginning to forget, namely, that the destruction was not wholly a by-product of the waging of battle. Very largely the ruin of French industry and agriculture was the result of a fiendish policy of deliberate and scientific destruction which literally tore the property to pieces. We saw these things with our own eyes, and we know that by comparison the activities of the Huns of the days of Attila now seem like the kindly efforts of good Samaritans.

"When we went into the war it was upon the theory that covenants and treaties must be lived up to and that the world must be freed from the barbarism of military slavery. We undertook to help in this work with our active, participating support and by our responsibility for what we did. The cause to which we gave our allegiance still exists. The objective of that cause is not fully attained.

"Today our participation in the affairs of our allies is limited to unofficial observance without responsibility, and our allies are grounded in our connection and our obligation. The battle period of the work of the great cause was the dramatic period of the work, but it was only a phase. During that phase we pulled our weight, after we went in, as our army went to the front, not as unofficial observers, but as men of battle, and under unified command the battle phase of the struggle was satisfactorily terminated.

"In the present phase of the struggle our help is equally needed, and our responsibility would seem to be equally great. Whether we are in complete or partial accord with all that France is doing, whether we are barrant of sympathy for Germany or willing to forgive and forget, the truth is that our unactive participation is essential at this time."

BARS £3,000 BEQUEST TO DEVELOP MEDIUMS

London Court Rules Gift of German Is Invalid as Not for the Public Benefit.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 26.—A bequest of £3,000 left for the training of spiritualistic mediums was declared today not to be a valid bequest by Justice Russell. The money was left by a denaturalized German named Hommeltenburg to the council of the London Spiritualistic Alliance. This portion of the will was contested by various charitable organizations.

Hommeltenburg directed that if the council of the Alliance found it unnecessary or impracticable to develop mediums the money should be used for the spreading and advancing of the cause of spiritualism.

Prima facie, said the Judge, the gift was bad as creating a perpetuity, but the defendants claimed the gift to be good on the ground that it was a valid charitable bequest. On the point of charity the Judge ruled that the bequest was not one that might be of public benefit. The Judge characterized the affidavits filed by the spiritualistic Alliance vague and stated that in dictionaries they had been invoked and putting the definition into his own words he took a medium to be an individual who professed to act as intermediary for communication between the living and the spirits of persons now dead. The Alliance supplied no evidence worthy of the name, he ruled, and nothing but vague expressions of opinion.

GEN. ALLEN OUT TODAY.

Will Turn Over American Zone to French Commander.

COBLENZ, Jan. 26 (Associated Press).—In accordance with cabled instructions from Washington, Major Gen. Allen will turn over the American occupational area to General Marty, commanding the French here, at noon tomorrow. The American commander, in a personal letter to General Degoutte, allied commander-in-chief in the occupied area, compliments him on the soldierly qualities and loyal friendship of his troops.

REPARATION BOARD ACTS

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

all reparations deliveries to France and Belgium. All deliveries to these powers have, in effect, ceased, and under the terms of Paragraph 17, Annex 2 of the Treaty of Versailles the Reparation Commission has today declared Germany's general default in the performance of her reparations obligations toward France and Belgium.

"The Reparation Commission, therefore, considers it unnecessary to adopt any decision regarding the request made by the German Government, which has by its own action rendered this request null and void.

"In these conditions the whole previous schedule of payments of May 5, 1921, become due."

The letter was signed by Barthou and Delacroix.

Field Now Clear for French Action.

It is possible that the French may change their program, due to a complication of causes. It is possible that a wish to avoid a further alienation of British and American public opinion led the French to avoid another crisis. It might also be true that the prospect of having to do something heroic in the event of another crisis, or lose standing, had its effect, for although there are French leaders who want to call up one or two classes and do big military things, the majority of the French Cabinet is opposed to this program and wishes to limit the undertakings to those which can be carried out with the existing military forces. It might also be that the French feel that in the Ruhr they have bitten off quite enough for the time being.

Therefore, whatever may be said of today's decision, it clarifies the situation. Germany says she will pay no more. The Allies record that declaration and continue undertaking to make her pay all. When one or the other becomes convinced that it is beaten then it will be time enough to take up the French plan or some other.

It is interesting to note that Sir John Bradbury regards today's decision as much wiser than adopting a reparation plan which would be doomed in advance to rejection on the expiration of the fifteen days' ultimatum. He explained that the plan he did not vote for the motion was that it implied a continuance of the use of force, in which his Government had no part.

Boyden Plan Now Buried.

PARIS, Jan. 26 (Associated Press).—By deciding that it would be futile to discuss the question of a moratorium with conditions as they are in the Ruhr, and declaring Germany in general default of all her reparation obligations to France and Belgium, the Reparation Commission placed itself outside of the problem for some time to come.

The decision has the effect of providing for future defaults by Germany in reparation deliveries, other in cash or kind, and saves the commission the trouble of declaring a new default every time one occurs.

The memorandum prepared by the American unofficial representative, Roland W. Boyden, about which there has been so much discussion, now becomes, in effect, buried, since it was only to see the light of day when and if the French moratorium plan came up for consideration.

The likelihood of the Boyden memorandum ever being seriously discussed by the commission now is most remote. It is said, however, that Mr. Boyden has no intention of withdrawing his memorandum unless instructions to this effect are received from Secretary Hughes.

It was also pointed out in reparation circles today that there is no intention now, and there never has been, to press it for consideration. Mr. Boyden attended today's session, but did not address the meeting, and the Chairman did not request him, as he had done on previous occasions, to make known his views.

Sir John Bradbury, the British delegate, agreed with the French representative, Louis Dubois, that the present was not the time for discussion of a moratorium, but he abstained from voting, because he could not agree that Germany was entirely to blame for the general default on all her reparation obligations.

M. Barthou attached great importance to the fact that Sir John had offered certain technical advice in drafting the letter of notification to Germany, and it was broadly intimated after the meeting that this might be taken as a sign of closer Franco-British relations on the comm

MOSCOW ENVOY GOES ON MISSION TO TOKIO

CANTON AND RUSSIA AGREED

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, Jan. 26.—While world attention is occupied with the Franco-German crisis things are happening in the Far East unnoticed, but little less important. It is announced here today that M. Joffe, one of the foremost Soviet diplomats who made the peace of Brest-Litovsk and was the first Russian envoy to Berlin, will leave China—where he has been for some months past as Soviet Ambassador—and go to Tokio on a special mission.

"This move has double significance. First, it is no secret that Joffe has been in pretty close touch with Sun Yat-sen, who of all the Chinese leaders is nearest to Bolshevism in his ideas. Cables from Chita today announce that Sun Yat-sen's influence has greatly increased, which, of course, doesn't make Joffe especially "persona grata" with the Peking Government. The latter, like the Government at Berlin, opposes the reactionaries on one hand headed by General Chang Tso-Lin—who corresponds to Ludendorf in Germany—and the left wing on the other, headed by Sun Yat-sen, who corresponds to the German Communists. The parallel may be extended still further, for just as the French, desiring a split in Germany, wouldn't be sorry to see either Ludendorff or the Communists make a move against the unified control of the central Government, so the Japanese, wishing to maintain disunion in China, have given open assistance to Chang Tso-Lin and less frank support to Sun Yat-sen.

Incidentally, in either case it is worth stating that Bolshevist Moscow has no kick to register. "We take it as an accepted fact," said a Soviet official, "that, no matter what help is given anywhere, with no matter what motives, to the revolutionary parties will turn out sooner or later to our advantage. This goes from the day Kaiser Wilhelm allowed Lenin to cross Germany to Russia, and we have seen no reason to modify it yet."

Secondly, the interest in Joffe's going to Tokio is that it is understood the Japanese Government at last is willing to talk about the evacuation of Northern Sakhalin. From a military stragetic viewpoint this may seem incredible, but it appears that the economic situation of Japan is so bad and labor troubles so ominous that the military junta controlling the country is really willing to jettison one of its trumps in a possible struggle for mastery of the Pacific for the sake of a speedy opening of the Asiatic mainland to Japanese commerce and industrial exploitation.

Sun and Soviet in Accord.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 26 (Associated Press).—A. A. Joffe of Moscow, Soviet Envoy Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary to China, who has been in conference with Sun Yat-sen, has been denied admission to Hongkong and Macao, respectively British and Portuguese colonies.

He announced that he would sail for Japan, to which country he declared he had been invited.

The Russian envoy said he intended to visit one of the numerous Japanese hot springs with the intention of recuperating his health.

A joint statement was issued tonight by Joffe and Sun Yat-sen, in which it was stated that the conference had revealed that they entertained identical views regarding the Chinese-Russian relations. The statement specified, however, that "Sun Yat-sen contends that the communistic order of the Soviet system cannot be introduced into China because the conditions there do not exist for the succesful establishment of communism and sovietism."

This view, it was stated, is shared by Joffe, who asserts that "China's paramount problem is to achieve reunion and national independence." And in this particular he assured Sun Yat-sen that China has the sympathy of Russia and can count on Russia's support.

Joffe reaffirms the principles of the Russian note to China of Sept. 27, 1920, which categorically declares that Russia is ready and willing to enter into negotiations on the basis of renunciation by Russia of all treaties and exactions imposed on China by the Czarist régime, including treaties and agreements relating to the Chinese Eastern Railway.

Sun Yat-sen believes that the railway question can only be finally adjusted by a competent Russo-Japanese conference. He holds that the realities of the situation point out the desirability of a modus vivendi in the matter of the present management, and agrees with Joffe that the existing management should be temporarily reorganized under an agreement not prejudicing the true rights and special interests of either party. He adds that General Chang Tso-Lin, the ruler of Manchuria, should be consulted on the question.

In regard to Mongolia, Joffe categorically declared that it has never been the purpose of the Russian Government to pursue an imperialistic policy there, or in any way to influence it to secede from China.

Although the Soviet troops now occupy Urga, capital of the province, the envoy does not view an immediate evacuation of Outer Mongolia as imperative or in the real interests of China. His reason for this view, he stated, was that the present Peking Government would be unable to prevent such evacuation being followed by a recrudescence of intrigues and hostile activities by the White Guards, who are against the Soviet Government, and the creation of a graver situation than now exists.

Joffe parted from Sun Yat-sen on the most cordial and friendly terms and asserted that he would visit South China before returning to Peking.

Sun Delays Going to Canton.

CANTON, Jan. 26 (Associated Press). Sun Yat-sen, still in Shanghai, has appointed Hu Hon-Min Civil Governor at Canton. Hu was installed yesterday with public approval. The foreign Consulates also were officially notified that Yang Hsi-Yen assumed office as Commissioner of Finance on Jan. 24.

The situation here is unchanged. The time of Sun Yat-sen's arrival is uncertain, though he announced in Shanghai recently that he would leave on Saturday of this week to reorganize affairs in the capital, where he formerly presided as head of the southern republic.

PARK SKATER ARRESTED.

Teacher Fined $1 for Disregarding Danger Sign.

The first ice-skating arrest was made late yesterday afternoon, when Policeman James E. Reynolds of the Arsenal Station arrested Herbert Schneider, of 1,549 St. Nicholas Avenue on a lake in Central Park. He charged in the Night Court that Schneider, an instructor in the Harlem Evening High School, had passed a danger barrier and had done fancy skating around a large danger sign. Schneider was fined $1. In his defense he said the sign was useless, as there was no danger in the locality it marked.

Special police details have been assigned to keep order on the ice and the men have been told to go after offenders on skates instead of following the usual procedure of standing on the bank and blowing a whistle.

Calls Fire Department Because Woman Screams as Man Dies

The Mount Vernon Fire Department was called out yesterday when Rocco Thomas dropped dead while working on an automobile in the rear of his home at 236 South Seventh Avenue.

A woman neighbor saw Thomas fall to the ground and ran screaming down the street. A passer-by who believed a fire had started rushed to an alarm box and summoned the department.

The cause of Thomas's death has not been determined. Coroner Edward A. Fitzgerald of Westchester County ordered an autopsy.

REPORTS MARRIAGE OF KAISER A FAILURE

English Correspondent Says Pair Live Apart Under Very Unhappy Conditions.

LONDON, Jan. 26 (Associated Press).—The correspondent of The Yorkshire Evening News, wiring from Doorn, says:

"In spite of elaborate efforts to hide the truth, I have discovered that the second marriage of the former German Emperor has been a complete failure, and that at the present moment he is living in one part of the castle while his wife and her children are in another. I am told that a very few weeks sufficed to bring about the breakdown.

"Those who are near the ex-Kaiser have been struck by the grave alteration in not only his mood but also his character. He is said to have been affected very unfortunately by the operation for gland transference he underwent before his second marriage. His own children have not forgiven him for the second marriage, and his step-children avoid him.

"His means are reduced and his private expenditure strictly limited. He is living today under most unhappy family conditions. He can command neither service, affection nor companionship, and the breakdown in his domestic arrangements is painfully apparent to the very few who visit him."

Reuter's Doorn correspondent, however, denies that there has been any split between Wilhelm and his bride, and adds that the couple were seen together this morning when the ex-Kaiser welcomed his brother, Prince Henry, who motored from Kiel.

The former Crown Prince also has arrived in Doorn to be present at the observance tomorrow of his father's sixty-fourth birthday.

VETERANS RETURN $7,500.

Boston Official Forces 220 to Give Up Doles Received While Working.

BOSTON, Jan. 26.—John H. Dunn, City Soldiers' Relief Commissioner, made it known today that he had compelled 220 World War veterans to return to the city Treasury $7,500, which they had obtained on the plea that they were out of work when as a matter of fact they were employed.

This, he said, represented half of the sum which they had drawn in relief funds, and if they did not pay back the remainder within a month he would prosecute them on obtaining money under false pretenses.

In one case, the Commissioner said, a young man whose father was a well to do business man had drawn $680. This, he added, had been refunded in full.

ALMIRALL JURY GETS AUDIT.

Justice Mullan Grants Request and Says Payment Should Be Made.

Supreme Court Justice Mullan, who some weeks ago heard the application by members of the Almirall Grand Jury to compel Controller Craig to audit their fees for serving as Grand Jurors, handed down a decision yesterday granting the application. The Grand Jury payroll has been held up in the Finance Department for about two years.

Justice Mullan said, in part:

"With the propriety of the items sought to be charged, this court, upon this motion, has no concern. The jurymen are entitled to some compensation and it is their plain right to have an audit that cannot, in justice, be longer withheld."

$15,000 FOR HUSBAND'S LIFE

Jury Gives Damages to Widow of Workman Killed by Short Circuit.

Mrs. Dorothy Tebper, widow of Herman Tepper of 82 Parkville Avenue, Brooklyn, obtained a verdict yesterday of $15,400 in an action against the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad in the Queens Supreme Court before Justice James C. Van Siclen.

Her husband was working on an electrical crane in the Van Nest yards of the railroad on July 6, 1922. He was using a tin oil can and in doing so the can touched an unguarded high tension electric wire. There was a short circuit and Tepper was taken to the Fordham Hospital, where he died within an hour after the accident.

SHIP RUNS OUT OF FUEL.

The M. E. Dollar, on Trip Around World, Is South of Sable Island.

BOSTON, Jan. 26.—The Dollar Line steamer, M. E. Dollar, bound for this port after a voyage around the world, was reported out of fuel and in need of assistance today, south of Sable Island.

Coast Guard service officials here said efforts would be made to have the cutter Tampa, now in this vicinity, go out and bring the steamer to port.

TURKISH MOVE HINTS AT MEDIATION HERE

LAUSANNE, Jan. 26 (Associated Press).—Failure of the Near Eastern Conference is certain, according to a statement made to The Associated Press tonight by Riza Nur Bey, one of the members of the Turkish delegation.

Notwithstanding this pessimistic view of Riza Nur, who is the most radical of the Turkish plenipotentiaries, hope is expressed in other responsible conference quarters that things may arrange themselves at the last moment.

Ismet Pasha, chief of the Turkish delegation, called on Richard Washburn Child, the American observer, this afternoon and went over with Mr. Child in great length the existing delicate situation in all its aspects. Mr. Child later declined to discuss what he termed a private conversation, but in American delegation circles the impression prevailed that the Turks will seek a settlement at Lausanne, if one is possible.

The time apparently is not yet ripe for active American mediation, but the Americans stand ready to help in securing a permanent peace for the Near East.

The Mosul controversy remains the thorniest before the conference. The Turks may be asked to accept on this point the decision of a special arbitration commission of which an American jurist would be the neutral member.

Ismet followed up his talk with Ambassador Child by inviting Rear Admiral Bristol, also of the American delegation, to take tea with him. The deadlock in the conference again was discussed over the teacups. Asked if war would follow the breakdown of the conference, Riza Nur said tonight: "God only knows. I am furious that our months of hard work here should all be for nothing."

Russia and Bulgaria Reject Terms.

The Russian delegation issued a statement tonight to the effect that Russia would not sign the Straits treaty.

The Bulgarians threw a bomb into Balkan circles, and incidentally into the allied ranks, by officially informing all the powers that Bulgaria flatly refuses to accept the outlet to the Aegean Sea as arranged by the Allies.

The Allies offered Bulgaria a port near Dedeaghatch under the form of a lease, with the understanding that the railroad from the Bulgarian frontier would be under international control. Bulgaria, however, declared that she must have complete sovereignty over the port on the Aegean, and also over the special corridor along the Maritza River from the Bulgarian frontier to the sea.

The Turkish delegates answered the allied project to adjourn the conference by the end of next week, whether peace was signed or not, by announcing today that they were having their passports visaed for their return to Turkey.

At the same time the Turkish journalists here forwarded to Constantinople a statement by Ismet Pasha that if the Allies at Lausanne on Feb. 2, as they have stated was their intention, his delegation also would depart the same day. If he had not sufficient time to reply after the presentation of the allied draft of the peace treaty next Wednesday, he would send his reply later from Angora or his army headquarters, he declared.

Ismet's statement added that unhappily there was divergence between the Turks and the Allies on many points, including the disposition of the Mosul oil territory and the questions of the capitulations, war damages and the disposition of the town of Karagatsch, opposite Adrianople.

Report Turks Recall Paris Envoy.

LONDON, Jan. 26.—A Constantinople message to the Exchange Telegraph reports that the Angora Government has recalled Ferid Bey, its representative at Paris, on account of the turn of affairs at Lausanne.

A despatch to The Times from Saloniki says that Colonel Plastiras, leader of the revolution in Greece which resulted in the overthrow of King Constantine's régime, has left for Lausanne to confer with former Premier Venizelos.

ATHENS, Jan. 26.—Turkish deportations from Anatola were resumed abruptly this week, despite the Greek Government's decision not to admit further refugees. The Nar East Relief today received the following telegram from Constantinople:

"The Turkish authorities have suddenly ordered 3,000 of the Greek population of Trebizond to leave immediately aboard three foreign ships which are waiting in the harbor. The refugees were transhipped here to the Greek steamship Ionia, which is proceeding to Greece in charge of Harry C. Moffett of Lebanon, Ohio, and Pauline Allen of Cambridge, Mass.

"It was absolutely impossible to shelter the refugees here. We beg you to find a place for them."

FOUR SUDDEN DEATHS REPORTED IN AN HOUR

Man Falls Dead in Home on Eve of Trip to Venezuela —All Victims of Heart Trouble.

Four sudden deaths within an hour early last night were reported by patrolmen of the West Thirtieth and West Sixty-eighth Street Stations, all due to heart trouble.

LAWYER MUST TESTIFY.

Judge Orders Bodenheimer to Tell About Clinton Portrait.

Supreme Court Justice Tierney denied yesterday the application of Bertram Bodenheimer, lawyer, to vacate the subpoena issued for him by Commissioner of Accounts Hirshfield in his effort to find out what became of an oil painting of DeWitt Clinton, which was attached in the Board of Education Building, and sold by the Sheriff to satisfy a judgment for $178 obtained against the board by the Clayton company. Bodenheimer appeared for the judgment creditor and bought the painting, stating that he did so for a client.

Justice Tierney said that obviously Bodenheimer has information that is pertinent to the inquiry, but he objects to testifying on the ground that such knowledge in possession does not involve the conduct of any department of the City Government into which the Commissioner of Accounts is authorized to inquire. The Court, in deciding that he should testify, said that "the loss or removal of the city's property is a proper subject for inquiry by the Commissioner of Accounts."

ARREST 3 IN CROWELL CASE.

Bench Warrants Are Issued for M. C. Tuttle, Major Foster and J. MacGibbons.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—Bench warrants for the arrest of Morton C. Tuttle, General Manager of the Aberthaw Construction Company and former Chairman of the Emergency Construction Committee of the War Department, and Major Clair Foster, formerly of the Engineer Corps, U. S. A., and recently connected with the George A. Fuller Company and the Thompson-Starrett Company, and John MacGibbons, representative of a bonding company and formerly associated with the committee, were issued today in the District of Columbia Supreme Court.

The defendants, along with Benedict Crowell, former Assistant Secretary of War, and others, were indicted on Dec. 30 on a joint charge of conspiracy to defraud the Government in connection with contracts for the construction of soldier camps.

EXONERATES IMPORTERS.

Fraude Court Clears Firm in Chinese Case Involving $107,000.

Magistrate George W. Simpson yesterday, in the Commercial Frauds Court, exonerated the John McGregor Grant Corporation, importers, 243 Madison Avenue, of criminal intent in connection with withholding $107,000 from M. A. Topas & Co. of Shanghai, China. Maurice Leon, a member of the law firm of Evarts, Choate, Sherman & Leon, appeared as complainant in behalf of Topas & Co. He alleged that the money was withheld on the sale of a consignment of wool worth $151,649, while the corporation was acting as consignor for Topas & Co., through the Russo-Asiatic Bank of Petrograd, in 1922.

Representatives of the corporation told the Magistrate that the corporation withheld the $107,000 on a claim for that amount against the bank. The Magistrate in his decision said he was satisfied that the corporation did not attempt to steal the money within the meaning of the criminal law.

Held Ip $4,600 Hair Swindle.

Joseph Schwartz of 33 St. Marks Place, was locked up in Police Headquarters last night charged with swindling Charles Kiss, a hairgoods dealer of 3884 Third Avenue, of $4,600 on Oct. 6, 1920, by substituting an envelope containing paper for one in which the money had been placed for deposit in a bad deal that turned out to be fraudulent.

Admit $127,979 Theft From Bank.

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 26.—Edward Voorhees, cashier, and James R. Smith, assistant cashier, of the First National Bank, Englishtown, pleaded guilty in the United States District Court today to the charge of embezzling $127,979 of the bank's funds.

BRITISH EXPECTED TO ACCEPT ON DEBT

American Commission Believes London Cabinet Will Agree to Our Terms.

BALDWIN TO ARRIVE TODAY

Harvey Will Be in Close Touch With Further Negotiations on the Subject.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—President Harding is hopeful that negotiations for the funding of the British debt will be concluded satisfactorily within a short time, it was said at the White House today. The same viewpoint has been expressed at the Treasury Department.

From the information obtained from a spokesman for the President, it would appear that the British and American commissions were not so far apart when the conferences were adjourned here as many had supposed. The American Commission, the spokesman said, believes that the tentative proposal taken back to London by the British Commission be accepted by the British Cabinet and that it will also receive favorable consideration by Congress.

If acceptance of the American proposal is received from the British Government in time, it will be submitted by President Harding to the present session of Congress. It was stated definitely at the White House, however, that no special session would be called because of the debt-funding problem.

Based on Congress Attitude.

The British Commission it was said went back to London fully informed as to the attitude of the Administration toward the debt. During the negotiations here the British made a tentative proposal which, while looked upon as reasonable, was not entirely satisfactory to the American Commission.

The American viewpoint was then set forth, indicating the changes in the British plan which it was felt were necessary in order to obtain satisfactory legislation by Congress to admit modification of the terms as set down in the present law.

The White House spokesman said that Ambassador Harvey had played a part in the negotiations leading up to the submission of a proposal to the British. The Ambassador has returned to London to be in close touch with the developments there when the British mission reports to the Cabinet.

Baldwin to See Premier Today.

LONDON, Jan. 26 (Associated Press).—Stanley Baldwin, Chancellor of the Exchequer, who headed the British debt mission to the United States, will report immediately upon his arrival in London tomorrow to Prime Minister Bonar Law, but it is considered unlikely that the Cabinet will consider his report until early next week.

In official circles it is considered improbable that Mr. Baldwin will return to America, the idea advanced being that the negotiations for the debt settlement would be continued by Sir Auckland Geddes, the British Ambassador at Washington.

The return from the United States of Mr. Baldwin is the signal for a number of newspaper articles on the funding of the debt. Generally, they argue that the rate of interest ought to be on the basis of the value of money in England, not in the United States.

Had Mr. Baldwin accepted the American terms, says The Weekly Outlook, it is possible that the Government would have had to repudiate him or leave office. The paper considers that there is no hurry, and that, as there is good-will on both sides, it is better to wait for a time when the American public is better able to appreciate England's position and difficulties. It contends that Great Britain is so overtaxed that she cannot afford to pay more than 3 per cent., that being the rate at which the British Treasury is able to borrow nowadays.

Tax for Two Generations.

The London Times prints an article contributed by "a colonial correspondent." It takes lines similar to, though less extreme than, those of The Outlook. The writer argues that if, as reported, the Baldwin mission agreed to fund at 3 per cent., the British Government was taking a responsibility the extent of which could hardly be realized at present, because it would mean additional taxation for every man, woman and child in the kingdom. This would not fall short, it is held, of a pound sterling per head annually for a period of two generations. Moreover, the obligation would be in American currency, and nobody is able to foresee the future rate of exchange.

It is asserted in the article that the present is the very worst time to fund the debt, owing to the developments in the Ruhr making it exceedingly uncertain whether anything can be obtained from Germany. Therefore, it argues, the British Government ought to refuse to fund until conditions change.

The writer says he cannot believe that any American Government "would demand that the rate should be higher than that at which they themselves can borrow," and concludes:

"The American people are as fair-minded and ungrasping as any people in the world, and when they once understand the position they would refuse to make such demands as they are making now."

MAN HELD WHEN GIRL FALLS FOUR STORIES

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—John S. Larcombe Jr., son of a Director of the Capital Traction Company and the Riggs National Bank, who was arrested today on a charge of assault after Miss Elisabeth Rhodes, who was in his apartment last night, fell from a window four stories to the ground.

The young woman is now in the Emergency Hospital in a serious condition. A passer-by discovered her last night lying semi-conscious on the sidewalk in front of Larcombe's apartment at 1,619 R Street. She had landed on the lawn and then dragged herself to the pavement. The police declare that half an hour elapsed from the time she fell to her discovery on the sidewalk.

Mrs. Agnes Rhodes, the mother of the young woman, said that she had forbidden Larcombe to her home, and that when he persisted in his attentions and her daughter continued to see him she had complained to the Woman's Bureau of the Police Department. She asserted that her daughter had jumped from Larcombe's window to resist assault.

Police took a statement from Miss Rhodes in the hospital. Her story, according to the police, was that she had met Larcombe on the street last night by arrangement, and that he invited her to his room. No one else was in the apartment, she told the police, and she said that when Larcombe made advances she ran into the bedroom, and in her anxiety to escape plunged through the window.

When Larcombe was questioned by the police he said that he and Miss Rhodes were sitting in his living room when there was a knock at the door. He sent his visitor into his bedroom, and then opened his front door, he declared, where there was another woman with whom he talked a few minutes. Returning to his apartment, he said, he found his bedroom door locked, obtained a skeleton key from the janitor, and on entering the room found Miss Rhodes gone and the window open.

Larcombe was held by the police in $5,000 bail. He is a widower, between 40 and 45 years of age, and has been local representative of a firm manufacturing metal fixtures.

10 MISSING, 19 BURNED AFTER FIRE ON TANKER

Vessel Is Destroyed in River Near Tampico, but Much of Her Cargo Is Saved.

TAMPICO, Mexico, Jan. 26 (Associated Press).—Ten members of the crew of the Mexican Eagle Oil Company's tank steamer, San Leonardo are missing and nineteen others are suffering from burns as a consequence of a fire which partly destroyed the tanker and burned the company's wharf on the Lower Panuco River last night. The vessel, which changed from the British to the Mexican flag in September, is listing badly.

Twenty-five thousand barrels of the 130,000 barrel oil cargo were saved. The refineries and tanks of the Mexican Eagle and Royal Dutch Shell Companies are close to the wharf and for a time it appeared as if they might be set on fire.

SEEK CHARLES BEDFORD JR.

Special to The New York Times.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Jan. 26.—The police here today were called on to assist in a search for Charles Bedford Jr. of 103 East Thirty-ninth Street, New York City, son of Charles Bedford, President of the Vacuum Oil Company of 61 Broadway, New York, and grandson of E. T. Bedford of Greehs Farms, Standard Oil and Corn Products Companies Director. The young man, who is 22 years of age, was undergoing treatment for mental trouble at Bloomingdale Sanitarium and slipped away Sunday.

The message received here was that young Bedford would seek employment at a garage in this city. He had only $5 with him. Police of Meriden and New Haven have been asked to hunt for the youth. He was wearing a grey tweed suit; grey cap with green stripes, a short coat similar to those worn by motorcyclists and a pair of goggles.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 26.—Charles Bedford was on July 2, 1921, released from the County Jail at Michigan City, Ind., where he was held preparatory to being sent to the Indiana State Reformatory at Jeffersonville. At that time Judge Crumpacker on the petition of Bedford's relatives, including his father, Charles Bedford, President of the Vacuum Oil Company of New York, entered an order vacating a three to five years' sentence against young Bedford following his conviction for stealing an automobile. The defense was that the prisoner was mentally unsound, following a severe illness.

The White Plains police said last night that they had been asked by the Bloomingdale authorities to look for young Bedford. A general alarm has been sent out from White Plains to New York and other cities. The physician in charge at the sanatarium declined to give any information about the escape. Bedford's father was not at his home, 103 East Thirty-ninth Street.

DOCTOR'S WIFE TAKES POISON IN WALDORF

Mrs. Mildred Gessler Tells Husband, With Whom She Had Been Dining in Hotel.

IS HURRIED TO BELLEVUE

Had Recently Been Ill in Hospital—Her Condition Reported as Serious.

Leaving the table where she was dining with her husband, Dr. A. E. Gessler, in the Hotel Waldorf-Astoria last night, Mrs. Mildred Gessler, 30 years old, of 623 Richmond Turnpike, Staten Island, went to a rest room and swallowed a quantity of lysol. She was taken to Bellevue Hospital in a serious condition.

Mrs. Gessler did not tell her husband of what she had done until a short time after she returned to the table. When they had left the table and gone to a lounging room she told Dr. Gessler she had swallowed the poison and he then summoned a physician.

Mrs. Gessler, her husband told the police, had left Lenox Hill Hospital only a few days ago after an illness which had confined her to the hospital for several weeks. They were having dinner in the Waldorf, he said, when she excused herself and went to the rest room. When she returned to the table Dr. Gessler saw that she was very pale. A few moments later, he said, she told him she felt ill. He immediately led her to a lounging room. Then she told him that while in the rest room she had swallowed some lysol.

Dr. Gessler sent for the house physician who gave Mrs. Gessler emergency treatment. An ambulance from New York Hospital and Dr. McGowan took Mrs. Gessler to Bellevue. Dr. Gessler went to the hospital with his wife in the ambulance.

Sergeant John Spain, of the West Thirtieth Street Station, was sent to the hotel when the ambulance was called. He searched the rest room for the vial which had contained the lysol but was unable to find it.

MRS. G. L. KINGSLAND SUES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 26.—Mrs. Marian De Forest Cannon Kingsland has asked for a divorce from George Lovett Kingsland of New York. Her husband, it is declared, refused to live with her, left his Paris address in the Rue d'Artois and refused to return to her. Kingsland married Marian De Forest Prince June 18, 1915. There is one child.

George Lovett Kingsland and Mrs. Marian de Forest Prince were married in 1915 by Alderman Henry Curran in the City Hall here. Mrs. Prince a few months before had divorced her first husband, John Dyneley Prince, Jr., after returning alone from a brief honeymoon in Europe. She is the daughter of Henry T. Grand Cannon. Mr. Kingsland's first wife died in 1911. He is a grand-nephew of the late Mrs. William Astor.

42 SPEEDERS SENTENCED.

Cleveland Record Set for Penalties on Motorists.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Jan. 26.—Forty-two automobile speeders, the largest number ever sentenced here in one day, received workhouse sentences and fines from Judge Samuel Silbert, in the Municipal Court today.

The sentences ranged from one to ten days. Many others received suspended sentences. Fines of $25 to $50 and costs were assessed.

While Judge Silbert was disposing of 210 cases, the largest traffic docket for the year, the County Grand Jury returned an indictment for manslaughter against Wilfred May, 20, who was charged with running down Mrs. Ellen Herbert, 74 years old, on New Year's Day. The woman's body was carried almost a mile under his car.

NEWSPRINT INDUSTRY REPORTS BIG GAINS

MONTREAL, Quebec, Jan. 26.—Sir Edmund Walker, President of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, in an address to the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association at luncheon today pointed out that while the pulp and paper industry in Canada had made a more rapid recovery than any other Canadian industry following the course of events in the United States, economy was more than ever urgent. He regretted that the Dominion Government had so long delayed, and was still delaying, the establishment of a national research bureau.

R. E. Thomason, Vice President of the American Newspaper Publishers Association and general manager of The Chicago Tribune, said the time had come when the makers of newsprint and newspaper publishers must get together for their mutual advantage, instead of trying to injure the whole industry by making cut-throat profits but of each other as the market went up or down.

With the United States manufacturing 1,448,000 tons and Canada 1,152,000 tons of newsprint paper, all records for a year's papermaking in North America were broken in 1922. The previous high mark of 2,400,000 tons was made in 1920. It was reported at the annual meeting of the Newsprint Service Bureau.

The total North American production of 2,600,000 tons included 50,000 tons made in Newfoundland and 10,000 tons produced by the one newsprint paper mill in Mexico.

Advertising, enlarged Sunday and daily newspapers and wider circulations were said in the report to have been the three influential factors in the record output.

Of circulation it was said "there are more than 22,000 newspapers in the United States and Canada, of which some 18,000 are monthlies and country weeklies. The circulation of English-language dailies is approximately 30,000,000 for the week day issues and 20,000,000 for the Sunday issues."

Newspaper advertising in leading cities of the United States showed a "fair" increase in 1922 over 1921, but compared with 1920 showed a 5 per cent decrease. The newspapers fared much better than the magazines in this respect, for of the $800,000,000 spent in newspaper and periodical advertising during 1922 the newspapers received about $700,000,000.

It was predicted that 1923 would scale the billion dollar mark for United States and Canada in advertising by the printed page, and that paper manufacturing in North America would soon be a billion dollar industry.

Legislature Again Refuses to Vote for Prohibition Amendment.

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, Conn., Jan. 26.—For the third time since Congress proposed the prohibition amendment to the Federal Constitution the Connecticut Legislature today refused to ratify it, and the State thus stands persistently opposed to being enrolled among the States whose Legislatures ratified the amendment.

Representative Vinton of Coventry offered today's ratification resolution, but the House leader, John Buckley, had it tabled after saying that the original resolution, sent from Washington four years ago, was embalmed in the office of the Secretary of State and that today's proposal was "perfectly asinine, because all law abiding citizens had already accepted the amendment as the law of the land.

that at the Versailles Peace Conference France demanded the land to the Rhine on the ground that upon it depended her safety from future aggression from the Central Powers. "The United States denied this and, I believe, rightly denied it," Governor Lowden added. "It offered instead the guarantee of the League of Nations. France said 'all right.' We refused to ratify the treaty and every consideration to France in the peace treaty failed."

Sees Nothing for France.

"While I can understand it, I can not see what France is going to get out of the invasion of the Ruhr. I think it is a mistake because it isn't profitable to occupy by military force somebody else's country. It isn't good business. You can make more out of voluntary than out of enforced labor. The great war has proven also that war is unprofitable, even for the conquering nations."

Governor Lowden said he thought if the statesmen of the world, including the American statesmen, had interested themselves more in the question of reparations, much difficulty would have been avoided. He asserted that the United States was interested in the question. "Weren't we interested in whether the German Republic should endure or the military party come back?" he said.

"I don't think that we really have done quite our full part since the armistice was signed to heal up the wounds of the greatest of all wars. I don't know why we should say that it is the American policy to hold absolutely aloof."

He then cited specific instances during the last twenty years where the United States had participated in world affairs. He cited the policy of the open door in China, the Algeciras conference, where war between Germany and France was averted in great part through the suggestions of an American President, and in which the United States had representatives.

"If that principle of the open door, equal opportunity to all nations, even those in out-of-the-way and backward places, should be adopted, it would do more for peace than almost anything else. The chancelleries of the world are more concerned in getting oil concessions than in the peace of the world. Some new formula must be worked out of the possession of the raw materials of the world."

International Exchange Agency.

Establishment of an international cooperative exchange agency, in which all nations would be associated, was suggested by United States Senator Smith W. Brookhart of Iowa as a method of solving world political and social difficulties. Senator Brookhart said that such a program would receive the approval of three great "blocs" in the United States, the farmers, the laborers and the war veterans.

"These three great blocs have all reached one conclusion," Senator Brookhart declared, "and that is that our policy of international statesmanship is a complete failure. They believe the present statesmanship is guided solely by economic power and greed, and they oppose a League of Nations or cancellation of war debts."

Senator Brookhart said he would propose legislation providing that all interstate and foreign commerce be transacted under a Federal charter on the Rochdale co-operative plan. He advocated the repeal of all anti-trust laws as soon as this was effected.

Asserting that the farmer received only 35 per cent. of the price charged the consum

JEWS STATE STAND ON VITAL QUESTIONS

JUBILEE CONVENTION ENDS

KU KLUX KLAN DENOUNCED

Resolution Opposing Registration of Immigrant Aliens Adopted by Convention.

The Golden Jubilee Convention of American Hebrew Congregations closed yesterday with action on a series of resolutions on questions of great public interest. Resolutions were passed protesting against abuses in the matter of sacramental wine, against the Ku Klux Klan and similar organizations, and in favor of uniform marriage, divorce and desertion laws.

A resolution encouraging the physical upbuilding of Palestine was tabled because it was suspected that the wording of the resolution would be interpreted as favoring Zionism, or the doctrine that Palestine is the true home of the Jew and America only a temporary abiding place during exile. A resolution calling on the Government to release political prisoners was discussed at length and then tabled.

The "Harvard incident" was debated freely and a resolution was finally adopted which took no position on the merits of the subject. The final action of the convention was to transmit, without comment, to the Harvard authorities and to the Presidents of all American colleges a report which had been previously submitted by the Board of Delegates. The resolution as finally adopted read:

"Whereas, the Harvard incident is being so widely discussed throughout the country, we recommend that those sections of the report of the Board of Delegates which deal with this subject be sent to the Presidents of all American colleges and universities and to the members of the special committees of Harvard University entrusted with the investigation of this matter."

Opposes Discussion on Harvard.

As originally drawn, the resolution had stated that the "Harvard incident" was "the subject-matter of a campaign of education throughout the land" and that it had "already greatly weakened the efforts to protect Jewish and other minorities abroad." These clauses were stricken out after being attacked as vague and not clearly proved. Colonel Joseph Ullman opposed the adoption of any resolution at all on the subject saying:

"This is a question that most of us know very little about. It is being handled by people who are making it their business to handle it and it is being handled on the outside by every busybody who feels that the salvation of the Jews and of the country is in his hands.

"On the Board of Overseers of Harvard University is one of our most eminent citizens, Julian Mack, and working with him are a number of people who are not working with brass bands. You cannot work out this problem with brass bands. My judgment is that the convention has no business to meddle with this question.

"It is not a question to be taken up and dealt with in an offhand manner. People have burned the midnight oil for weeks trying to understand this difficult question. I did, and I know as little now as when I started. I conversed with the university authorities in our own city about it and with people of the highest eminence in our country who are trying to handle this by negotiation, as it must be handled. This convention is not in a position to consider a question of this character."

Disagree With Colonel Ullman.

Colonel Ullman said that Jews in a position of responsibility in relation to this matter had asked Jewish organizations to refrain from public expression which might increase their difficulties. Dr. Harris Levy of Boston said:

"I don't agree with Colonel Ullman at all that it is not the business of this organization to discuss the question, but I do agree with Colonel Ullman that it is very unwise for us to pass on it. Jewish men who are at present on the Harvard commission have stated over and over again that they would much rather that the matter were not discussed by the different Jewish communities throughout the country until a report was ready."

Dr. Samuel Schulman expressed indignation at the theory that the convention should refrain from expressing an opinion.

"This is not a resolution coming from Tom, Dick and Harry," he said. "It is a resolution coming from united American Jewry. We ask that the world take note that the mere suggestion in our America of the possibility of limiting the number of Jewish boys and girls in higher education is of the same spirit that animated the powers of czaristic Russia."

Dr. David Philipson of Cincinnati said that there could be no doubt of the propriety of an expression by the convention on a matter so closely concerning the welfare of Jews in America. After further discussion, the resolution, so modified that it contained no direct expressions of opinion, was adopted.

Board's Report on Harvard Question.

The report of the Board of Delegates, which, under the resolution, is to be distributed to the Presidents of all centres of higher education in America, says:

"The proposal of President Lowell of Harvard University that the percentage of Jewish students to be received there be limited, naturally aroused much discussion and protest throughout the country. His claim seems to be correct, however, that certain other colleges reach the same result by more secret methods. An important general principle is involved, not to be limited even to such distinguished institutions as our higher seats of learning, and members of this board have done their share to awaken correct public sentiment on a subject which the governing authorities of that institution are still considering. "Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty." The United States Government, through diplomatic channels and otherwise, has in the past repeatedly protested against somewhat similar educational restrictions against the Jews in Russia, Rumania, and Poland and, accordingly, the evil results that would follow if President Lowell's plan be adopted, in stultifying all such future efforts on our part abroad, even on behalf of Jewish enjoyment of elementary common school and high school facilities, should not be lost sight of."

Precedents Against Discrimination.

After summarizing American precedents forbidding religious and racial discrimination, the report continues:

"When the precedents established by American statesmen so widely divergent in their general views as Thomas Jefferson, Charles Sumner, Grover Cleveland and Theodore Roosevelt can be invoked in favor of a claim, one may be quite certain that true American principles underlie it. In this connection, it is interesting to observe that one of the acts, soon after the days of the 'Civil War,' of the Board of Delegates of American Israelites—with which our own committee was merged shortly after the Union of American Hebrew Congregations was formed—was to secure a revocation from the Board of Trustees of the College of the City of New York of the ruling of the then President of that college regarding not excusing Jewish students absenting themselves on their religious holidays, except on condition of their forfeiting all their marks for those days, thus placing them out of the race for college honors with non-Jewish classmates.

"The executive official in question—who was more familiar with military strategy than with the history of the development of American principles and the decisions of the Federal courts—took the position that a public college ought to ignore all sectarian matters, including religious holidays, and therefore decline to regard absence on a student's most important religious holidays as excusable, though this executive chose to shut his eyes to the fact that statutes closed the doors of the college on the religious holidays of nearly all the Christian students. Fortunately, the superiors of this official, by resolution, were induced to give him a lesson in the true principles of American religious liberty, which he was constrained to follow thereafter.

Religious Status of Colleges.

"The subject of Jewish attendance at higher institutions of learning in America is so important and is attracting so much attention today that it will be well to supplement the article in the appendix somewhat. It is true that, in their origin, nearly all our American colleges in pre-Revolutionary days were sectarian institutions, but the American spirit changed their status in this respect, almost from the adoption of our Federal Constitution on and the grant of exemption from taxation, bestowal of large public subsidies and authorization to confer degrees and the like they have enjoyed all recognize that they bear the legal status of quasi-governmental character, which makes them subject to legislative regulation with respect to racial and religious tests.

"In New York State the Legislature was so impressed with the importance of making colleges absolutely undenominational that in organizing Columbia College right after the Revolution it even made the Rev. Gershom Mendes Seixas, rabbi of the only Jewish congregation of the State in that day, one of its trustees. Jefferson's attitude with respect to the University of Virginia is outlined in his own letter to Isaac Harby, reprinted in Mr. Kohler's article. Even though it be conceded that admission to colleges may properly be limited by a test of mental ability and the like—unlike elementary school instruction, which should be open to all—and that courses in many of these institutions must continue to be remunerated for, while others, established by the State itself, must, under public law, be gratuitously and universally rendered—such civil rights acts as have been referred to and the American principles underlying them cannot properly justify curtailment, avowed or devious, on the lines of race or religion. Supposed personal advantages to the institution of learning itself, and desire to cater to the snobbish 'loyalists' of students, prospective students or alumni can no more justify such discriminations and tests as to American colleges and universities than in the case of public theatres and the like, whose claims to manage their own affairs as they like, regardless of such principles have been regularly overruled by our courts for decades."

Grover Cleveland's Action.

The precedent set by Grover Cleveland in refusing to send an Ambassador to Austria-Hungary when that country objected to an appointee whose wife was a Jewess was discussed, and the report continued:

"As in the public incident in question, no test as to a person's race or religion is admissible on application to enter any public institution of learning in America, under the Civil Rights laws in force in many States, or the spirit underlying them. The inquiry whether Jewish craving for learning induces them to seek entrance to our universities in larger numbers than their proportionate part in the population of the district in question, is based on a line of inquiry which ought to be closed to the college authorities, as it is to our public officials. The proper lesson which the United States of America ought to continue to teach the whole world, abroad as well as at home, may be derived from a heretofore unpublished passage in Mr. Straus's autobiography: When Theodore Roosevelt proffered to him the appointment to the President's Cabinet, after some personal expressions of esteem, he said:

"'I want to show Russia and some other countries what we think of the Jews in this country.' Mr. Straus goes on to say: 'Roosevelt added that he could not see that it would do any good, and might do harm, to make further protests regarding massacres in Russia; and he did not want to do anything that might sound well here, and have just the opposite effect there. He thought it would be much more pointed evidence of our Government's interest, if he put a man like me into the Cabinet, and that such a course would doubtless have a greater influence than any words with the countries in which unreasonable discrimination and prejudice prevailed.' So also as to this college test of race or creed, in excess of certain arbitrary percentages. Shall we set aside, at home even, at the instance of possibly unconscious selfish and bigoted opportunism, the important American precedents we have proclaimed to the world, even abroad?"

Resolution on Sacramental Wine.

The resolution against sacramental wine did not definitely ask Congress to amend the Volstead act so as to abolish this use of wine, but asked the Executive Board of the Union to take proper action. The resolution read:

"Whereas, The Central Conference of American Rabbis, the largest rabbinical organization of liberal Judaism, has gone on record to the effect that fermented wines or spirituous liquors are not necessary for Jewish religious observances; and

"Whereas, Scandals are often arising because dishonest persons in religious guise have by willful misrepresentation obtained from the Government permits to secure so-called 'sacramental wines' for pretended religious ceremonials, when such permits were obtained frequently to secure wines for commercial purposes. Be it therefore

"Resolved, That this Union of American Hebrew Congregations, in council assembled, protests strongly against such abuses, and that the Executive Board be instructed to carry out the spirit of this resolution by such action as it may deem necessary. Be it further

"Resolved, That copies of this resolution be sent to the United Synagogue of America and the Union of Orthodox Congregations for their information. And be it also

"Resolved, That copies of this resolution be sent to each constituent congregation of the Union, with the request that they take action in sympathy with this resolution and send the same to the Executive Board for transmission to the proper Governmental authorities."

The resolution on Palestine, which was tabled, was as follows:

"This convention of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations notes with satisfaction the recognition which the League of Nations, by the ratification of the Palestine mandate, has accorded the project of opening up Palestine for the free settlement of Jews under the mandatory of Great Britain.

"This convention also records with appreciation the fact that the United States, through a resolution adopted unanimously by both houses of Congress and signed by the President, has joined the other great Governments of the world in lending its moral support to this undertaking.

"Conscious of the spiritual significance for the further development of Judaism implied in the establishment of a vigorous Jewish community in Palestine, and realising the importance of the migration of many Jews from the lands of Eastern Europe to Palestine, this convention urges upon all Israel to participate in the laudable efforts now under way for the reconstruction of that land."

Favor Physical Aid to Palestine.

All Jews, according to the various speakers on this resolution, favored the physical reconstruction of Palestine, but many objected to the resolution, on the ground that the phraseology of the resolution would be interpreted as an endorsement of Zionism and used for Zionistic propaganda.

"If we adopted this resolution," said Dr. Samuel Schulman, "we would seem to be endorsing the nationalistic philosophy which we have been fighting for twenty-five years.

"We will soon see the daylight on this question if you will act wisely. We are all in favor of helping those Jews who have to go to Palestine under the present condition of the British mandatory to go there, but we are not going to send out into the world the message that we are endorsing Zionism, because to the imagination of the average layman there is no distinction made in his mind between practical work in Palestine and Zionism.

"Furthermore, it is impossible to help the Jews as long as the Zionistic organization upholds the principles of Zionism. They are today an obstacle to the real work in Palestine. That may sound to you paradoxical and revolutionary philosophy, but to those who know the situation it is not.

"They should go out of existence altogether. Those Jews in Palestine will decide their own destiny, and without committing us to any philosophy. Therefore I move to amend as follows.

"That after the convention expresses its sympathy with practical work in Palestine we say, and we herewith reassert our principles as expressed in a number of conventions, that we reject every phase of Jewish nationalism; that we do not regard Palestine as a national home for the Jewish people; that we regard the Jewish people a spiritual communion, a world people, whose home by right is in every part of the world, that we believe America is our home; and, furthermore, we hold that it is difficult for non-Zionists to help practical work as long as the philosophy of nationalism is actually presented before the world by the Zionist organization and that we suggest that the Zionist organization go out of existence in order to make it possible."

Morgenthau Against Zionism.

Henry Morgenthau introduced as a substitute a resolution which said briefly that the convention favored the physical reconstruction of Palestine, but opposed all forms of Zionism. This was opposed on the ground that it would needlessly antagonize Zionists. Dr. Silverman and others made a hard fight to save the resolution, denying that any endorsement of Zionism could fairly be read into it, but the resolution was tabled. The resolution relating to political prisoners, which was also tabled, was as following:

"Whereas, All nations participating in the recent war except the United States have declared amnesty for their political prisoners; and

"Whereas, There linger still in our Federal prisons some political offenders by whose immediate release from prison the interests of mercy and humanity can best be served,

"Be It Resolved, That the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, in convention assembled, petition the President of the United States to release as many of these political offenders from prison as possible at once."

This was attacked on many grounds, but was warmly defended by a number of rabbis. The phrase "at once" was first lopped off, as being dictatorial and disrespectful to President Harding, to whom the resolution was to be sent. The comparison of the alleged clemency of other nations with the alleged harshness of the United States was then dropped, it being pointed out that most nations had some years ago solved the problem of dealing with wartime disloyalists and enemy agents by shooting them. Others pointed out that President Harding had been releasing prisoners at a rapid rate, dealing with each case separately. By a large majority the resolution was tabled. A number of rabbis and a few laymen thereupon, by way of a protest, had their votes on the minority side recorded by the Secretary.

Ku Klux Klan Condemned.

Several speakers argued that it was playing into the hands of the Ku Klux Klan to mention it, while others favored a resolution on the subject by way of showing recognition of the energetic work of officials like Governor Parker of Louisiana, and the following expression was adopted:

"The Ku Klux movement is one of many movements in many countries that have been spurred by the World War, movements which, under the guise of patriotism, seek to impose upon minorities the exclusions and despotism of a fanatic end, almost always, lawless nationalism.

"Together with all others to whom American traditions and American ideals are precious above all partisanship, we are opposed to this movement, as we believe in remedying lawful conditions, not by secret conspiracies and lawless methods, but along the road of permanent reform under the auspices of law.

"We applaud and heartily second the brave stand by which fearless statesmen and newspapers are exposing the incalculable dangers to elementary civilization which always lurk behind masked lawlessness.

"But even beyond these ferocious outbursts of unbridled majority tyranny which find their parallels wherever European countries, through the war, have sunk to the level of pogromism, we are opposed in principle to all separatist and discriminatory movements, all societies of Anti-Something which combine their energies and resources to denounce and to degrade any race, nation, faith or class in order to seek to ascribe the blame for all the many evils which are afflicting the present generation."

The resolution on the enactment of uniform marriage, divorce and desertion laws follows:

"Whereas, the safety and preservation of humanity's ideals are dependent upon the sanctity of the home which is created through marriage;

"Whereas, the laws of the several States are at wide variance in their provisions for marriage, and

"Whereas, the divorce laws of the several States are at equally wide variance, and

"Whereas, the desertion laws of each State are limited in their jurisdiction;

"Be it Resolved, That the Union of American Hebrew Congregations advocate the enactment of uniform marriage, divorce and desertion laws and that proper steps be taken by the Union to aid in their enactment."

Against Registration of Aliens.

The resolution opposing the enactment of a bill requiring the registration of aliens in this country was adopted as follows:

"Whereas, there are pending before the Congress of the United States bills requiring the annual registration of all aliens in this country, with deportation as the penalty for non-compliance, even in case of pure oversight, and with the probable result that compliance will lead to an enormous number of deportations to foreign lands on purely technical grounds, without time limit, of persons having their family ties and all their interests here, and

"Whereas, these bills are frankly patterned on the unpopular Alien and Sedition acts of 1798, and the harsh and oppressive Chinese Exclusion law machinery in force, and would give unlimited opportunities throughout the country for blackmail, extortion and oppression and are apt to cause injuries to the 7,000,000 aliens in this country, scarcely paralleled in our day, despite the desire of some of their framers that a part use of such registration be to aid (though ineffectively) in educating the immigrants in civics, through the department also having charge of deportation; be it

"Resolved, That the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, in council assembled, while recognizing that this is a matter concerning immigrants of all faiths, expresses its unqualified and emphatic disapproval of such measures, and of all invidious discriminations against and segregation of, aliens; and be it further

"Resolved, That copies of this resolution be forwarded to the Board of Delegates on Civil Rights to the President of the United States, to the Secretary of Labor and the Chairman of the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization of the United States Senate and House of Representatives."

The following resolution of congratulation to Nathan Straus on his seventy-fifth birthday was adopted:

"Whereas, the seventy-fifth birthday of Nathan Straus, whose noble philanthropies for the benefit of Jew and non-Jew alike for decades past have made him beloved by Christian and Jew alike the world over, will be celebrated next week, and

"Whereas, Nathan Straus's eminent services in saving the lives of thousands annually through his self-sacrificing campaign for pure milk have reflected great credit on the Jewish name everywhere, and

"Whereas, Nathan Straus was a leader both in the cause of securing equal rights for the persecuted Jews of Eastern Europe and Asia and for other minorities through the Peace Conference, as also in ameliorating their condition abroad and aiding in an eminent degree in collecting funds in the United States for Jewish reconstruction abroad,

"Resolved, that the Union of American Hebrew Congregations in council assembled extends to Nathan Straus its hearty congratulations on his seventy-fifth birthday, and hope that he will be spared for many more years for the benefit of our country, our faith and all humanity."

Favor Women for Executive Board.

Resolutions were adopted in favor of electing women to the Executive Board of the Union, opposing bills requiring the registry of aliens, denouncing discrimination in the treatment of immigrants and undertaking propaganda to place the authoritative Jewish translation of the Bible in every Jewish home and thanking New York Jews for their hospitality, and expressing appreciation of the chairmanship of Daniel P. Hays. The following was adopted on the death of Dr. Hirsch:

"Whereas: The U. A. H. C. notes with deepest sorrow the passing of the greatest exponent of liberal Judaism, Emil G. Hirsch. Hirsch interpreted the life and faith of the Jewish people with profoundest learning, with passionate eloquence and with prophetic courage. American Israel will long cherish the memory of this great Jew; be it therefore Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon our minutes, a copy sent to Mrs. Emil G. Hirsch and a copy sent to Sinai Congregation in Chicago."

Resolutions had been proposed from the floor on Thursday, calling for a reaffirmation by the convention of resolutions of the Central Council of Jewish Rabbis on social justice, arbitration, labor unions and various questions relating to capital and labor. These were not reported out of committee. An inquiry as to their fate was made from the floor and Chairman Hays said:

"The committee did not report them."

"Why not?" asked the speaker on the floor.

"I do not know. I was not there," replied Chairman Hays. No explanation was made. Other proposals not relating specially to Judaism and to the welfare of adherents of that faith were excluded from discussion or voted down as being outside the province of the convention.

Shohl Re-elected President.

Marcus Rauh of Pittsburgh in his report on Hebrew Union College urged the establishment of the endowment fund for a professorial chair at Hebrew Union College, costing from $100,000 to $150,000. Dr. Julius Morgenstern, President of Hebrew Union College, announced that Mrs. Henry Morgenthau donated $15,000 to the college, the interest of which is to be used as a traveling scholarship for one student of Hebrew Union College to enable him to study abroad, either for an ultimate professorship at the college or to tour the country in the interests of Judaism.

At a special session of the Executive Committee the following officers were elected:

Union of American Hebrew Congregations: Charles Shohl, Cincinnati, president; Julius Rosenwald, Chicago, Ludwig Vogelstein, New York; Isaac W. Bernheim, Louisville, Marcus Rauh, Pittsburg, Maurice D. The next convention of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations will be held in 1925 in St. Louis.

Sisterhoods for World Peace.

The establishment of permanent peace throughout the world was urged yesterday at the final session of the National Federation of Temple Sisterhoods. The following resolution was adopted:

"Whereas the whole world stands appalled at the desperate plight of the non-Moslem minorities in the Near East; and

"Whereas the Near East Relief is now caring for 100,000 orphan children, and at least as many more have not yet been reached; and

"Whereas the Near East Relief is doing its utmost to aid in removing and caring for refugees from Smyrna and Thrace; be it therefore

"Resolved, That the National Federation of Temple Sisterhoods does hereby endorse the work of the Near East Relief in its efforts to alleviate and remove these desperate conditions; and be it further

"Resolved, That we express to the President of the United States, the Secretary of State and Foreign Relations Committees of the Senate and the House and urgent hope that some way may be found to secure the protection of non-Moslem men, women and children."

A resolution also was adopted asking the sisterhoods to request their members to send contributions to the Union Hebrew College instead of giving confirmation presents. It was further decided to request the synagogues affiliated with the Union of American Hebrew Congregations to open their doors every day, if for only a short time, for "spiritual solace and comfort."

The rabbis and delegates were the guests of the Selwyns at a special matinee performance of "The Fool" at the Times Square Theatre. Rabbi Louis D. Gross, who introduced Channing Pollock, the author, reminded the large audience that the late Rabbi Isaac M. Wise was called a "fool" when he organized the Union half a century ago. "The other great prophets, Isaiah, Micah and others," he said, "were also considered fools in their time."

WANT BARS LOWERED FOR ALIEN FARM HELP

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Jan. 26.—A recommendation for the amendment of the Immigration act so as to permit the entry of skilled agricultural workers under restrictions which would keep the men in the fields for at least three years was adopted by the National Canners' Association at the closing session of their sixteenth annual convention here today.

The resolution, adopted amid an outburst of enthusiasm, declared:

"Whereas, the shortage of adequate labor is a serious and growing problem in the production and conservation of perishable food products, a matter vitally concerning the wellbeing of thickly settled communities, and,

"Whereas, it is generally recognized that entire lack of restriction on immigration will very probably result in further increase in the urban population, therefore be it

"Resolved, that the National Canners' Association, assembled in Atlantic City, N. J., at its sixteenth annual convention, hereby urges that the Congress of the United States take immediate steps so to modify existing statutes in reference to immigration that there may be admitted to the country a larger number of intelligent and desirable residents of other countries who are skilled in agricultural pursuits, under the condition that those so admitted shall enter only agricultural pursuits or industries growing out of the same, and shall remain in such field for a period of at least three years after admittance into the United States."

Another resolution ordered laboratory research into "the effect of the various canning processes on vitamines" and provided for a bureau of home economics.

FOOD BEGGAR CHOOSES WINTER STRAWBERRIES

Hungry Stranger, Told by Manager to Eat a Free Meal, Orders $1.25 Worth.

A ragged stranger entered the Rialto Restaurant, Fulton Street, Jamaica, yesterday afternoon and told the manager a pathetic story of being hungry, unable to secure work and said he was willing to do anything to secure food.

"Go on back there and give your order. Tell the waiter to give me the check," said the kind-hearted manager.

With a mumbled thanks, the ragged stranger made his way through the crowded restaurant and picked out a table in the rear.

Sa—y! What under the sun did you eat?" the derelict was asked.

When the shocked manager came to the ragged stranger had disappeared, but before doing so tipped his hat to the cashier and bowed in his politest manner, thanking all concerned.

WINS APPEAL AFTER SERVING SENTENCE

$500 FINE TO BE RETURNED

Court Holds Evidence Sought in Labor Investigation Was Irrelevant.

Robert J. Foster, private detective employed by the National Steel Directors' Association and other organizations, who was called as a witness before the Lockwood Committee, and refused to produce his reports when called upon to do so, yesterday won his appeal from conviction and sentence to thirty days in the Tombs and a fine of $500. The Appellate Division ruled that the trial justice was in error in charging the jury that the documents demanded were relevant to the subject under investigation by the Lockwood committee. A new trial is ordered by a vote of four to one. Foster has served his prison sentence but will get his $500 back.

Justice Smith, writing the prevailing opinion, said that the National Steel Erectors' Association, the Iron League of New York, and the National Steel Fabricators, were the subject of investigation on evidence that they maintained an open shop policy and refused to sell their products to contractors who employed union men in the erection of steel buildings in New York; that some of the employes of Foster became members of the building trades unions and attended their meetings as spies, thereafter making the reports which the Lockwood Committee demanded; that Foster insisted that to divulge these reports would endanger the lives of his men, and that only one of his eight men was engaged on erection work in New York City, and there was no proof that Foster had a report from this man.

Justice Smith said further that neither the Lockwood Committee nor Foster himself were authorized to determine materiality of the evidence asked for, because the courts alone could do so.

"With the admission of those in charge of the corporation of their refusal to sell those contractors who were engaged in erecting iron and steel and were using union men," says the opinion, "it is difficult to see how the reports of these sub-detectives could be pertinent to the inquiry that was being made by the committee, or to any legislation which might be based upon the result of such inquiry.

"The immunity of individuals from search and seizure and from forced inquiry into matters irrelevant for any legitimate purpose is to be fully protected. On the other hand, no narrow rule of interpretation should apply which would prevent a thorough investigation of an material subject of inquiry which the Legislature may, through a committee, think wise to make. Without passing upon these questions in this opinion, however, I think this judgment will have to be reversed on error in the charge of the court below."

Final Briefs in Pat Somerset Case.

Final briefs in the case of Pat Somerset, the English actor against whom deportation proceedings were brought because of his relations with Edith Day, an actress, were submitted yesterday to the immigration authorities by Somerset's counsel. VENDETTA SUSPECED IN BOOTLEGGER'S DEATH

Special to The New York Times.

RED BANK, N. J., Jan. 26.—The man whose body was found yesterday morning in a lonely stretch of the Seven Bridge Road, near Little Silver, with four bullet wounds in the chest and one in the left arm was identified tonight by six men from New York and Asbury Park as Salvatore Santaniello, 42 years old, of New York. The Monmouth County authorities say that Santaniello had been engaged for some time in bootlegging and in his clothing was found a memorandum book showing sales of whisky, one being for $2,256.

It was reported here tonight that an arrest is likely. There is suspicion that the dead man was the victim of a vendetta. In the man's clothing were a gold watch and chain, a $2 bill, some small change, a return stub of a railroad ticket from Asbury Park to New York and a check for $1,070, in addition to the little book showing liquor sales. The return railroad ticket showed that the man left New York last Wednesday. His home was on Ninth Avenue. A wife and two children are said to live in Italy.

The body was found by Patrick Bates, a painter, who was on his way to do some work at the home of Winfield S. Wainwright. Near the spot where the body lay were fresh tracks of an automobile. The authorities believe the man was killed somewhere else and brought to the lonely spot.

There was one report tonight that Santaniello had done a liquor business as high as $5,000 a week.

PECORA QUESTIONS ANDERSON 2 HOURS

the sums had been paid to newspapers or newspaper men.

"I will not say anything about that," he rejoined. "I told the board they could take the bill or leave it."

Mr. Anderson admitted that some of the money from the publicity fund went "in part" to ministers, although he refused to divulge for what services.

"Were the names concealed to protect the persons who got money?"

"In part, yes."

Mr. Anderson took occasion to brand as false a statement attributed to him by Phillips to the effect that he had remarked he wanted "to fool the Rockefellers" with the Phillips contract in case they ever asked for the salary list. He further termed the Phillips interview as an "unqualified lie."

Further Questioning Today.

Acting District Attorney Pecora said Mr. Anderson had asked the privilege of having Mr. Poland, the League's counsel, present during the questioning. He added that Mr. Poland took no part in the proceedings and interposed no objections to the questions asked. Mr. Pecora said he intended to devote his time today to the further questioning of Mr. Anderson.

"Since my interview with the press yesterday I have read reports in the newspapers concerning allegations made by Mr. Phillips," he said. "I am willing to say that my inquiry today had something to do with these matters."

"Has any disposition to aid you in your inquiry toward making a complaint been shown by officials of the Anti-Saloon League?"

"Up to the present all officials that I have seen have responded to my requests."

"Have they responded freely?" he was asked.

"They have answered my questions."

Mr. Pecora confirmed the statement made on Thursday by Mr. Anderson that the Board of Directors of the Anti-Saloon League, following a report on the Phillips allegations, had sent a letter to the District Attorney. Mr. Pecora refused to give out the text of the letter, saying that Mr. Anderson could do so if so inclined. Mr. Anderson, when asked for the letter, referred questioners back to the District Attorney's office.

Pecora Get Directors' Letter.

"We had such a letter," Mr. Pecora said, "and I don't mind saying that it was the subject of interrogation today when I saw Dr. Moor and Mr. Anderson."

"Would such an act by the Board of Directors serve to exonerate Mr. Anderson from prosecution under the Anti-Tipping law?"

"I don't think such a course would be sound as a matter of law," Mr. Pecora answered.

"Have you asked Mr. Anderson to produce his bank books?"

"I won't answer that."

Asked whether he had talked with members of the Rockefeller family or representatives of the Rockefellers on the subject of the Phillip charges, Mr. Pecora answered that he did not care to say. He said he expected to interrogate the Rev. Dr. David James Burrell, President of the Anti-Saloon League of New York, as soon as Dr. Burrell had recovered from an illness. He believed the inquiry would be completed early next week.

"Will tomorrow's session last many hours?"

"That depends on the recollection of the witnesses," Mr. Pecora replied. He said that the scope of the inquiry had not been extended and that he would examine other witnesses, whose identities he did not wish to disclose at the moment.

O. Bertsall Phillips yesterday declared himself undisturbed by Mr. Anderson's charges. "He has not made a single charge which I cannot refute either with documents or by corroborative testimony," Phillips said.

"I am involved in an exceedingly unpleasant situation by virtue of the fact that I simply sat still and permitted Mr. Anderson to dominate. It is tragic that this man, holding a high position, with, perhaps, false prestige, should distort and misstate facts which he knows as well as I do are the truth.

"I feel sorry rather than revengeful. Why should I feel revengeful, as he charges? On the contrary, I was relieved when my contract was canceled. The fact that he had taken a share of my earnings was always an incubus.

Submits Anderson Letter.

"With regard to Mr. Anderson's assertion that I was dismissed from the Anti-Saloon League for disloyalty, it is only necessary for me to cite paragraphs from Mr. Anderson's letter of April 28, 1922, canceling my contract. This letter speaks for itself:

April 28, 1922.

Mr. C. B. Phillips, 900 Broadway, New York City:

My Dear Mr. Phillips—I am dictating this to be handed to you as the basis of our conversation in order to have the certainty and explicitness of the written word in connection with the frankness of a conversation. * * *

Further, without in any respect raising any question as to your personal loyalty and your defense of the league and its policy, and administration in your efforts to secure funds, the inexorable fact stares us in the face that without an increase, which is certainly not promising enough to justify sitting down and waiting for it, the compensation that the league can afford to pay you in the light of large subscriptions that are reasonably probable, is not sufficient to meet your needs in comfort, resulting in a situation where you must be continually harrassed, or else make some other arrangements with a view to supplementing your income.

In my judgment it would be utterly impossible for you ever to build up this special support to the proper basis if you were doing something else, and I am not willing to run the risk of the possibility of a connection which I might consider inconsistent.

Therefore, under all the circumstances, I see nothing except simply to call off this proposition immediately, so that you can take steps without further delay to make a connection which I hope will meet your needs.

* * * * * * *

I shall be glad, if you wish, to give you a letter stating frankly what you have done and pointing out your special capabilities—a letter which will make clear that the cause of condition this particular line of work (the soliciting of large subscriptions) was discontinued. I take for granted that you will not think of doing what some few folks who have left the staff have done in the way of "knocking," and trying to block the league, and so, on the basis of loyalty to the cause, shall be glad to say a good word for you to any person whom you may refer to me.

This does not mean that it will be impossible for you to work for the league in the future if an equitable contingent basis can be worked out after you have made other connections consistent therewith which make it possible for you to do such work for us, if any, under circumstances where you are not wormied by your own financial problems.

This is a matter which can be determined only in time and by developments. Further, this does not mean that the door of the office is not open to you to come to me at any time with anything that you want to lay before me.

I fully appreciate the service that you have rendered, I wish for you the utmost of success and happiness, and I am convinced that in the long run this action will prove to be the best thing for you as well as being the best thing for the league at the present time under all the circumstances.

Yours very truly,

WILLIAM H. ANDERSON.

Invites Conspiracy Complaint.

"With regard to the charge that I, with a third party, entered into a conspiracy to obtain $500 from the league to which I was not entitled," Mr. Phillips continued, "I should welcome Mr. Anderson's signing a complaint charging such conspiracy. There would be an interesting story behind this.

"Mr. Anderson speaks guardedly of an alleged effort to blackmail him and furnished the press with a letter I wrote him from Hotel Pennsylvania. I will gladly give copies of two telegrams and a letter which I wrote to Dr. David James Burrell about the same matter. The tone of these, I believe, indicates sufficiently my purpose, which was merely to get restitution so as to relieve all concerned of the stigma involved in Mr. Anderson's taking part of my commissions.

"The receipt which I signed in December covered the payment of $2,500 against the $4,200 of commissions earned and accrued for subscriptions I had negotiated. This settlement had no relation to that part of my commissions taken by Mr. Anderson. These are the telegrams and letter:

Letter to Dr. Burrell.

Dear Dr. Burrell—

The following brief summary may aid you:

On the basis of 20 per cent. on the first $25,000 of subscriptions and 10 per cent for each additional thousand I earned in 1920-21, $16,893.80 as per original statement prepared for income tax bureaus. Of that sum, one-half of the amount in excess of $10,000 that is, $4,446.90 was taken by another party as I explained yesterday:

Check No. 451 for $2,500
Check No. 2392 for 1,375
	571.90

For the fiscal year of 1918-1919 and 1919-1920 you can ascertain the exact amount I was deprived of by the following method, i.e., 20 per cent. on the first $25,000, 10 per cent. on each additional thousand, and find one-half of the amount in excess of $10,000 of commissions thus earned.

As I stated yesterday I think the total for those two fiscal years is about $3,000. I will consult my records at the earliest possible moment.

For the year 1921-1922: On the $25,000 Rockefeller contribution made last June as a result of my sole negotiations with Mr. ——, and on $8,000 from Mr. Putnam's subscription there is due on the basis of 20 per cent. on the $25,000 and 10 per cent. on each additional thousand $1,700 as per follows:

Due	$5,800
Rec'd	1,600 by payment to Morris Loan Plan.
	2,500 by direct payment 12-22.
Bal.	$4,100

I devoutly pray that your board's decision may be prompt.

Copies of Other Messages.

"Copy of telegram to Dr. David James Burrell, 1 West Twenty-ninth Street, New York City, dated Jan. 3, 1923:

A desire to continue helpful to you impels me to tell you that events of a drastic character and far-reaching proportions are imminent. I pledge you my co-operation so long as it lies in my power to do so.

Dear Dr. Burrell:

The character and scope of developments since I telegraphed you yesterday prompt me to let you know that I will be about the lobby of this hotel until 2 P. M. or later today. And if you desire a conference with me I will be glad to confer, for I am still steadfast in the desire to have righteousness and justice prevail as a result of my eight months' effort to that end.

I am unwillingly convinced that certain vast and inexorable arms of power will soon take away from us all initiative in that direction. When that time comes I will have the consciousness of having left undone nothing that I should have done.

Cordially yours,

O. BERTSALL PHILLIPS.

"Copy of telegram to Dr. Burrell, dated Jan. 10, 1923:

Progress of impending events justify fear that matter presented to you for rectifying will be out of control after Saturday.

O. BERTSALL PHILLIPS.

Anderson's Statement.

In a formal statement issued yesterday Mr. Anderson said:

"After the froth has been blown off the facts respecting the charges of misconduct and financial irregularity made against me are very simple. First, after being peddled for months, they were exploded at a time when, presumably, they might do the liquor cause the most good. Second, the man, Phillips, who makes them, is a discharged employe, whose standard of ethics is indicated by four items: (1) An attempt to betray the league and divert to other purposes money from persons formerly supporting the league while he was still employed by the league; (2) the wrongful obtaining of $500 from the league, of which he made restitution when caught; (3) the obtaining of $500 from the savings of an old preacher by false statements, which was hurriedly repaid when the facts became known; (4) a demand by him for a large sum of money, under penalty of publicity and attempted criminal action, within a few days after he had signed a release of every claim.

"At least two persons are ready to swear that the witness upon whom Phillips mainly relies stated that he believed Phillips to be crooked. This was prior to the time he gave Phillips the $500, which Phillips paid back after this party was fired and the contents of the books became known.

"There are two charge of wrongdoing. The first is that I falsified the books, which is false and easily proved so.

"The second is that I split compensation for my personal profit. The falsity of this has already been established by formal action of the State Board, which has ratified and approved my action in receiving for the benefit of the league money which I helped an employe earn.

"In addition there are several buncombe 'charges' designed to create a prejudice among the unthinking.

Charges "Attempt to Pillory."

"An attempt is being made to pillory me because I risked everything I had in the world in order to start the Anti-Saloon League work upon a going basis when it had neither money nor credit. I stated frankly to the board that for obvious reasons I could not give details of expenditures, and that if this was required I would forego the claim and lose the money—that I did not want it unless they were satisfied from their knowledge of what had been accomplished that the league had received value. On that frank statement, after investigation, they unanimously recognized the claim because they knew that the work had been done and must have been paid for and that the league had profited in addition to prohibition progress and stronger standing for the league itself, specifically in that its revenues had been increased from a rate of about $30,000 a year for the eight months before I came, to over $200,000 a year (now over a quarter of a million dollars a year), or many times as much increase in one year as the total cost of the entire publicity campaign that made the growth possible.

"The second of these boils down to the fact that when the revenue from the churches and small contributions was utterly inadequate for a winning campaign I took the risk of making an unusual arrangement according to my best judgment in the light of the facts at the time, as a result of which the league obtained in larger sums several hundred thousand dollars which made possible the work that crystallized the sentiment that compelled ratification of the Federal Prohibition Amendment in New York when even our national leaders said it was utterly impossible and at a net cost which amounts to only about 10 per cent. of the money so raised. And further, that when I became thoroughly convinced that the man who helped raise this, although I had to do much of his work, was incompetent and untrustworthy, I fired him summarily and to protect the league ran the risk of false accusations rather than allow the league to be victimized and myself to be made a victim of extortion at his hands.

"The third of these points designed for the unthinking is that after I had unqualifiedly refused it a year previous, the board insisted on paying additional compensation which would increase my pay to an average of $10,000, which, considering their perrequisites, is less than is received by a considerable number of city pastors for work that cannot compare in difficulty and responsibility. I find on figuring up and deducting expenses and cash advances that I have received net from the league since I have been Superintendent in New York a sum a little below an average of $7,500 a year. It is not a question of how I should be rewarded for work. The practical question is whether it is good business for the league to pay me enough to enable me to live on a basis that preserves my efficiency.

"Various attempts have been made in the past to stampede the constituency of the League and they have failed as I am confident this one will fail."

The Rev. Wilbur E. Schoonhoven, Patchogue, L. I., and the Rev. Dr. H. S. Murdock of Amsterdam, N. Y., directors of the Anti-Saloon League, made statements expressing the fullest confidence in Mr. Anderson. Bertram H. Fancher, Treasurer of the league, declared the wets were back of the charges.

ACCUSED IN MISSOURI.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 26.—Federal authorities here tonight began an investigation into the activities of individuals named in a series of affidavits, made public today by the Missouri Branch of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, through its publicity director, James C. Espy, which charged in substance that the Rev. W. C. Shupp, Superintendent of the Missouri Anti-Saloon League, accepted $500 for indorsing an application for a permit for the use of alcohol for manufacturing purposes made by Dr. L. J. Ludwig, President of the Ludwig Remedy Company of 712 North Second Street.

Shupp admitted he wrote an informal letter to W. H. Allen, Prohibition Director for Missouri, but denied that any monetary consideration was involved or that money had been offered for his services in helping to obtain the permit.

ORDERS INQUIRY INTO GEN. HART'S ACTION

"RULE OR RUIN" IS ALLEGED

Spokesman for Civilian Officers in Quartermaster's Row Attacks Chief's Attitude.

Charging that Major Gen. William H. Hart, Quartermaster General of the Army, is pursuing a policy of "rule or ruin" toward the Quartermaster Association, an organization of Reserve, National Guard and Regular Army officers, Colonel Franklin J. Burnham, spokesman for the civilian officers, last night said the War Department had begun an investigation.

Colonel Burnham in a statement at the Hotel Plaza, said he had been informed that Major Patterson of the Inspector General's staff, had been detailed to inquire into the charges made against General Hart. The Quartermaster General was accused of trying to "get" Colonel James Moss, one of the Army's best known officers, through a demand that he resign the editorship of the Quartermaster Review, the official organ of the association's 5,000 members.

The fact that a breach of opinion threatened to cause Reserve and National Guard officers to withdraw and form an association of their own came out early Thursday after a stormy meeting of members at the Seventy-first Regiment Armory. Colonel Burnham traced the trouble back to a meeting in Washington in December, at which officers adopted a resolution criticising General Hart for his attitude.

Charges Rule or Ruin Policy.

"As soon as General Hart was elected National President of the Quartermaster Association," said Colonel Burnham, "he began to find fault with the agreement which the Executive Committee had made with Colonel Moss, doubting its wisdom, questioning its legality, and what not. Everything possible has been done to adjust the trouble, Colonel Moss himself having made half a dozen efforts to talk the matter over with General Hart, offering, for the sake of harmony, to make every possible concession, but General Hart would never grant him an interview, holding that the only possible adjustment was for Colonel Moss to get out.

"It has been suggested to General Hart that he either perform his duties as President of the Association in accordance with the will of the majority of the Executive Committee, or that he resign. However, he has failed to do either, but instead, using the power and influence of his position as Quartermaster General of the Army, which office is separate and distinct from that of President of the Quartermaster Association, he has persisted in his efforts to rule the Association, in violation of the constitution and by-laws. His attitude, unfortunately, seems to be that of rule or ruin.

"In the minds of the members of the Executive Committee there is absolutely no doubt but what the real and true cause of the controversy is that General Hart, for reasons best known to himself, started in to 'get' Colonel Moss, and that the root of the whole trouble is based on personal animus, as evidenced by several things, including the venomous personal attack General Hart made on Colonel Moss at the meeting of the Board of Managers last December, when a resolution censuring General Hart for his attitude in the whole matter was unanimously adopted. It was at this meeting that General Hart publicly made the amazing statement, 'It is an accepted and revered army saying that "the commanding officer is always right," thus enunciating in another form the adage, "The King can do no wrong," or the doctrine of the divine right of kings.'

Fears for Organization.

"There is every reason to believe that a coterie of officers on duty in the office of the Quartermaster General, taking advantage of the organization and machinery of the Quartermaster Corps, are endeavoring to dominate the Quartermaster Association, by what might be called 'invisible influence,' through the 800 regular Quartermaster officers who are members, although there are 3,000 Reserve and several hundred National Guard officers in the association.

"Unless the activities of this coterie of officers are stopped at once by those in authority they will cause a breach between the Regular Army members and the Reserve Corps and National Guard members that will disrupt the Quartermaster Association and kill the fine work the association has been doing to increase the esprit of the Quartermaster Corps and bring about a mutual understanding of helpfulness between the Regular quartermasters and the Reserve and National Guard quartermasters."

TO GREET POSTAL CONGRESS

Measures Are Taken for Hospitable Welcome in Stockholm.

The Eighth World Congress of the Universal Postal Union, now comprising about seventy nations, celebrating the fiftieth anniversary of the foundation of the Union, will be held in Stockholm, Sweden, in June, 1924. This was revealed when the directors of the Swedish Postal Department requested the overnment to submit to the Riksdag a proposal for a liberal appropriation in order to make suitable arrangements for the reception and entertainment of about two hundred foreign guests expected on this occasion.

In connection with the planning for this event, the designs for the two new Swedish postage stamps have been accepted by the Postal Department, after a prize competition in which twelve hundred entries were made. One of these stamps symbolizes Sweden's pleasure in being hostess to the Postal Union, and the other symbolizes the universality of the Union.

The request for appropriation calls for at least 500,000 kronor to be used for entertainment and other expenses connected with the World Congress. No effort is being spared to make the social side of the Congress a success. For example, the Royal theatres and other institutions are expected to cooperate by giving special performances in celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the Postal Union.

TO OPEN FREE TALK SCHOOL

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 26.—Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, wife of the Governor of Pennsylvania, announced today that an educational experiment, under which children would be permitted to talk as much as they cared while in school, would be started soon in the Executive Mansion. The school will open with twelve pupils, among them her twelve-year-old son, Gifford Jr. The children will be instructed how to learn something from the everyday incidents of live as well as from text books.

Mrs. Pinchot said she believed that if a child has the privilege of talking or doing whatever he desired in school he would be more individual and become more self-supporting. She has engaged an instructress, who, however, not only will act as a teacher, but will romp and play with the children.

LARGE PERCENTAGE ENGAGED IN SPORTS

HAMILTON, N. Y., Jan. 26.—Colgate University has 91 per cent. of her student body of 715 men engaged in athletics during the college year, statistics announced today show. The adoption of an extensive minor sport program enabling practically every man to engage in some sport, if he desires, undoubtedly makes the percentage as large as it is.

Leading the entire list is football, which annually engages the attention of ninety-eight men; fifty-five are on the varsity football squad, and interclass football makes up the balance. Closely pressing on the heels of football is track, which, with sixty-one men in varsity track and twenty-three in interclass competition, has a total of eighty-four men. Basketball interests a large part of the student body, especially during the Winter months. Twenty men are on the varsity squad, with forty engaged in interclass basketball. Baseball, which leads all sports in the Spring months, holds the attention of twenty men on the varsity squad and twenty in the interclass games, played only between the two lower classes.

The minor sports, recently adopted, enable men who could not make a major sport team to compete in intercollegiate competition in their special branch of activity. Boxing, the newest sport at Colgate, has thirty men on the squads. Lacrosse leads all the minor sports with thirty-five men and soccer and tennis, with twenty-eight and twelve men, respectively, complete the minor sport groups.

Interfraternity competition in the various branches of athletics takes the attention of the remaining group of men who are not engaged in major or minor sports. Baseball and basketball lead, with a total of 212 men for the two sports during the year, and track, football and golf complete the list with seventy-one men.

THOMPSON WILL QUIT; LUNDIN IS INDICTED

CHICAGO, Jan. 26.—The Thompson-Lundin political machine, which has ruled long at City Hall, received two hard blows today.

One was the announcement in the press this morning that Mayor W. H. Thompson would not be a candidate to succeed himself either in the Republican primary or as an independent at the Spring election. The other was the indictment of Fred Lundin, his ally and former boss, for conspiracy to defraud the Board of Education.

The announcement of the Mayor's withdrawal from the field caused dismay among his followers. Some were very angry over his failure to give them advance notice so that they could get under political cover somewhere else.

There was a general break-up of the Thompson-Lundin machine, while the Deneen, Crowe and Brundage forces stood solidly behind Postmaster Arthur C. Lueder, who has been named as the anti-machine candidate for the nomination for Mayor.

The indictment of Lundin followed six months of investigation by a special Grand Jury of charges of fraud and corruption in the school board. He is named in a blanket indictment which is said to include twenty-five others, whose names have not been made public.

WILLIAM P. GREEN MISSING.

Family of Advertising Man Learns He Was Mistaken About Illness.

A search of hospitals and hotels is being made for William P. Green, director of the work of the National Vigilance Committee of the Associated Advertising Clubs, who has been missing since Monday night. The police of New York and neighboring cities were notified last night. Mr. Green's home is at 114 Harrison Street, East Orange, N. J. He is married and has one child.

Mr. Green's associates, who believe he either is in a hospital or a hotel, issued a circular yesterday, to hotels and hospitals.

He went to his home Monday evening to pack his grip for a business trip to Columbus, Ohio, but did not take the train. He was last seen in the lobby of the York Hotel, on Seventh Avenue, near the Pennsylvania Railway Station at 11:30 Monday night. A friend met him there and he complained of a severe headache, and said he had stopped to rest. An attaché of the hotel later said he was in the lobby for some time, and did not appear to be fully conscious of his surroundings.

His associates say that Mr. Green had neither business nor domestic troubles. He was enthusiastic and happy in his employment, and happily married. He was apparently despondent over his condition of health, though since he disappeared his family has definitely established that the malady from which he believed he suffered, and which was the basis for his fear, did not exist.

The circular issued describes him as 34 years old, about 5 feet 8¼ inches tall, and slender. He has dark hair and gray eyes, and wore a blue suit, brown overcoat, brown soft hat, and horn-rimmed glasses. The circular asks that information be communicated to Carl Hunt, Manager of the Associated Advertising Clubs, or the Bureau of Missing Persons, New York Police Department.

PARIS ROYALISTS TO MASS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 26.—The burial of Marius Plateau, Secretary of the Royalist Organization L'Action Francais, who was shot by an anarchist girl last Monday, will take place tomorrow, and the Royalists have planned a big demonstration. They intend to turn out in full strength, and the police, fearing trouble and possible riots, are taking special measures and mobilizing strong forces to maintain order.

Some extreme politicians on both sides have been exciting their followers so that passions have reached a white heat. The wrecking of the printing plants of Socialist and Communist papers by Royalists following Plateau's murder has not been forgotten or forgiven.

The Socialists strongly proclaim their objection against Royalists parading the streets of the capital of the French Republic. Therefore it is possible that a counter-manifestation may be made, which would likely lead to blows between the parties, of which the majority consists of hotheaded youths.

DAIL DEPUTY IS KIDNAPPED

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DUBLIN, Jan. 26.—A new element in Ireland's troubles arises with the return of Jim Larkin expected soon. He has sent a cablegram to his wife here and she and their four sons anxiously await his arrival. Two of his boys attend college at Rathfarnham. The eldest son is a man of giant build, standing more than six feet. The youngest son is about 10 years old and barely remembers his father.

His family and friends and the Labor leaders are busy arranging a welcome. The arrangements as far as the women workers are concerned are in the hands of Jim's sister, Miss Colgan.

There are speculations as to what side Larkin will take in the present fight, some stating he is a Free Stater, others a Communist and still others believing he will create an entirely new political cult.

The campaign of destruction throughout the Free State has broken out afresh in a most disastrous manner, and the attempt to bring about economic collapse is renewed vigorously. A passenger train from Dublin was held up last night between Castlebar and Westport, in County Mayo. The passengers were ordered out and the train sent at full speed toward a break in the line and completely wrecked. The line is still blocked. Telegraphic communication with the South and West was cut last night and remains interrupted.

Destruction of barracks occupied by the unarmed civic guard was successfully wrought this morning at Dundrum, a few miles from Dublin. Armed men first entered the telegraph office, destroying the communication instruments, and then ordered the occupants from the barracks and set the building ablaze. Similar incidents are reported in many parts of the country.

At Birr, King's County, three men convicted of armed robbery were executed at 6 o'clock this morning. The men were Patrick Cunningham, William Conroy and Colm Kelly of Tullamore.

Joseph McBride, member of the Dail for Mayo, was kidnapped yesterday by irregulars near his home in the West. It is reported that he will be held as a hostage in accordance with the vendetta which is being pursued by the republicans against the members of the Dail and Senate.

Army reorganization order issued tonight indicates important changes in the higher command. General Mulcahy remains as Commander-in-Chief. His chief of staff is Major Gen. McMahon. Commandant General Sean O'Marthille is appointed Quartermaster General, with the rank of Lieutenant General. The army commands have been increased from eight to nine, one of the Western commands having been divided into two, with Major Gen. McEgan and Major Gen. Michael Hogan, brother of the Minister of Agriculture, as the officers in command.

DUBLIN, Jan. 26 (Associated Press).—The plan of reorganization of the Irish Free State Army was announced today. The old brigade formations, under which the men served in their own districts are abandoned, being substituted by a system of battalions and regiments. No regiments have yet been formed, but there will be sixty-five infantry battalions, each numbering 497 men.

The commands are rearranged, becoming nine in number, one each in Donegal, Claremorris, Limerick, Kerry, Cork, Waterford, Athlone, Dublin and Curragh.

The titles of the officers also are altered, the present Commandant Generals becoming Colonels. It is not known whether the officers' commissions will be issued in the name of the King, the Governor General or the President of the Free State Cabinet.

Don't Let That Cold Turn Into "Flu"

Rub on Good Old Musterole

That cold may turn into "Flu", Grippe or, even worse, Pneumonia, unless you take care of it at once.

Colds are merely congestion. Musterole, made from pure oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other simple ingredients, is a counter-irritant which stimulates circulation and helps break up the cold.

As effective as the messy old mustard plaster, it does the work without the blister.

Just rub it on with your finger-tips. You will feel a warm tingle as it enters the pores, then a cooling sensation that brings welcome relief.

GRANT CASE DIVIDES CLERGY AND LAITY

BISHOP MAY ACT TODAY

Moral Issue Must Be Met, Says Living Church Editorial, Assailing Dr. Grant.

Bishop William T. Manning remained silent yesterday, as did Dr. Percy Stickney Grant, but coupled with a hint that the Bishop might move today there came indications that the Episcopal Diocesan clergy and laity were lining up in two groups—liberals, for Dr. Grant, and conservatives for Bishop Manning.

The Churchman, mouthpiece of the liberal element and the oldest religious publication in America, will soon come out "flatfootedly" in favor of Dr. Grant. This was learned authoritatively. The Living Church, organ of the High Church partisans, championing the attitude of the Bishop, scored Dr. Grant severely, in an editorial yesterday.

In line with the divergence of thought on the controversy inspired by Dr. Grant's sermon on the divine power of Jesus Christ, were the views of George Foster Peabody, banker, and the Rt. Rev. Richard H. Nelson, Bishop of Albany. In letters to an Albany newspaper Mr. Peabody sided with Dr. Grant's right to speak freely, while the Bishop aligned himself with Dr. Manning. Mr. Peabody is an officer of the Modern Churchman Union, which aims at liberalization in the churches.

May Be a Parallel Case.

This movement is headed in England by the Rev. H. D. A. Major, Anglican rector, whose threatened trial for heresy will furnish a parallel of accusation and defense if Dr. Grant is ever brought to trial. The ecclesiastical monthly, The Modern Churchman, now edited by the former principal of Ripon Hall, Oxford, has been adopted as the official magazine of the movement launched in this country seven weeks ago.

The Rev. Dr. Roland Cotton Smith, former rector of St. John's Church, Washington—called "the church of the Presidents"—is President of the modernist movement here. He denied yesterday that the organization had officially determined to support the rector of the Church of the Ascension. He added that he did not know the minds of the individual members.

The Rev. J. Howard Melish of the Church of the Holy Trinity, Clinton and Montague Streets, Brooklyn, one of those outspokenly adhering to Dr. Grant, referred to the kinship of viewpoint between the members of the modern church movement and Dr. Grant. Neither Dr. Grant nor Dr. Melish are members of the movement.

"In his reply to Bishop Manning," said Dr. Melish, "Dr. Grant has expressed the intellectual and constructive position of many broad-minded churchmen, not only in the Episcopal Church, but in every Protestant church. The religious liberals will stand behind that utterance with hearty and enthusiastic approval.

"The issue, as now defined, is one more chapter in the century-old contention between the conservatives and the progressives, between the old theology and the new."

The Modernist Movement.

On the modernist movement, and the report that Dr. Grant had won its support, Dr. Melish said:

"So far as I know they have not expressed themselves, but the issue as it is now defined, is one that profoundly affects all that the movement stands for."

This rector and many others refused to disclose whether two presbyters, the number needed to formally file charges to bring Dr. Grant to trial, had yet been found. One clergyman, however, expressed the opinion that "if Bishop Manning wants them, he will be able to find more than two."

"The Churchman," said a clergyman close to the management of the publication, "intends to come out flatfootedly for Dr. Grant on the ground that he has not violated his ordination vows, and that he is simply taking the position recognized by all liberal churchmen today. The whole issue today turns on the fact that the public has begged the question. In other words, the public, not knowing much about theology, thinks that Dr. Grant has said something contrary to the doctrines of the Church. Of course, if that were true, the issue would be entirely different.

As a forecast of the position the publication is to take, this clergyman cited an editorial in the issue out today. This, in part, said:

"We often ponder the problem of just what type of faith in Jesus Christ is held by those persons who walk about the intellectual universe in felt shoes, fearing a jar that may dislodge the planets. Most of all we wonder about obscure clergymen, supposedly trained in colleges and seminaries * * * who smash headlong into print to tell Dr. Grant that he is a person either of questionable morals or a theological mosquito. Just why the public condemns straightforward argument from a man who is sincerely and fearlessly in search of the truth, and applauds the petty mouthings of those parsons who indulge in personal abuse is one of the mysteries of this blithesome world that we hope may some day be made plain to us."

The Case for Dr. Grant.

The case for Dr. Manning, editorially expounded by The Living Church, was put this way:

"If Dr. Grant had been perfectly frank in his repudiation of what he evidently does not believe, there would be some mitigation of his offense. He carefully covers up his negations in order to say by innuendo what he does not say by direct assertion. For honest intellectual doubt the whole world has respect. For this sort of innuendo which characterizes Dr. Grant's utterances one can have nothing but contempt. His carefulness to avoid a categorical denial of the faith such as would be positive rather than inferential evidence against him in an ecclesiastical court may conceivably—we do not say certainly—enable him to retain his rectorship and its emoluments, but one cannot see how it can also be possible for him to retain his self-respect.

"He may assert with emphasis his own beliefs and disbeliefs and presumably be accurate in their presentations. When he assumes on behalf of others a disbelief like unto his own it is a question of fact, and he cannot fail to know that he is asserting that which he could not possibly prove and which runs so violently counter to the moral standards of most clergymen—not, of course, including himself—that, singly and collectively, they would repudiate the allegation as an indictment upon their moral probity if they were named in that connection. Dr. Grant's assertions as to the views of the 'educated classes' put him on a level with the oft-quoted Cockney servant maid in the family of Bishop Lightfoot who, challenged to say whether she believed her master could go to heaven, since he was outside the true church, replied that he would be saved by reason of his 'invincible ignorance.'

Believes Trial a Last Resort.

"We particularly dislike ecclesiastical trials. Of all possible ecclesiastical trials we especially dislike those that are based on charges of heresy. We believe that such trials should be absolutely the last resort when blatant agnosticism or infidelity is continuously preached from the pulpit of the Church after expostulations and entreaties have proved ineffective. But it must be clear that the moral issue of a priest using his official position continuously to preach to tear down that faith which he is sworn to uphold must, in the last resort, sometime be met by the Church. * * * Dr. Grant did not negatively promise at his ordination that he would not repudiate the Church's faith; it was a positive promise that he would teach it. Does he suppose that in such sermons as this he is doing that? Our Crapsey case ought to possess sufficient warning to last for a good many years. But by the time its warning has ceased to be effective, it must probably be succeeded by another. If, still, it be regrettable if Dr. Grant could not see the obvious and only course that is honorably open to a priest who is intellectually unable to preach to the people who constitute his cure of souls the Gospel as it is held by the Church. Certainly Bishop Manning has the sympathy and support of the vast majority in the Church in taking official cognizance of that case."

The modern church movement, which supporters of Dr. Grant believe will eventually back him in his controversy, was launched in England in 1898. Its American counterpart was launched at a meeting nearly two months ago in the Century Club. Dr. Smith was elected President, and the Vice Presidents include Dr. Leighton Parks, Dr. Elwood Worcester, Dr. Russell Bowie, Dr. Frank Nelson, Dr. Carl Grammer, Dr. Edward Travers and the Rev. Dr. Ruth Birckhead. Mr. Peabody was elected Treasurer. The organization was established on a national basis.

Aims of Modern Movement.

Its aims, as announced, include "to maintain the right to interpret the historic expressions of our faith in accordance with the results of modern science and of Biblical scholarship * * * to promote the adaptation of the church services to the needs of the times."

A moderate view of the issues between Bishop Manning and Dr. Grant was expressed last night by Dr. Seldon P. Delaney, associate rector of the Church of St. Mary the Virgin and editor of the American Church Monthly.

"It is well that at such a juncture we should all be on our guard against making hasty accusations of heresy against Dr. Grant or any one else * * * if any one believes that any clergyman has been making heretical utterances it is open to him or to others to bring charges against the clergyman in the proper courts. Properly speaking, no clergyman is a heretic until he has been fairly tried by his peers in an ecclesiastical court, and it has been demonstrated that he has made statements at variance with the official teachings of his Church."

After asking whether freedom of thought was a good thing and whether all should not be left free to work out "what seems to them to be the truth in religion, as in science, and in all other matters," Dr. Delaney continued:

"Freedom of thought is a valuable privilege which we should not lightly relinquish. In fact, throughout the world, except in Russia, every one is free to believe whatever he likes. But the Church exists in the world to teach a definite faith which has come to us from God. Therefore, if any one wishes to be in the Church, whether as clergyman or layman, he limits to that extent his freedom of thought.

"If he wishes to be entirely free from all restrictions he is at liberty at any time to leave the Church. Restriction on freedom of thought, however, does not at all imply compulsion to believe what is irrational—undoutedly there are two radically opposed schools of thought within the Church, and it is well that we should know where the Church officially stands."

GREEK EPIDEMIC LESSENS.

But Red Cross Workers Have Trouble Making Refugees Bathe.

Health conditions are improving among the million refugees in Greece, according to Lieut. Col. William N. Haskell, new American Red Cross Commissioner there, who sent the following message today to John Barton Payne, Chairman:

"If we can keep typhus at bay for another month the worst of the danger will be over. Credit for the present promising conditions should be given to Dr. A. Ross Hill, Vice Chairman in charge of foreign operations. Not only is a temporary crisis being met, but a permanent health program for Greece is being established.

"Bathing and delousing plants are checking epidemics, in spite of the fact that some of the refugees had to be forced to bathe 'at the point of a bayonet.' All refugees are being vaccinated against smallpox and inoculated against cholera in the plague districts. Infectious cases are being isolated. Camps are being made sanitary. Hospital beds and treatments are being supplied."

ARREST THREE AS ROBBERS.

Three of four men who were discharged in the Homicide Court yesterday in connection with the shooting and killing of Thomas (Red) Downie, a gunman, nine days ago, immediately were rearrested and identified as three of the six men who on Jan. 19 last held up the paymaster for C. Kenyon & Co., a Fifty-first Street and First Avenue, Brooklyn, and escaped with a $10,000 payroll.

The arrest came about through the identification of the slain man as one of the bandits. They were taken to Police Headquarters in Brooklyn, where they said they were Thomas Green, 32, of 1,090 Intervale Avenue, the Bronx; Daniel McDermott, 32, of 350 East 123d Street, and Frank Fallon, 38, of 99 Maurice Avenue, Astoria, Queens. They were identified as three of the robbers by Frederick Johnson, the paymaster for Kenyon & Co. They will be arraigned in the Fifth Avenue Court this morning.

MORSE GIVES $20,000 BAIL.

No Date Set for Trial—Counsel Seeks to Have Indictment Quashed.

Charles W. Morse, under indictment with twenty-two others on a charge of using the mails to defraud investors in the stock of the United States Steamship Company, appeared before Federal Judge Winslow yesterday and was held in $20,000 bail. No date has been set for his trial.

Morse and the others were indicted last April. He was out of this jurisdiction until removal proceedings begun in Portland, Me., were won by the Government. Then Morse was held in $20,000 bail to come within this jurisdiction whenever called upon.

Nash Rockwood of counsel for Morse explained that his client need not enter a plea because a demurrer to the indictment had been filed in his behalf, and that a plea in abatement and a motion to quash the indictment were also pending. Among the others indicted are two well-known lawyers and Morse's three sons.

FIND 2 CHLORINE ELEMENTS.

University of Chicago Experiments Change Chemical Theories.

CHICAGO, Jan. 26.—Simple experiments resulting in changing some of the fundamentals of chemistry are before classes at the University of Chicago, it was learned today. Dr. W. D. Harkins and Dr. R. D. Mulligan of the university assert they have succeeded in separating some of the elements of chlorine and mercury.

By passing chlorine through the stems of ordinary smoking pipes they separated this chemical into two elements, whereas it had long been regarded as one, Dr. Harkins states. He explains that mercury was "split" up by evaporation at low pressure and by diffusing it. This established, he said, that mercury contained at least six, and perhaps seven or eight elements.

No Decision in Melius-Dalber Tilt.

Supreme Court Justice Tierney reserved decision yesterday on the application by Mme. Melius, concert singer, for an injunction restraining Jules Dalber, who acted as her manager until last fall, from managing the forthcoming tour of Ganna Walska, wife of Harold R. McCormick. Attorney Nathan Burkan asserted that Mme. Melius broke her contract with Dalber because she was disappointed over bookings, but that after so doing she learned that Dalber was bringing Ganna-Walska to this country and decided to make trouble.

BAKST SAYS PATTI INSPIRED HIS ART

SHRIEKS BROUGHT MEETING

Bit of Intimate History Is Related at Dinner of Women Painters and Sculptors.

At the annual dinner of the National Association of Women Painters and Sculptors at the National Arts Club last evening Leon Bakst confided to the 200 members and guests the reason for the brilliant decorative effects of his paintings. It all came from his love for Adelina Patti, he said.

Mr. Bakst said that his infatuation dates back at the time when he was a little boy in Russia, when he had taught himself to read and write and was very anxious to go to the opera. When his elder brother went he would waken him early in the morning to have the whole story told to him, and finally, he said, it was decided that he should be taken. Mr. Bakst told of being dressed in his little velvet suit, of seeing the Emperor and the members of the royal family at the opera, the brilliant lights, a great crystal chandelier and all the people in beautiful clothes and diamonds.

"Then," he said, "there was great applause, and there appeared upon the stage as beautiful creature with great dark eyes. It was Adelina Patti. It was love at first sight, and I told my father so quite seriously when I reached home and that I intended to marry her. I was taken to the opera again the next week, but something terrible happened. It was 'La Sonambula,' I think, and Patti, robed all in white, drank a glass of water, clasped her throat and fell to the ground. Then there arose the most furious shrieks of a small boy. I grasped the lace of my mother's gown and I begged the theatre doctor, who was in our box, to go and cure the beautiful lady who was ill. He took me into the corridor, but I would not be comforted. Then, to my surprise, I found myself, a little, crying boy, in a room with a beautiful lady with dark eyes. The doctor had taken me to Patti.

"To sooth me, she gaily put rouge on each of my cheeks and made me very black long eyebrows. That way I went back of the box, and there was great trouble the next morning when my nurse tried to wash it off. But it was my early experience at the opera and the influence of the dark eyes of Adelina Patti which gave the trend to my style of painting."

The dinner was an unusually interesting one. Miss Maud Mason was the Chairman, Miss Edith Hatch, the President, presided; John G. Agar of the National Arts Club, where the women painters and sculptors are now to have a permanent home; Dr. Rosalie Slaughter Morton, Charles Curran and Miss Cecelia Beaux were among the speakers.

NEW YORKERS DECRY HARVARD NEGRO BAN

Richards states that the information usually supplied with the names of candidates for overseers gives little or no idea as to their position on questions of policy for the university. He adds that if the position of candidates for this year was indicated on the question as to whether any distinction as to race or creed, either in admitting students or in their treatment after admission, should be made, it would give the alumni an opportunity to record their views on the question. Lois Lawison of the Class of 1912 quotes excerpts from President Lowell's address to show that his ideas then and those expressed in connection with the negro ban are decidedly different.

Roger Sherman Greene, class of 1901, who was a student at Harvard at the time that Roscoe Conklin Bruce, senior, was a student at the university, decries an ominous departure from Harvard traditions of equal opportunity for all.

"Harvard is not meant to be a glorified private school for the socially eligible," he continued, "and the university can never maintain its position of leadership if the administration attempts to discriminate between students on grounds of racial popularity.

"If elements previously strange to our community, elements which are not altogether popular, are beginning to appear at Cambridge in embarrassing numbers, it is because they are now important elements of the American people. We must accept the difficulties involved in our position as a national university or we hall sink to the grade of an insignificant parochial institution."

Ferdinand I. Haber, '08, of New York City writes of his "unescapable conviction that the Harvard of today is not that liberal, progressive Harvard of twenty years ago that we loved."

"Last Spring we learned that anti-Semitism was tolerated in the Harvard Faculty," he said. "Anti-Semitism is always stupid. The way the subject was handled by the university authorities was proof of that. Let this question be frankly answered: Is the Americanism of Harvard today the Americanism of Lincoln and Roosevelt or the Americanism of Henry Ford and the Ku Klux Klan?

UNVEILS WAR MEMORIAL.

Lawyers' Club Receives Tablet of Names From William A. Butler.

A bronze tablet bearing the names of 138 members and four employes of the Lawyers' Club who served in the army and navy during the war was unveiled yesterday in the hall of the club, 115 Broadway, by Mrs. James J. Porter, whose husband died in the service. The other gold-starred names on the tablet are those of Lyman C. Butler and Harry W. Hayward.

William Allen Butler, the founder and President of the club, the father of Lyman C. Butler and the donor of the tablet, presided at a luncheon held after the unveiling. He recalled the part played in the war by members of the club's war committee, whose names appear at the bottom of the plaque, and in formally presenting the memorial said:

"It has been placed here in order that we and those who come after us may not forget how these men went forth to uphold their country's honor, and so that future members will feel that this club has behind it the highest traditions of their country."

Robert C. Morris, who headed the war committee, recalled what it had accomplished in war work. Judge Morgan J. O'Brien, who was Chairman of a subcommittee on plan and scope, accepted the tablet for the club. Among those present were members of the Butler family, Charles E. Hughes Jr., Job E. Hedges, George Gordon Battle and Norman de R. Whitehouse.

No Good Intention Can Be Actually Lost

Life is often for long stretches along shores of drifting sands and it is not easy to keep one's feet and make headway.

The star of good intentions may be hidden now and then with clouds, but suddenly it reveals itself without our looking for it, and we are prompted to take up our deferred work; and more thinking suggests another plan, and new courage comes along and we move forward into more light—remembering that far back in the years we resolved not to turn back or stand still when on a straight road.

The climax of success will surely arrive if we keep life's foundations right.

APPROVES FORD PLAN FOR MUSCLE SHOALS

Senator Norris Attacks Manufacturer's Offer and Gray Silver's Advocacy of It.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—Acceptance of Henry Ford's offer for Muscle Shoals, provided no better offer is available, and conditioned on the actual production of nitrogen for fertilizer at the rate of 40,000 tons a year, as recommended in a special report made to the American Farm Bureau Federation by Bernard M. Baruch; a statement issued by Gray Silver, Washington representative of the federation, asserting that the Ford offer would make possible a reduction of three-fourths in the price of nitrogen used as fertilizer, and an attack on the Silver statement by Senator Norris, Chairman of the Senate Committee on Agriculture, in which he asserted Mr. Silver was trying to deceive the farmers, brought the Muscle Shoals project to the fore again today.

Mr. Baruch's letter, addressed to Mr. Silver, was as follows:

"Pursuant to your request I am handing you a report on the situation relating to the development of a nitrate plant at Muscle Shoals. This report was originally prepared several weeks ago and since then has been rechecked by its author, Leland L. Summers, than whom I think there is no man better qualified to judge.

"Here is the way it lies in my mind. It is the evident desire of all, and in that I include myself, to develop at Muscle Shoals a new source of nitrogen. This would exclude any bids or offers that did not carry an obligation to produce and develop commercially a nitrogen process. This can be done in the following ways:

"1. By Government development. Except as a last resort, I am opposed to this on account of its inherent disadvantages.

"2. By combination of industry either with Government co-operation or independently.

"3. By the Ford development. This apparently is the only offer that has come forward so far from a private source promising development along commercial lines. If no more advantageous offer should be made, the arguments against awarding the contract to Henry Ford would not be convincing.

Wants Ford to be Personally Liable.

"Without commenting upon the terms of the contract, or considering the adequacy of the price, there are certain modifications or clarifications that should be made. Among these is the one made on the bottom on page eight in the letter from the Secretary of War, Document 167, where the Secretary draws attention to the fact that the language contained therein is susceptible of a construction to the effect that Mr. Ford is personally bound only to see that his company enters into the contracts required to carry out the terms of the proposal. All doubt in regard to Mr. Ford's personal liability should be removed.

"The most important thing that ought to be clarified is the following: That Mr. Ford undertakes to make 40,000 tons of fixed nitrogen per year, and if he does not make it the property is to revert to the Government. After all, it is the fixing of the nitrogen that is the crux of the whole contract. I am quite sure that the contract means to cover this point, but it should be made clear.

"However great the pecuniary rewards might be to Mr. Ford, or to any one else who will undertake it, there will be added a contribution of almost inestimable value to the future of American agriculture and the safety of America in time of war."

With Mr. Baruch's letter there was made public the engineering report which guided his conclusions. Best utilization, Mr. Summers said, would come from acquirement of the plant by a group of industries able to develop an industrial centre which would absorb the power and convert the raw material to best advantage of the country in wartime.

"Mr. Ford can make complete fertilizers at Muscle Shoals at a price that will be effective," the engineer declared, "but his immediate possibilities lie in the electro-metallurgical field for which this plant is so advantageously located. The war preparedness feature of the installation can best be preserved by the disposition of the plant to one who could guarantee the production of a minimum quantity of fixed nitrogen. The Ford offer, ridiculous as it is as to price paid for this valuable asset, promises the greatest financial return to the Government and the most efficient war measure of any available plan.

"Whosoever may be handed Muscle Shoals will receive from the Government a vast potential possibility, a tool which may effect the economic rearrangement of the particular industry to which it is applied."

At the same time there was made public a statement by Mr. Silver which set forth that acceptance of the Ford offer would make possible a reduction of three-fourths in the price of nitrogen used as fertilizer.

Norris Attacks Farmers' Spokesman.

"Mr. Silver is trying to deceive the American farmer by injecting into the Ford offer something that is not there," said Senator Norris's statement. "The Ford offer makes no such guarantee and offers no such promise and Mr. Silver knows that the implication he is trying to draw from Mr. Ford's offer is absolutely untrue.

"In prior representations that Mr. Silver has circulated among the farmers of America he has laid stress on what he claims to be a personal guarantee of Mr. Ford, binding the Ford estate and his heirs to carry out the provisions of his offer in reference to the manufacture of nitrogen from the air, and yet, in his very statement of today, where he attempts to back up his own testimony by the report of Mr. Baruch's engineer, it will be noted that this engineer says, 'you will note in Mr. Ford's offer, that the liability behind his proposition is probably limited to his $10,000,000 company.' His personal guarantee does not seem to extend further than this, nor does he commit his heirs and assigns beyond this. There is protection in case the contract is violated, but this protection will evidently be limited to the assets of the corporation."

"Those of us who have opposed the acceptance of Mr. Ford's offer in the past have often been severely criticised and denounced because we said Ford was not personally liable except to the extent that he agreed to form a corporation with $10,000,000 capital. Mr. Silver's henchmen have often condemned members of Congress who have opposed the Ford offer on this ground in particular and throughout the debate both in Congress and over the country it has been loudly proclaimed by the Ford adherents that Mr. Ford's wealth consisting of many hundreds of millions of dollars was bound up by his offer to make good in the manufacture of fertilizer. But now comes Mr. Silver himself, and from his own evidence of his own engineer, it is admitted that Ford has no personal liability.

"Mr. Silver, representing this Ford corporation instead of the farmers who are supposed to pay him, has been instrumental in holding up the work of the Government on the dam at Muscle Shoals, simply because the Ford people have demanded it with the result that the cost of the dam to the taxpayers of America will be greatly increased. It was through the influence of such men as Mr. Silver that the Ford people succeeded in keeping the Government from working on the dam during the last season when the water was low and when the most efficient work could have been accomplished. Their influence was sufficient to induce Congress to suspend operations until the first of October.

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE OPPOSES LONGWORTH

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—Opposition to Representative Longworth for Republican floor leader of the next House was voiced today by Homer W. Tope, Superintendent of the Pennsylvania Anti-Saloon League, in a letter addressed to Pennsylvania members of the House. While it was understood that the Anti-Saloon League had not intended to inject the liquor issue into the contest, Mr. Tope's action is interpreted to mean that the organization will use its influence in various States. The dry members from Pennsylvania have mostly ignored Mr. Tope's request that they refuse to support Longworth. Others have replied that the wet and dry issue would not figure in the choice of floor leader.

Mr. Tope's letter says in part:

"I am informed that Mr. Longworth has always been wet, voting both in the Legislature in Ohio and in Congress against any and every measure that would interfere with the liquor traffic. His record in Congress has been uniformly against prohibition legislation.

"There is no good reason why the Republicans of the House—who by a majority of more than two to one are in favor of prohibition and its enforcement—should elect a floor leader opposed to prohibition and enforcement legislation. Mr. Longworth represents a district which will demand that he use his influence as floor leader against every temperance measure."

SAYS PILOTLESS PLANE COULD BOMB NEW YORK

BOSTON, Jan. 26.—A bombing air service that needs no pilots has been developed, Major Gen. Mason M. Patrick, head of the Army air forces, announced in addresses during a two-day visit here on advances in aviation, among them the "automatic air service."

This has been so highly developed, he says, that even now it would be possible to send a pilotless plane with a cargo of bombs from Boston to New York at a given altitude and on a set course at prearranged speed, which at a given time to correspond with a predetermined place, would discharge the devastating cargo. A whole fleet of airplans similarly might be operated with exactness, all by radio, he says.

Dirigibles to be filled with helium, which will be able to go to the North Pole and back without alighting, are now being planned. They will act as mother ships for airplanes, of which they will carry several each. The airplanes will be caught and held while the dirigible is in flight by a device below the latter, which experiments have proved practicable.

CANADA SUBMITS TERMS.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—Formal proposals for a new agreement covering armaments on the Great Lakes to replace the historic Rush-Bagot agreement, which has existed since 1817, have been submitted to the United States Government by the Canadian Government. Details of the Canadian proposal were withheld today by State Department officials, but the proposition is the outcome of the visit which Prime Minister Mackenzie King made to Washington some months ago, and is being studied carefully by experts of the American State Department.

It is understood that as it now stands the proposal is not entirely acceptable to this Government and it is expected some counter-proposal will be made.

The Rush-Bagot agreement, under which the Canadian and American Governments have for more than a century lived as neighbors without resort to fortifications or armaments on the border, provides for maintenance of one warship on Lake Champlain, one on Lake Ontario, and two on the upper lakes. It restricted these vessels to 100 tons burden each and one cannon of not more than eighteen pounds.

FRAUD HEARING BEGINS.

James W. Elliott, President, and William C. Bentley, Treasurer of the bankrupt James W. Elliott Business Builders, Inc., appeared under summons in the Commercial Frauds Court yesterday in an action relative to publishing false advertisements. The basis of the complaint is a pamphlet written by Horace Sidney Pope while employed by the Business Builders, and alleged to contain false statements and figures relative to the corporation's stock holdings.

The present action was brought by David H. Lehman, attorney for the various creditors in the bankruptcy proceedings that are being heard by Peter B. Olney, 68 William Street, as referee. Possible prosecution is in the hands of Assistant District Attorney Max Soloman. Elliott and Bentley were represented by John J. Curtin. The complaining witness is Mrs. Marie C. Mackie of 472 Central Park West, who alleges she was led to invest in Business Builders' stock through statements contained in the booklet.

Pope testified that the figures and facts questioned were furnished him by Elliott and Bentley. In the complaint charges that the false statements were that the Business Builders claimed ownership of 20,000 shares of Urban Motion Picture Industries, Inc. common stock and 10,000 shares of Carlisle Tire Corporation common stock.

INDIANS SEE PENN RECORDS.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 26.—Dusty records showing the land titles granted by William Penn and his Commissioners in the early days of the founding of Philadelphia have been brought forth at the City Hall in an effort to convince Chief War Eagle and Chief Amos S. Bear of the Oneida tribe of Indians, representing the Six Nations, that a plot of ground in Second Street below Chestnut does not belong to the Indians.

The chiefs, who came here from Wisconsin to establish Indian ownership of the land, contended that it belonged to the Six Nations under a wampum agreement with John Penn, grandson of William Penn, when the former was Governor of Pennsylvania. The wampum belt, they declared, was in the possession of the Oneida tribe at its reservation in Wisconsin.

The records at the City Hall showed that the title to the land was clear and that it was the property of the Keystone Telephone Company. They trace the title from its sale by Thomas Lloyd, James Claypoole and Robert Turner, Commissioners for William Penn, to Robert Greenway on Dec. 18, 1684.

The two chiefs appeared today to be satisfied that under the law there was no chance for the Six Nations to gain possession of the land.

RESERVES DECISION IN CHADBOURNE CASE

GUTHRIE OPPOSES DELAY

Testimony taken in the case of Thomas L. Chadbourne Jr. in connection with charges of unprofessional conduct based on his connection with George J. Gould was submitted yesterday to the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court by the Grievance Committee of the Bar Association, which, through Henry L. Stimson, asked that the Court follow the usual procedure of appointing a referee to consider the charges. William D. Guthrie, former President of the Bar Association, representing Mr. Chadbourne, objected. He said that the thorough airing of the charges over a period of three years had been marked by delays that caused much suffering to his friend and client.

Presiding Justice John Proctor Clark was informed by Mr. Stimson that the Grievance Committee was willing to waive the reference process, and the Court announced that the case would be considered on its merits, without appointment of a referee. The Court reserved decision and directed both sides to submit briefs.

The charges against Mr. Chadbourne, one of the best-known members of the bar, growing out of the receipt of more than $801,000 by Mr. Gould in the form of commission from the buyer of 229,052 shares of stock of the Western Union Telegraph Company included in the estate of Jay Gould, were outlined by Mr. Stimson. The stock was sold at $75 a share, with a bonus of $10 a share. This and other alleged transactions, including deals in Missouri Pacific stock, were described in the action brought by Frank Jay Gould seeking the removal of George Jay Gould as trustee of the family estate. The payment of commissions to George Gould was contested in the action seeking his removal.

Mr. Guthrie asserted that Mr. Chadbourne was entirely innocent of any wrongdoing in connection with legal representation of George Gould as trustee. He argued that his client had placed credence in George Gould when the latter asserted he had consulted with other beneficiaries of the Gould estate, and particularly with his brother, Edwin Gould.

"This is the case of a young lawyer," said Mr. Guthrie, "who in 1909 was associated with George J. Gould in the matter of his legal affairs. Mr. Gould was the acknowledged associate of men of affairs. When, in the organization of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, the Gould estate's holdings of the Western Union were purchased, part of the money paid was in the form of commission. Why? Perhaps for fear that knowledge of the actual price paid, if it came to the public, would cause the price of Western Union to soar. Mr. Chadbourne turned over to Mr. Gould the commission paid, and had a right to assume that whatever money came to Mr. Gould in that transaction would be turned over to the estate. It would have been impertinent for this young lawyer to have assumed otherwise."

Mr. Chadbourne is charged by the Bar Association with negligence and carelessness in not advising Mr. Gould to account to the estate for money received by him as commission.

CHARGE THEY BOUGHT DYED STONES AS COAL

Dealers Cause Arrest of Seller to Whom They Say They Paid $1,400 on 200 Tons.

Charged with delivering 200 tons of dyed stones instead of coal, and accepting $1,400 as part payment for it, Vincent Harris Olsen of 2,075 Bedford Avenue, Brooklyn, was held by Magistrate Ellperin in Adams Street Court, Brooklyn, yesterday in $2,500 bail for a hearing Wednesday on a charge of grand larceny.

Olsen said he was acting merely as agent for the Tidewater Fuel Company of Manhattan. The Tidewater Company went into bankruptcy on Dec. 2 and its affairs are now under investigation. Olsen said he deducted his commission and turned the money over to the company.

The complaint was made by Benino Brothers, coal dealers, of Hicksville, L. I., who charged that on Nov. 8 they made the $1,400 part payment for the coal. When it was delivered an examination disclosed, they alleged, that the "coal" was mostly stone, dyed black, with some fragments of bricks and ashes mixed in.

Russian Red Is Turning Pink

This is the only conclusion that can be drawn from the working out of the new economic policy launched by the Bolsheviki several months ago.

Very little news has come out of Russia during the past six months, although it has been perhaps the most eventful period of Soviet control. Now we know what has been going on—and it is all very enlightening.

The Tribune will publish, beginning to-morrow, a series of articles by a man who has been an eyewitness of the Russian flop from Communism to Capitalism.

He tells how hard-boiled business executives are now turning the wheels of industry, and creating the "NEPS," as the newly-rich are called.

Talks with Lenine and Trotzky—what the factory and mine workers think of Communism—how strong are the Bolsheviki—personal observation of their army operations—what of Russia's future—

World's Second Largest Liner Allocated to United States Lines.

Speculation in American shipping circles as to which line would be selected by the United States Shipping Board to operate the Leviathan, formerly the Vaterland and now being reconditioned at Newport News, Va., was set at rest yesterday when W. J. Love, Vice President and General Manager of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, announced that the big liner had been allocated to the United States Lines. The statement said that the Leviathan would be placed in the service between New York, Cherbourg and Southampton before June 15.

Mr. Love said that the United States Lines concluded negotiations yesterday with the London & Southwestern Railway, which owns the docks at Southampton, for berthing space. The Leviathan will have the same train facilities as the White Star, Cunard and other steamship lines using the port. A commander or chief engineer has not yet been appointed.

The Leviathan was built in 1914 as the Vaterland at Blohm & Voss's shipyard at Hamburg and is 54,282 tons gross, 907 feet 6 inches long and 100 feet 2 inches beam. She is exceeded in size only by the White Star liner Majestic, launched in 1922 as the Bismarck in the same yard as the Vaterland, and which is 56,551 tons gross, 915 feet 5 inches long and 100 feet 1 inch beam.

SHIP CAPTAIN ON TRIAL.

George H. Miles, late Captain of the Shipping Board steamer President Van Buren, was placed on trial yesterday before Federal Judge Winslow on an indictment charging him with the murder of H. G. Baxter, a pantryman, while the vessel was on the high seas.

It is alleged that the defendant struck Baxter a solar plexus blow while the latter was chained to a stanchion in the hold. It also appeared, in the preliminary examination, that Baxter was a drug addict, and that his body was cast into the sea without a post-mortem. It also appeared that Captain Miles, at the time it is alleged he struck Baxter, was under the influence of liquor. The trial will be continued Monday.

$500,000 OFFERED DEMPSEY FOR BOUT

O'ROURKE NAMES BACKERS

Says Stoneham and McGraw Are Behind Republic A. C. in Efforts to Secure Champion.

An offer of $500,000, or 50 per cent. of the receipts, for a world's heavyweight championship bout between Jack Dempsey, the titleholder, and Harry Wills, New Orleans negro challenger of the champion, is understood to have been submitted to Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager, yesterday by Harry Frazee, owner of the Boston Red Sox. The offer was made through Dan McKetrick, Kearns's Eastern representative, by Ike Weber, representing Frazee, it was said. With the offer came a proposition to deposit a sum in the neighborhood of $30,000 as a guarantee of good faith, it was said, but a demand by McKetrick for a deposit of $100,000 checked the progress of the offer.

Neither McKetrick nor Frazee would confirm the reported offer. McKetrick declined to disclose the exact details of a conference he had with Weber on the ground that to do so would bring publicity to Frazee's offer and thus be unfair to the baseball magnate. Frazee refused to discuss his offer in detail, saying that he preferred that any announcement on his proposition come from either McKetrick or Kearns. The Boston Baseball Club owner, however, admitted that he had dispatched Weber to McKetrick's office with an offer for a bout between Dempsey and Wills.

"I have made an offer for a bout between Dempsey and Wills," said Frazee. "That is the only bout I care to be identified with. It is the only match I want. I must refuse to announce the terms of the offer I have made, as it would prefer that they come from McKetrick or Kearns."

Tom O'Rourke, matchmaker for the Republic A. C., which operates at the Polo Grounds, who is also bidding for Dempsey's services in the ring, refused to become excited when discussing the reported offer of Frazee.

"I have been told of Frazee's offer of $500,000 or 50 per cent. of the receipts for a Dempsey-Wills bout and I advised McKetrick to grab it. If anybody is ready to guarantee that sum for the bout I think there should be little time lost in accepting it. I know if I had a champion and received such an offer I'd accept without a second thought," said O'Rourke.

Stoneham and McGraw Named.

O'Rourke announced yesterday that he had the backing of Charles A. Stoneham and John J. McGraw of the Giants in his efforts to land and conduct the series of three bouts for which he is seeking Dempsey's services. This is the first time that a direct assertion has been made by any one connected with the Republic A. C. as to the identities of those behind the venture. John M. O'Connor, President of the club, refused to confirm or deny O'Rourke's assertion. Efforts to communicate with Stoneham or McGraw were without success.

O'Rourke did not submit his proposition for three bouts in which Dempsey would appear at the Polo Grounds next Summer to Kearns yesterday. The Polo Grounds matchmaker visited Kearns's offices at the appointed hour, only to find the champion's manager missing. O'Rourke protested to McKetrick, representing Kearns about the action of Kearns in binding himself to a six-day agreement with Promoter Tex Rickard which prevents the champion's manager from accepting any other offer submitted. O'Rourke favored a plan under which the three bidders for the bout—himself, Rickard and Frazee—would submit their offers, accompanied by certified checks, in sealed envelopes, and have a reputable business man open the envelopes on a specified date. In this way, O'Rourke said, the services of Dempsey could be awarded to the highest bidder.

O'Rourke added that he will not proceed further with his negotiations until next week, when Rickard's agreement with Kearns expires. In the meantime he plans to make an effort to impress upon Kearns the desirability of proceeding with the bids according to the method he outlined to McKetrick. O'Rourke stated he would not consider Luis Firpo, South American heavyweight, or Tom Gibbons, St. Paul light-heavyweight, as rivals for Dempsey in the event he secured the champion's services.

Firpo Only a Novice.

"Firpo is big and strong, but he is a novice and is not entitled to consideration as an opponent for Dempsey in an important match involving big money," said O'Rourke. "Gibbons is not too small, but he would not be a drawing card against Dempsey," O'Rourke added.

The Polo Grounds matchmaker also corrected the published report that he had offered Dempsey $1,000,000 for three bouts. "What I want Kearns to consider is a proposition for Dempsey to engage in three bouts for me on a percentage basis," said O'Rourke. "His percentage will not be 50 per cent. either. You know, the other fellow must receive something for boxing Dempsey. When I made the offer it was estimated the three bouts I had in mind probably would net Dempsey $1,000,000, but I did not offer him the flat sum."

Dempsey and Kearns are scheduled to visit the Poultry Show in Madison Square Garden today and discuss terms for a bout later with Rickard. The promoter would not admit yesterday that he had accomplished anything definite in his negotiations for Dempsey to defend his title, but indicated that when he is ready he will make Dempsey an offer which the champion will accept.

PRO BOXING TO BE BARRED IN AKRON

City Manager Tucker Announces Lid Will Be Clamped Down on Feb. 7.

AKRON, Ohio, Jan. 26.—Because they are "getting worse and worse," there will be no more boxing bouts permitted in Akron after Feb. 7, City Manager M. F. Tucker announced tonight. His ruling was sanctioned by the City Boxing Commission, which may continue to issue permits for amateur shows.

Mr. Tucker said that professional bouts scheduled for Jan. 30 and Feb. 7, may be held, but after that the lid will be clamped down tight for an indefinite time. His ruling, he said, resulted from complaints of fans that there is so little interest in the professional game that promoters have been unable to obtain first class boxers, and that the prices failed to decline as rapidly as the quality of the exhibitions.

BOXING BOUTS TONIGHT.

Rosie Ryan Refuses to Sign Contract Offered by Giants

WORCESTER, Mass., Jan. 26.—Wilfred (Rosie) Ryan, youthful pitcher of the New York Giants, has refused to sign the contract tendered him for this year, it became known today. Ryan returned the proffered contract with a request for more money. He said that while he would make every effort to get the advance that he felt he should have, he was not a holdout to the extent that he had refused to join the club unless his terms were met. In any event, he said, he would go to the early Spring training camp at Marlin, Texas, and there take up his demands if the matter were not adjusted meantime.

SCHOLZ REINSTATED TO GOOD STANDING

Jackson V. Scholz, New York A. C. sprinter who formerly held the Western Conference title, yesterday was reinstated by the Registration Committee of the Metropolitan A. A. U. Chairman Steve Byrne announced the restoration of Scholz's good standing after receiving a satisfactory explanation of the sprinter's failure to appear before the Registration Committee meeting last Thursday night. For this Scholz had been suspended indefinitely.

Requests were made by the Registration Committee to the St. Anselm's A. C., Loughlin Lyceum, New York A. C. and Newark A. C. that the organizations return the prizes awarded them for the Metropolitan A. A. U. half-mile and 2,400-yard relay championship races. The committee has recalled the individual medals in order to reaward the prizes according to the revised order of finish in each race. The St. Anselm's A. C. has been requested to return first medals in each race because of the Registration Committee ruling under which John Barnes and J. F. Mitchell were declared to be ineligible to represent the club in open competition.

The revised order of finish eliminates the St. Anselm's A. C. teams from both races and gives the Loughlin Lyceum team first prize in the half-mile relay title race and the New York A. C. the 2,400-yard title and prize. The ineligibility of Barnes and Mitchell, it was found yesterday, will disrupt the St. Anselm's A. C. crack relay quartet, which had entered the important races scheduled for the Millrose A. A. and Wilco A. A. meets, to be held soon.

HARVARD OUTSKATES TECH.

BOSTON, Jan. 26.—M. I. T. proved an easy match for the Harvard hockey team here tonight, the Crimson winning by 10 to 0. The Engineers were unable to stop the Harvard six, the latter baffling them by their passes. Crosby led the scoring for Harvard with four goals, while Peane played well for Tech. Bigelow, the Crimson goal tend, stopped a mass of shots in the last period, the M. I. T. team making their final unsuccessful rally.

EVELETH REDS DEFEATED.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 26.—The Cleveland hockey team defeated the Eveleth Reds, 3 to 0, tonight in the first of a two-game series in which the lead of the Western Group of the United States Hockey Association is at stake.

Although Eveleth used a five-man offensive during a greater part of the game, the Reds were unable to stop De Barnardi and Stewart, who figured in all of Cleveland's scoring. Each scored a goal single handed, the third resulting when De Barnardi passed the puck to Stewart, who shot it into the net. The teams will play again tomorrow night.

LEE OUTPOINTS EDWARDS.

Danny Lee, Harlem boxer, carried off the decision over Danny Edwards, Pacific Coast negro bantamweight, last night in their twelve-round bout, which served as the feature attraction at the Pioneer A. C. Lee, with a spectacular assault through the closing four rounds, established himself as the winner over his colored rival, and when the decision was announced it met with favor from one of the largest crowds the Pioneer Club has held this season.

A stronger lad than his rival, a more aggressive, effective puncher than the negro boxer, Lee earned seven of the twelve rounds. Two went to Edwards. These were the fourth and the seventh, when he outpointed Lee. In the remaining three rounds—the first, third and eighth—honors were about even. Lee won all the rest by unquestionable margins. Lee several times had Edwards in danger, but the Coast bantamweight proved his mettle by standing up under the heaviest punches of Lee to the final bell. Lee weighed 122 pounds and Edwards 120.

BASEBALL GAMBLING ATTACKED BY LANDIS

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 26.—Commissioner Landis as guest of honor and 425 baseball fans attended a banquet at the Hotel Taft here tonight to celebrate the winning of the Eastern League championship by New Haven and the team's victory in the post-season series with the Baltimore International League champions. Honors were paid to Wild Bill Donovan, former manager of the Phillies and Yankees, who led the New Haven club last season. Landis, who was the final speaker on the program, was not reached until nearly midnight.

Commissioner Landis, in his speech, delivered a bitter attack on gambling in baseball, but made no mention of the draft, although John J. Conway Toole, President of International League, sat only a few feet away from him at the speakers' table.

"There are two menaces which baseball must face without its ranks," said the Judge. "The first is the professional gambler who seeks to corrupt the game and the players with his tainted money. Vile and unspeakable as he is, he is by no means the worst of the two menaces. In pure aliminess the baseball pool has no equal. It takes money from those who can least afford to lose it, and my investigations prove that only 10 per cent. of the total money received is disbursed in the form of prizes.

"I ask the help of all you fans in stamping out this loathsome evil. I promise you that in the remaining five years of my commissionership the gambling evil will be effectively reduced. Baseball can never tolerate a crooked enterprise that derives its strength, its very existence, from the popularity of the national game."

Babe Ruth repeated his pledge to the fans to start a fresh slate next season. He said he was fifteen pounds lighter now and will lose ten pounds more before the beginning of the season.

"I'm going to play my best ball next year," said Ruth. "I'm going to keep in shape and observe all the rules. I know now that when the Judge says something he means it. I'm going to play the game and I'm not going to do it for myself, but for the fans."

Ruth paid a warm tribute to Donovan as a manager, and told of the time at Providence when the Babe pitched eleven games for "Wild Bill" in a month and won nine of them.

Acting Mayor John W. Murphy voiced the greetings of the city to the baseball celebrities to the New Haven players and to Donovan. He introduced Thomas L. Reilly, Sheriff of New Haven County, discoverer of Moolic and Flynn for the Chicagos of 1880, and later manager of the Jersey City club. Alvin M. Owsley, National Commander of the American Legion, told of the love of service men for recreational sport and the value of baseball in the reconstruction period.

Dan O'Neil, President of the Eastern League, reviewed the season, eulogized Donovan, and presented every member of the New Haven team with a gold medal.

Among those who were introduced to the fans were Babe Ruth, John Conway Toole, President of the International League; George Washington Grant, owner of the Boston Braves; Frank Frisch of the Giants, Joe Dugan of the Yankees, Secretary Werner of the Giants, and Mike Eddy, Yale baseball captain.

Colonel Tillinghast Huston of the New York Yankees sat next to Ruth and responded to an informal toast. He praised Donovan and said that such leagues as the Eastern were the backbone of the national game.

BABE ADAMS QUITS AS PIRATE PITCHER

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Jan. 26.—Charles B. (Babe) Adams, veteran pitcher of the Pittsburgh National League club, announced from his home at Bethany, Mo., that he will not appear in a Pittsburgh uniform this season and will retire permanently from organized baseball if he can obtain his release. Adams says he expects to engage in independent baseball at Kenosha, Wis., where he has been offered a four-year contract with the Kenosha club.

Dreyfuss Hopes Report Is Untrue.

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 26.—Babe Adams can play ball with the Pittsburgh Pirates until he is ready to quit the game forever, according to Barney Dreyfuss, President of the Pittsburgh National League baseball club.

"I hate to see a fine fellow like Babe Adams get out of the game," said Dreyfuss, referring to the report from St. Joseph, Mo., that the veteran pitcher had announced his retirement from organized baseball.

"Although he has played a good many years," continued Mr. Dreyfuss, "there is a whole lot of first-class baseball left in him yet, and it was our intention to continue him as one of our regulars. He started the splendid season with the Pirates and there is no reason in the world why he should not finish it with our uniform on in a blaze of glory.

"He is a wonderful character, thorough, conscientious and a gentleman, and one of the best in the game from the minute he put on a playing uniform. Babe is the kind of a man organized baseball cannot afford to lose.

"I hope this report is untrue. Babe has not said a word to me about it."

N. Y. STATE LEAGUE MAY HAVE 8 TEAMS

ELMIRA, N. Y., Jan. 26.—John H. Farrell, President of the New York State Baseball League, formed here last night, hopes to complete a league of eight teams divided equally between New York and Pennsylvania. Franchises were granted to Elmira, Binghamton, Schenectady, Scranton and Wilkes-Barre, and an application received from Utica.

When the playing schedule is prepared provision will be made for the opening games on May 2 and final games on Sept. 9, making a total of 138 games. President Farrell and two other members to be named, will work out the details of the organization. The salary limit agreed upon for players is $3,200 per month per team and the double umpire system will be adopted.

Cities were represented at the meeting by Mortimer L. Sullivan, Elmira; William H. Hecox, Binghamton; A. J. Harahon and Edward O'Hern, Schenectady; James S. Monks, Wilkes-Barre. A communication received from Frank Carney of Utica said the Knights of Columbus of that city would take the franchise in the newly formed league.

May Change Name of League.

AUBURN, N. Y., Jan. 26.—Secretary John H. Farrell of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues and President of the New York State League, announced today that the newly formed New York State League, consisting of Wilkes-Barre and Scranton in Pennsylvania, and Elmira, Binghamton, Utica and Schenectady in New York, may be expanded into an eight-club league.

Application was received today from Rome for a franchise in the new league and is being considered by the league directors. It is possible, however, that two more Pennsylvania towns will be added, in which case the new league will be called the New York and Pennsylvania League.

AMERICAN LEAGUE WILL MEET FEB. 19

CHICAGO, Jan. 26.—The Spring schedule meeting of the American League will be held in Philadelphia Feb. 19, President Johnson announced tonight.

The decision to hold the meeting in Philadelphia instead of here was reached because the annual banquet of the Philadelphia baseball writers will be held on that date, and President Johnson, together with Ty. Cobb and George Sisler, will be the guests of honor. More than 1,000 will attend.

The principal question to be considered at the meeting will be the adoption or rejection of the plan to lessen freakish home runs. Clark Griffith, President of the Washington Club, brought the suggestion to the attention of the club-owners at their December meeing and was regarded with sentiment favorable to the proposition. The National League, however, opposed it, and Commissioner Landis has since stated that he does not favor it, and that it will not be adopted by both major leagues.

It is possible, however, that the American League will act independently. The plan is to restrict home-run territory to anything beyond 315 feet from the home plate. While the plan may appear to be radical, President Johnson said it would not be a handicap on the real home-run hitters, such as Ken Williams and Babe Ruth.

CVENGROS SIGNS CONTRACT.

Southpaw Will Join Giants' Other Pitchers at Marlin.

Mike Cvengros, the stocky little left hander from Little Rock of the Southern Association, sent in his signed contract to the Giants yesterday, making the eleventh player to enroll under the McGraw banner for next season. He has been ordered to report at Marlin Springs, Texas, on Feb. 22, with the other pitchers. Mike was with the Giants at the fag-end of last season and pitched a full game against the Phillies at the Polo Grounds. He held the opposition to a handful of hits, but lost because of poor support. McGraw considers him one of the brightest prospects for the job of assistant to Arthur Nehf in the southpaw division.

WASHINGTON CREW PREFERS 3 MILES

SEATTLE, Wash., Jan. 26.—Appealed to when the Board of Stewards of the Poughkeepsie regatta was deadlocked over whether the rowing classic on the Hudson next Summer should be for three or four miles, the University of Washington decided for three miles.

The vote was taken at a meeting of the varsity oarsmen, the varsity boat club men, Coach Rusty Callow and Darwin Meisnest, graduate manager. It was stated that Washington would have no strong objection to four miles.

Vote Does Not Decide Question.

Preference of the University of Washington for a three-mile varsity race in connection with the intercollegiate regatta will not decide the distance question, even which the Intercollegiate Rowing Association has been deadlocked, it was declared yesterday by Morton G. Bogue, Chairman of the Board of Stewards.

Washington would enter the regatta, Mr. Bogue said he believed, whether the distance were three or four miles. He declared no decision would be reached until the stewards meet in New York again Feb. 15, at which time representatives of Columbia and Syracuse, who favor four miles, will seek to reconcile their views with those of Cornell and Pennsylvania, exponents of the three-mile distance.

SIXTH VICTORY WON BY CHIEF SPONSOR

HAVANA, Jan. 26.—The Canadian-bred racer Chief Sponsor scored his sixth victory of the meeting at Oriental Park this afternoon when he won the Bluejackets Handicap. Ridden by G. Williams, Chief Sponsor set the field a terrific pace soon after the break, winning from Dr. Hickman by a length and a quarter. Belle of Elizabethtown was in close quarters at the half mile, but she was crowded out when the leaders bore over on the inside and she was pulled up at this stage and her chances ruined. The fractional time of the race was 0:22 3-5; 0:46 1-5, 1:08.

In the first race, which called for Cuban-bred three-year-olds, Frank S. and Havana Electric, the Steinhart entry, finished first and second, respectively. They were held at prohibitive odds in the betting. Frank S. raced into a commanding lead soon after the break, and finished under restraint, beating Havana Electric by a length and a half.

Valentine d'Or, the odds-on favorite in the second race, was bumped at the start and running wide was forced to pull up. The jockey closed with a rush, his mount getting on almost even terms with Acosta, the winner.

Different Eyes had to be ridden hard to beat Redmon by a neck in the third event. Redmon set a fast pace from the break; he was five lengths in front of the field rounding the far turn, but in the stretch run tired badly, being beaten by Different Eyes in the final strides.

WORTHMORE WINS THE NURSERY PURSE

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 26.—C. T. Worthington, who had previously shown a couple of promising two-year-olds in the three-furlong dashes for the baby racers here this month, played an ace this afternoon when he unblanketed the chestnut colt Worthmore. This youngster signalled his debut by tow-roping his opponents in the Nursery Purse and covering the three-eighths in 34 4-5 seconds, within a fifth of a second of the Fair Grounds course record, although held under wraps by Jockey Kelsay for the entire distance.

The affair resolved itself into an exhibition of speed. Worthmore broke quickly, shot right to the front, and, racing without a trace of greenness, drew steadily away from his pursuers throughout the entire trip. Kelsay had seen fit to relax his restraint for a part of the distance a new track

RETAINS TITLE WITH EASE

Miss Helen Wainwright, crack young swimmer of the Women's Swimming Association, shattered four world's indoor swimming records for a 20-yard pool last night in successfully defending her title of Metropolitan A. A. U. women's champion 500-yard swimmer. Miss Wainwright made her remarkable performance in the pool of the West Sixtieth Street Baths, where she defeated two rival contenders for the title in hollow fashion. After one of the most remarkable exhibitions of her brilliant career, the young swimmer retained her title by a margin of about thirty yards over Ethel McGary, a clubmate, who finished second, and Miss Doris O'Mara, another W. S. A. swimmer, who was third.

Miss Wainwright swam the 500-yard distance in 8 minutes 35 4-5 seconds, eclipsing the best previous record, held by herself, of 7:04 2-5. On her way to the 500-yard mark Miss Wainwright shattered three records for intermediate distances, displacing the 300-yard, 400-yard and 440-yard records for a 20-yard pool. Miss McGary was the holder of the previous 300-yard mark. Miss Wainwright held the records for 400 yards and 440 yards.

Not since May 19, last year, has Miss Wainwright engaged in so great an exhibition of indoor swimming as she gave last night. It was last May when the champion established her records for 400, 440 and 500 yards in competition at the Y. W. H. A. pool, a month after Miss McGary had registered a new record for the 500-yard distance, in her title test last night Miss Wainwright swam 300 yards in 4:02 2-5; 400 yards in 5:30 3-5 and 440 yards in 6:06. The old 300-yard mark was 4:11. Miss Wainwright's old records for 400 and 440 yards were 5:40 4-5 and 6:15 3-5, respectively.

Wins Title Race Easily.

Miss Wainwright was not pressed to win. She demonstrated from the start of the race that she was superior to the young swimmers who furnished the contention for her title. Miss Gertrude Ederle, rival of Miss Wainwright for the distinction of being America's foremost woman swimmer, was expected to strive for the title, but did not start. In the absence of Miss Ederle, Miss Wainwright proceeded to capture the title for the second successive time without dangerous opposition, despite the desperate efforts of both Miss McGary and Miss O'Mara to overhaul her.

Miss Grace Kahra of the W. S. A. broke into the titleholders' class in another event when she captured the Metropolitan A. A. U. women's junior 100-yard championship after a keen struggle with Miss Kathryn Brown, another member of the W. S. A. Miss Frances Cooney finished third in this event. The race furnished one of the keenest finishes of the season in women's aquatic competition. A blanket would have covered the three at the end of the race. Miss Grace Kahra scored her victory in 1:17 3-5, after a spirited spurt in the closing few yards which gave her the title by a scant margin over Miss Brown.

Miss Marthe Norlinius of the People's Palace of Jersey City scored an impressive victory in a 100-yard swim for novices, in which she furnished a faster century than did Miss Kahra in winning the junior title. Miss Norlinius swam to victory in 1:14 3-5, finished with an advantage of about two yards over Miss Theresa Tsarse of the W. S. A. Miss Edna Gheraty of the W. S. A. was third.

In a 50-yard handicap swim for members of the Women's Swimming Association another close finish was furnished. This event went to Miss Ethel Baker, who was allowed a start of 4 seconds. She was closely followed by the Misses Kathryn Brown and Eileen O'Mara. The time was 30 3-5 seconds.

Miss Florence Briscoe, competing unattached, scored a victory in a handicap fancy diving contest in which Miss Wainwright finished second. A handicap of twelve points proved the undoing of Miss Wainwright in this event. Miss Briscoe made good use of the allowance and won with a total of 111.2 points. Miss Wainwright's total, from scratch, was 101.5 points. Miss Brown finished third.

The summaries:

U. women's junior championship)—Won by Miss Grace Kahra, Women's Swimming Association; Miss Kathryn Brown, Women's Swimming Association, second; Miss Frances Cooney, Women's Swimming Association, third; Miss Gertrude Kahra, Women's Swimming Association, fourth. Eight American Women to Play in Wimbledon Tennis

Present indications are that eight women lawn tennis players will represent this country in the so-called world's championships at Wimbledon, England, late in June. Among them will be three players from this city, Miss Eleanor Goss, Miss Martha Bayard and Miss Florence Ballin, the two latter being among the first ten players and Miss Goss a former member of the first ten. Miss Goss, who is now in California, plans to sail on the same boat with Miss Leslie Bancroft and Miss Eleanora Sears of Boston on March 30. Miss Ballin and Miss Isabella Lee Mumford of Boston sailed for the Mediterranean last Saturday and both expect to play at Wimbledon. Miss Bayard, with Miss Katherine Gardner of Boston, is now on the Mediterranean, and both will stay for the Wimbledon event. Miss Edith Sigourney of Boston is at present in England. Mrs. Molla Mallory, America's foremost woman player, who is to compete in the Riviera tournaments, has stated that she will not remain for the Wimbledon tourney. There is hope that she will change her mind, but even if she does not Miss Bancroft, who ranks next to her, and the seven others named are expected to make a creditable showing.

In the afternoon, the local expert was victor by 50 to 33 in 71 innings, having a high run of 5, while Gillette's best inning netted 4. The evening game was long drawn out, as a result of much safety play, and it consumed 111 innings. But it was highly exciting down to the last tally of a score of 50 to 40. Gillette led at 43 to 44 and they were tied at 48 and 49, Moore finally winning by connecting on a difficult bank shot.

PRINCETON QUINTET LOSES TO CORNELL

ITHACA, N. Y., Jan. 26.—Cornell furnished the sensation of the Intercollegiate Basketball League race here tonight by defeating the championship Princeton quintet by a score of 26 to 18 in a hard played and exciting game in which the Ithacans broke up the Orange and Black's passing game in the second half and compelled the Tigers to resort to long range shooting.

As a result of its defeat Princeton dropped into second place in the league race. The Tigers now have a record of three victories and one defeat for a percentage of .750. Yale is undisputed leader with two victories and no defeats. Cornell remains in third place, but has a percentage of .667 with two victories and one defeat. The Ithacans' one setback was sustained at the hands of Yale.

The Cornellians were on their toes from the start of tonight's contest, assuming a five-point lead before Jefferies dropped the first ball into the net for Princeton, but the Tigers came right back and tied it up only to have a foul goal by Luther give the Ithacans a 6 to 5 lead at the half way mark.

Opening the second half Princeton went ahead on Loeb's goal, but Wedell came back with a goal for Cornell. Kiaess and Loeb gave the Tigers another momentary lead about the middle of this half, but then Captain Jimmy Luther, the outstanding figure of the game, came through with four goals and two field baskets, which gave Cornell a commanding lead.

The teams were even all on field goals, making eight apiece, but Luther's great work on the foul line, where he scored ten out of fourteen tries, was decisive. Luther also made four field goals.

BUTLER HANDBALL VICTOR.

Edmund W. Butler of the Crescent Athletic Club displaced Murry Vernon of the same club as New York State champion in one-wall handball last night. Butler defeated Vernon in the final round of the State A. A. U. tournament on the Crescent courts. The scores were 9-21, 21-11, 21-7, 21-14.

Vernon defended his laurels vigorously but was forced to yield to the superior power of Butler's hitting. The new champion packed a severe punch in either hand and he frequently outmanoeuvered Vernon in position play. Vernon hit hard with his right hand but his left-hand returns were defensive and Butler showed good judgment in keeping the ball to his opponent's left at every opportunity. Butler's fast and well placed service constituted one of the biggest factors in his favor.

Butler has been the champion at the Crescent A. C. for several seasons, but this was his first appearance in an open competition.

PRINCESS SONIA IS BEST DOG IN SHOW

Captures Highest Honors in Annual Exhibition of American Pomeranian Club.

Champion Starbright Princess Sonia of the Radiant Kennels, owned by Miss Melva S. Proctor of Wenham, Mass., was selected by Charles G. Hopton, the judge, as the best specimen of the Pomeranian presented for his judgment at the thirteenth annual specialty show of the American Pomeranian Club, held yesterday in the roof garden of the Hotel Waldorf-Astoria. The daughter of Champion Sable Sun-Manola, a little more than 3 years old, an orange sable, made her only appearance in the ring when the winners were paraded for selection of the best in the show, and she defeated the winners in the regular classes. Best of opposite sex was awarded to Fall Mall Riverleigh Prince, owned by Mrs. Vincent De Meo of the Bronx, which had carried off winners over the best in the dog classes.

A very good entry list came under the critical eye of Judge Hopton, and while it did not approach in numbers the record entry which greeted him in 1912, he found the quality more level. There were no outstanding specimens, while there were far fewer in the selling-plate class. One of the features of the exhibition was the victory of Blue Jean, owned by Mrs. M. B. Brooks, which came through the limit and open classes for blues, and then went on to take winners over the best of her sex in the regular classes. She was considered a remarkable blue, and won over Mrs. Frank T. Clarke's Fairfax Enchanter, which was placed in reserve.

The best contest was in the dog classes, in which winners was carried off by Mrs. De Meo's Fall Mall Riverleigh Prince, a black over the orange dog Amhard, owned by Mrs. Edith Moorcroft of Sea Cliff, L. I. Many figured that the orange, with his profuse coat, would gain the award, but he lacked the cobbiness of the winner in the estimation of the judge, and lacked also in the texture of his coat. It was a real race, however, and the decision was close.

TENNIS COMMITTEE HEADS ARE CHOSEN

Committee chairmen to direct the various branches of tennis activities in the metropolitan district and in the State were named last night at a combined meeting of the Executive Committees of the New York State and Metropolitan Lawn Tennis Associations held at the Waldorf-Astoria and presided over by Jones W. Mersereau, who is President of both bodies.

Among the most interesting appointments were those of Holcombe Ward to head the special committee in charge of intercollegiate tennis in the metropolitan district and of George Sicard of Utica for the committee on intercollegiate tennis up State. The fostering of intercollegiate competitions is a new undertaking of these bodies. One tournament confined to colleges in the greater city and another to the up-State institutions are among the possibilities of a campaign designed to raise the standard of play and bring wider recognition for the sport among major activities at the colleges.

Walter L. Pate heads the committee in charge of all metropolitan championships, while Stewart Raleigh of Syracuse occupies a similar position on the committee which will have to do with the State championships.

Umpires, Rev. H. Dwight Interclub Matches, A. J. Cawse; Membership, Charles S. Landers; Tournament and Rules, Royal D. Richey; Schedule, Jones W. Mersereau; Ranking, Louis Carruthers; Public Parks Tennis, Edward C. Conlin; Metropolitan Championships (including both clay court and turf), Walter L. Pate; Junior and Boys' Tennis, Thomas C. Richards; Intercollegiate Tournament (for metropolitan district), Holcombe Ward; Intercollegiate Tournament (up State), George Sicard, Utica; State Championships, Stewart Raleigh Syracuse.

Greenleaf Willing to Meet Taberski for Billiard Title

Greenleaf was communicated with over the long distance telephone in Detroit and declared that he was willing to meet Taberski under any reasonable conditions Taberski may insist upon. This is the result of an offer made by Charles Kline of the Strand Billiard Academy, guaranteeing the players $2,000 with the privilege of 75 per cent. of the gross gate receipts for a match to be played in this city prior to April 1.

LORD DEWAR'S BIRDS STILL LEAD BANTAMS

The interest in the Madison Square Garden poultry show has become so keen that Harvey C. Wood, director in charge, has decided to keep the exhibits in place until 10 o'clock tomorrow evening. The original plan was to close the show at 6 o'clock, or shortly after, but public interest has been so great that the management decided yesterday to continue the show to the last possible minute. This will give many poultry fanciers who have not had time to attend the show during the week an opportunity to inspect one of the largest and finest exhibits of poultry ever brought to New York. In making the announcement yesterday Director Wood emphasized the fact that none of the exhibits would be removed until after the doors had been finally closed.

A check of the awards in the bantam classes yesterday disclosed the fact that with a few classes still unjudged Lord Dewar's birds were leading all others in this variety. At the time the check was made the Dewar exhibit had won 49 ribbons and 23 of them were firsts.

In connection with this check on the bantam awards it was disclosed that exhibits in the bantam class had increased 100 per cent. over last year and that there were 30 per cent. more than there had ever been in the history of the show. The chief increases is among the gold and silver seabrights. There are several bantams being shown which are valued at prices rangang from $300 to $500, all of which augurs well for the future of this breed in America.

Black Prince Worth $500.

Five hundred dollars looks like a big price for a bird as small as a bantam, but there is an even smaller bird on exhibition for which that much has been paid. This is Black Prince, a magpie pigeon, belonging to Douglas G. Ogilire of New York City. Last year when Secretary Orr of the Madison Square Garden Poultry Show Association went to England Ogilire gave him $500 to spend in pigeons. Orr failed to live up to the letter of the contract, spent the money in pigeon instead, and brought back Black Prince. When he saw the bird Ogilire was delighted, and thousands who have seen the solid black fellow preen himself at the Garden during the last few days have felt that perhaps $500 was not so much to spend for a single bird after all.

A surprise developed in the judging of the black-breasted red game bantams yesterday when Lord Dewar's entries of this strain were beaten by John Filkin's birds from Cedar Grove, N. J. Filkin was the original importer of this strain in the United States and has shown these bantams at every one of the thirty-four poultry shows held here.

An interested visitor at the show yesterday was Jess Willard, former heavyweight boxing champion. Willard was a chicken raiser on a large scale and displayed a real and understanding interest in the exhibition. He was particularly pleased with the game cocks and was photographed with one tiny scrapper. Tex Rickard was present and offered to match Jess and the fiery little game bird, but the plan fell through when it was discovered that Willard couldn't make the weight.

Hens Not Laying Well.

It was discovered yesterday that the hens were not laying so well at the show this year as last. At the 1922 exhibition the hens produced five cases of eggs, which were turned over to the Salvation Army by the show management. This year only ten dozen have been produced. This development started an investigation.

One expert advanced the theory that the hens were shell shocked. The street in front of the Garden is being improved and there is a great deal of blasting going on. This explanation gained credence when the expert pointed out that all the hens which were producing eggs were in the back of the Garden, further away from the blasting and its attendant excitement. The discovery threw an interesting sidelight on the psychology of the hen.

One of the most interesting exhibits in the show is a big Toulouse gander, the property of the Forest Farms of Rochester, N. Y., a first prize winner and the largest goose which has ever been exhibited at a poultry show in this section of the country.

In the intercollegiate judging first honors went to Pennsylvania State College. A cup, which must be won three times in succession for permanent possession, goes with this championship. A team from Storrs Agricultural College, in Connecticut, was second. The Storrs team has won the cup once. The others finished in the following order: Virginia Agricultural College, Massachusetts Agricultural College and North Carolina Agricultural College.

The judging consisted of eight classes of chickens, four to be judged on points and four for their laying proclivities. The best individual judging was done by P. T. Kistler of the Penn State team.

Major Nicholson Will Have Team in Harness at Montreal.

Major Nicholson said that if the moose took kindly to civilization and civilization to them, he would exhibit them in New York and other United States cities.

WILLOUGHBY IS VICTOR.

Special to The New York Times.

PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 26.—Hugh L. Willoughby Jr. of the Merion Cricket Club, Philadelphia, continued the pace he set throughout his match play in the Lake Worth Golf Tournament this week and won the final round from A. A. Carroll, of the Oshkosh Country Club by one up today. Willoughby took the lead on the second hole and was never headed. He was four up at the turn, but Carroll cut down this lead by brilliant play.

Russell C. Love of Johnstown, Pa., beat Horace H. Work of New York City, 4 and 3, in the second flight final. And R. S. Vinton of New York beat Joseph C. Hutchison of Boston, 4 and 3, in the third flight.

Leo Diegel today made good his threat to break the Palm Beach Country Club course record of 64, made last year by Walter Hagen. In a four-ball match with Alex Ritchie, Palm Beach pro, Chris Dunphy, and Edward McClean, he negotiated the 18 holes in 68, four strokes less than par for the course.

MR. M'KENNA ON DEFLATION.

People who recall the illuminating statement on the interallied debt question, made last Autumn by REGINALD MCKENNA of the London Joint City and Midland Bank, are likely to read with perplexity the cabled report of his address on "deflation" at the bank's London meeting last Thursday. The very first statement of his position shows the obscurity of the reasoning. Deflation, Mr. MCKENNA told the London meeting, has no more to recommend it as a national policy than inflation. What is wanted is "stability in the value of money"; which can hardly have any other meaning than stability of prices at or around an unchanged level. But Mr. MCKENNA wholly dismisses from mind a situation in which correction of past abnormalities in the field of prices is unavoidable, and the consequent implication of his statement is such as to lead to absurdity.

Naturally, he can not and does not deny the monstrous scope of the war-time inflation of currency and credit, whose permanent continuance was made impossible, not only because Governments ceased to put out irredeemable paper money to meet war expenditures, but because the abnormal demand for staple goods for war purposes suddenly came to an end. But although not denying these familiar facts, he ignores them. That prices under purely artificial and temporary influences had gone to preposterous heights he does not accept as implying readjustment on return to normal conditions. On the contrary, deflation will be an evil equal to, if not greater than, the preceding inflation. The "stability" for which Mr. MCKENNA argues must assume perpetuation, with the connivance of banks and Government, of the very economic conditions which the war had caused. The teaching of economic history is that such perpetuation of a state of inflation is impossible under any circumstances.

With the enormous propelling force of Government's war-time use of credit removed, there is nothing left to sustain the artificial structure except equally lavish use of private credit. But to assume permanent results from that expedient is to assume that any extravagant movement in the credit market—the "boom" of an 1837, an 1872 or a 1906—might equally have been perpetuated if the banks had kept on lending ever-increasing sums. The experiment was fairly tried in 1919; when, as Mr. MCKENNA surely ought to know, it broke down, not because of a sudden overnight adoption of a "policy of deflation," but because the resources of the lending banks were overstrained and because millions of consumers cut down their purchases of goods to the smallest practicable minimum.

It is Mr. MCKENNA's ignoring of the basic economic facts of 1919 and 1920 which particularly calls for comment. From first to last, like GUSTAV CASSEL and the somewhat scatter-brained critics of our Federal Reserve, he assumes the existence of a deliberate policy of forcing down prices. In 1920 and 1921, we are told, "the United States adopted deflationary methods, in concert with our own financial authorities." We are not enlightened as to what that deflationary program was. In his speech at the same bank's annual meeting a year ago, Mr. MCKENNA appeared to argue, though with some obscurity, that the advance in the Bank of England's rate from 5 per cent. to 6 and 7 was the machinery deliberately applied to break down prices. He is a practical banker, yet he made no reference to the fact that, just before the 6 per cent. rate was fixed in 1919, rediscounts at the Bank of England had risen £60,000,000 in two months, or that the ratio of reserve to deposits had fallen 10 per cent. in a month, to an abnormally low figure.

The Bank of England's policy under such conditions had been fixed by more than a century of experience; it was followed precisely in the bank rate changes of 1919, 1920 and 1921. It can hardly be unknown to Mr. MCKENNA that when the New York Reserve Bank advanced its rediscount rate to 6 per cent. in January, 1920, its ratio of cash reserve to deposits and circulation was 38½ per cent., or below the figure stipulated by the Federal Reserve law, and that this position had been brought about not only by heavy decrease in reserve but by the abnormally large increase in rediscounts for private banks. One cannot help wondering whether MCKENNA himself—a trained banker, ex-Chancellor of the Exchequer and Chairman of the greatest London joint-stock bank—would have acquiesced in these advances of the bank rates had he been on the boards of directors, or whether he would have stood out against any such action and for letting the impairment of the banks' position continue, on the ground that thereby the "financial policy of deflation" might be discountenanced and "stability in the value of money" insured.

NO BOYDEN MYSTERY.

The letter which Secretary HUGHES sent to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, with the accompanying documents, pricks a huge bubble of gossip and mystification which Senators had for some time been blowing. Who was this man BOYDEN? The assumption of some was that he was only a dubious official left over by the Wilson Administration to embarrass President HARDING. Who appointed him? Who paid him? What had he done except to implicate our Government in affairs which do not concern it? These and other questions had been mightily disturbing the peace of mind of Senators, who felt that they could not long hold their peace, but would be compelled to attack the Administration in open Senate unless their hunger for information about Mr. BOYDEN were allayed.

Secretary HUGHES sought to allay it by a plain tale putting down all the exaggerated rumors. It is true that Mr. BOYDEN was first appointed by President WILSON, but on Feb. 19, 1921, the outgoing Administration withdrew all our unofficial observers abroad. Yet the new Administration soon found it desirable to have a representative in touch with the Reparation Commission, and accordingly on May 6, 1921, again designated Mr. BOYDEN to attend meetings of the Reparation Commission as an unofficial agent of this Government. Mr. HUGHES explains convincingly the need and benefit of such services. Without them this Government might have been left in ignorance of discussions and decisions by the Reparation Commission of vital interest to this country. The cost of maintaining Mr. BOYDEN at Paris has been slight. The value of his work has been great. All this the Secretary of State sets forth in a lucid and convincing manner.

That he will succeed in persuading or silencing the unconquerable critics of the Administration in the Senate is not to be expected. Mr. HUGHES was writing for reasonable men, not for those eaten up with prejudice and suspicion. But he has certainly succeeded in dispelling the great Boyden mystery. The Senatorial imagination will now have to create another one.

ANOTHER ELDER STATESMAN FALLS.

Mr. WILLIAM HALE THOMPSON has been Mayor of Chicago since 1915. His renown has spread over the country. It was supposed that he would be a candidate for a third term. Surely here was a statesman fated to survive the war, in regard to which his record was so noble, to overcome the reactions of the peace and to continue triumphantly his beneficent labors. Chicago was not worthy of him. He will not seek another re-election. He was late in coming to this cruel decision. He had his primary petition sheets printed. "They are to be circulated," said The Chicago Tribune on Wednesday, "and the petition probably will be filed." They were to be ready for the weekly meeting of the ward leaders.

Was their report on the reception of his "pledge cards" unfavorable? There has been a surprising amount of wavering and hesitation in the course of this granite character. One day he was all for running. The next day he was all for not running. At last the "Nots" had it. The primary will not be held until Feb. 27, but the Republican opponents of THOMPSON and civic righteousness have done their evil work early and well. Ten days ago the three independent Republican factions united upon Postmaster LUNDIN as the Republican candidate for Mayor. The Democrats are united upon Judge WILLIAM E. DEVER.

Remembering the mutual testimonials of approval between Mayor HYLAN and Mayor THOMPSON, remembering how largely Mr. THOMPSON's hopes depended upon the support of Mr. HEARST's Chicago emanation, it is painful to record that Mr. HEARST approved the candidacy of Judge DEVER. A generous spring of Thompsonian propaganda was thus dried up. Apparently this sad desertion quite vanquished the hitherto indomitable Mayor. So "a five-cent fare" and "people's ownership," the Jachin and Boaz of Mr. THOMPSON's Temple of Truth, lamentably fall down. Yet let us not be wholly inconsolable. While not a candidate, Mayor THOMPSON "will take an active part in the campaign." He refuses eclipse but consents to penumbra.

THE AMERICAN FAREWELL.

There is no doubt that, whatever the Americans thought of it, the sailing of the St. Mihiel, while the bands played the national airs, was fraught with sadness for the Belgians and for the little groups of French and British on the dock at Antwerp. The last tie that bound the Allies together seemed to have been severed. It was farewell to America. Onlookers could not but contrast the gallant bearing and the high hopes of the soldiers in khaki who arrived in France to win the war and "save civilization" with this recall and departure. The soldiers had done their work well, but the statesmen had undone much of it. Every honest Englishman and every loyal Frenchman who read of the ceremony of the flag coming down at Ehrenbreitstein forgot for the moment the mistakes of public men and thought only of what the Allies owed the American army that fought so splendidly at Cantigny, Chateau-Thierry, Soissons, in the St. Mihiel advance, and through that nest of machine guns, the Argonne Forest.

The achievement and the glory are for all time. History will say that the American invasion decided the war, and the controversies about who won it will die down. Nothing could be finer than this nation's intervention. It was a crusade for liberty. America was ready to stake her all, the lives of her sons, the accumulation of her treasure. That moment of exaltation and sacrifice will never be erased from human memory, though there be many on both sides of the Atlantic who think of it coldly now. The truest thing said about the departure of the Americans from Coblenz was uttered by Colonel REPINGTON. It was for France and Italy as well as for England that he spoke:

> No matter what happens, the remembrance of this great American adventure, the recollection of the whole-hearted co-operation in a war fought for right and justice and the memory of all those fine fellows who made light of their difficulties, as they did of danger, will never be effaced from our minds.

WHAT IS HOME RULE?

Governor SMITH's reply to Mr. EVERETT P. WHEELER, who, in a letter to THE TIMES, asked what matters are "wholly local" and so to be settled by municipalities under "a greater grant of power by the State," doesn't get us any nearer the heart of that mysterious and elusive "political principle," as the Governor called it in his message, home rule. The Governor merely gives one dogmatically asserted instance, the construction of subways. If New York were a self-subsisting community, dissevered from the State and the United States on some distant Atlantic island, that might be true. New York is so bound up with the State, it is so inseparably a part of the whole, that its transportation system can't be regarded as "wholly local."

Mr. WHEELER had properly said that when the citizens of this city are dissatisfied with the local officials they should have, as they do have, the right of appeal to the Legislature. "That is not right," according to the Governor. Well, a great many people, the firemen, for instance, the police, the school teachers, don't agree with him. Moreover, the persons most devoted to the theory or "political principle" of home rule are perpetually disagreeing among themselves as to its application. As Governor MILLER said last year:

> Most of the people that are clamoring for home rule are up here beseeching the Legislature to pass laws and me to sign them, violating the principle of home rule.

The Legislature of 1921 passed a home rule amendment. Governor SMITH told the Legislature of 1923 that "if, in your judgment, this amendment accomplishes the purpose, it should promptly pass. If objections raised against it are of a minor nature, it might be well to pass it anyway and then start the legislative machinery again looking to further amendment that will cure any defect to which any real adjustment has been made." Home rule is so important that any measure, although defective, to confer upon municipalities the Great Secret must be encouraged. It has just been discovered at Albany that the amendment would not give home rule. So difficult is the formula.

The recent State Conference of Mayors recommended the abandonment of the proposed home rule amendment and the preparation of one "which would give the cities a broad grant of general powers," and so on. It is noticeable that the power to run city buses is yearned for by all the home-rule men. In this town the virtues of the bus as a political vehicle are well known. It is noticeable, too, that the home rulers are always eager to have the city engaged in doubtful, costly or impossible enterprises. Home rule here means reckless and financially dangerous business activities of a municipal administration chiefly interested in politics. It is a political cry, not a "political principle." And nobody knows just what it means.

THE FRENCH PLANS.

It has frequently been said during the past few days that the French plans for the occupation of the Ruhr have completely broken down. One English correspondent in and out of Düsseldorf has explained that they were faultily conceived, and that the French, moreover, have been very "clumsy" in executing them. Let this tribute from a nation always noted for tact and delicacy pass for what it is worth. But what the real hopes of the French were, what the purposes they entertained, can be found better than anywhere else in their notification to the German Government on the eve of the advance into the Ruhr.

In it, it is true, the French Government declared that it had no thought of a military movement, nor of a political occupation. It was simply sending into the Ruhr a technical mission with defined aims. Troops were to accompany it only as a guard, and in order to guarantee the execution of its orders. Then followed the assertion: "No disturbance, no change "whatever, will be wrought in the "normal life of the population, which "will be able to keep on working with "order and serenity." At this point comes the charge that the original French plan had to be changed. But the change was forced by the attitude of the German Government and of the people in the towns of the Ruhr, and this very possibility was foreseen and provided for in the French notification of Jan. 10. Its final sentence gave warning that if in any way whatever the work of the French mission was opposed or hindered by the local authorities, or by the action, or the refusal to act, of the German people directly concerned, "all measures of coercion, and all sanctions, "held necessary will be immediately "applied." Thus there was, indeed, a change of the plan as it was tried on in the first few days, but it was a change which the French from the first perceived might be necessary, and of which they gave due notice in advance.

THE FAIR NAME OF HOLLYWOOD.

Mr. HAYNES of the prohibition service and Colonel NUTT of the anti-narcotic bureau have been looking over Hollywood, and report that it is no worse than most other places. According to one version, they found that it was "bad enough, but not so bad as reported." That verdict would fit the entire universe. The stories of "orgies" have been greatly exaggerated, as some readers have all along suspected. But we fear that this testimony won't do Hollywood much good. The great American people loves its myths and legends. It has become convinced that Hollywood is a scene of iniquity, and it will remain in that conviction. Preachers and amateur reformers will continue to explode about orgies; and it must be confessed with shame that a good many newspaper men will forget Mr. HAYNES's report while they still remember that "Dope Probe Looms" fits well into a headline.

Hollywood will keep its evil repute, and so will Greenwich Village. The moral element of that part of our city is out on another clean-up and has hired a professional reformer from out of town to supervise it. Yet Greenwich Village has changed greatly in the past few years, and certain unsavory rumors connected with recent events there suggest that though a cleaning-up is desirable, the café keepers do not need it so badly as some other persons. Probably the Village isn't wholly pure; no village is, not even Winesburg, Ohio. But the great public will never believe that it has been purified at all; the moral citizen will always thrill with conscious rectitude when he reads about a "raid" in the Village.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Brooklyn Has a Mystery.

Quite the most puzzling thing revealed by Thursday evening's raid on a meeting of a Ku Klux Klan in Brooklyn was the apparent respectability of the men arrested—the fact that some of them are holding positions of responsibility in reputable business houses and therefore might be expected to have at least average intelligence as well as average regard for the laws and institutions of their country.

What their employers and associates will do and say to these strange products of American education remains to be seen, but their continued affiliation with an organization, with which, after its nature is known, no good citizen can have any relation except that of hostility, shows that there is something amiss in their mental or moral make-up. And nobody, now, can claim to be ignorant of what the Ku Klux Klan is. It has come to its fine and perfectly natural and inevitable flower in the little Louisiana town of Mer Rouge. To be sure, the Klansmen there, as yet, have been only accused, not convicted, but that requires a suspension of judgment only as to individuals.

The testimony given has left no question as to the conditions which the Klan creates when it has the power—the conditions which it certainly will create wherever its ambitions are backed by the strength required for achieving them. Yet some seventy-five Brooklyn men gather by night, in secret, under a name intended to deceive, and—do what? Deliberate about what?

The police, who had detectives at the meeting, chose to make their arrests, not for anything they learned in the course of the proceedings, but for offenses revealed when they searched the car in which the presumably prominent members of the Brooklyn "Klonklave" started away together from the place of assemblage. There was a bottle of whisky, a hood and two blackjacks in the car, and its driver had no license. These are petty offenses, and irrelevant, except as showing a generally lawless disposition, to the real and definite grounds of complaint against the Ku Klux Klan.

What the public will want to know, and what it has a right to know promptly, is what moved the police to take the action they did. They could not have been moved by a mere suspicion that a bottle of whisky, two blackjacks, a hood and an unlicensed driver would be discovered.

His "Principle" Is Not at All "Sacred."

Herr FRITZ THYSSEN, most conspicuous among these "heroes of Mayence" who so excite the enthusiasm of the Germans—and who do it so cheaply and so safely!—proclaims what he calls the "sacred principle" that "no man can be punished for obeying the laws of his country."

As he just had been punished for doing what he claims to have been exactly that, his proclamation is distinctly absurd and creates an almost irresistible temptation to tell again the so ancient tale of the man who couldn't be jailed, but had been.

What Herr THYSSEN obeyed was not the law of his country, but the instructions of certain high Government officials who, probably at the instigation or counsel of himself and the other coal barons, had told him to defy commands received from the French military authorities in the Ruhr. Even if he had been obeying his country's laws, that would have been no defence against the higher, or at any rate the stronger, law promulgated by armed men with the power and the determination to enforce their will, and submission to that will would have put him in no danger from the "sacred principle" of his vivid imagination.

Of course, there is no principle of the sort he mentions. The laws that a man must obey or endure punishment are those which happen, at a given time, to be backed by the strength adequate for their enforcement. It was Herr THYSSEN's privilege to follow instructions that came to him from Berlin, instead of those received from the French, but it also was his privilege to stand the consequences of his contumacy. That he did, and as yet the consequences have been such that he can afford to laugh at them. Later, the situation may seem to him more serious, and his "sacred principle" will not give him a bit of help in meeting it.

Epidemics Come in Waves.

A possibility not often taken into account in dealing with death rates from one or another disease is called to general attention by the Public Health Service in a report on tuberculosis. Deaths from that malady have shown a marked decline of late, but this does not indicate, necessarily, that tuberculosis soon will be conquered or even that it is in process of defeat.

For it and other like afflictions have a habit of rising and falling—of claiming more or fewer victims—for reasons not directly or closely related to the efforts made for their control. They increase while there are many persons susceptible to their attack, and they decrease when comparatively few not immune are left.

This is very obvious in the case of such diseases as influenza and infantile paralysis. They come in waves, with intervals between, longer or shorter. Such a phenomenon is suggested as accounting in some measure for the lessening of tuberculosis deaths, for it seems that the statistics show like cycles in the past.

The Public Health Service has no desire, of course, to discourage present efforts to combat the white scourge; its purpose, rather, is to prevent the relaxation of effort that might result from a belief that victory already had been won or at least was in sight.

They Have an Eye for Profits.

King TUTANKHAMEN has a chance to remain in his chosen tomb, instead of becoming a specimen royal mummy in a museum, for the curious reason—a reason that never could have occurred to him while alive—that he will be more interesting to tourists if left in the place which he chose for his long sleep. That would mean a larger harvest for the people living near the Valley of the Kings, and naturally they are making vehement protests against the removal to Cairo or further of "remains" which learned and unlearned alike are eager to see.

TUTANKHAMEN has been magnificently—and gratuitously—advertised all over the world. He is as well known now as the Kaiser used to be, and while Mr. FORD may still be in the lead the space between them is small.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I think it may be of interest to some of your readers to learn about a new phase of the work which the United Neighborhood Houses is undertaking. Almost without exception, the Settlement Houses which make up this group are handicapped by a lack of volunteers to direct various branches of their work. There are also many young men and women who would welcome the opportunity of giving their services if they knew where to turn. Recognizing this mutual need, the United Neighborhood Houses is establishing an employment bureau to serve as a clearing house between these interested in volunteering their services and the settlements where such services are desired. Volunteers are needed at present as club leaders, dramatic directors, dancing teachers, music instructors, arts and crafts instructors, office workers.

Applicants who desire to fill these positions should write to the United Neighborhood Houses of New York, 70 Fifth Avenue, to arrange an appointment in which the nature of the work may be described in detail. HARRIET T. RIGHTER, President.

EXPERIENCE.

When I heard the hermit thrush
Singing in the hollow,
It seemed to me I had no choice
But to rise and follow.

So I went down a little hill
And found his willow tree,
But when I came near to him
He would not sing for me.

I went back to my garden
That is set on a hill,
And there at morn and evening
I heard him singing still.

Oh, some there are that call you,
And some that bid you stay,
But if you wish to hold a friend

Settling the Question Without Impairing the Powers of the State.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In his article in THE NEW YORK TIMES of Jan. 21 Stuyvesant Fish attempts to answer some of the "sophistries" of Professor Seligman, and in doing this falls into at least one important error himself. Under Subdivision III. of his argument Mr. Fish quotes the Secretary of the Treasury as to four different avenues of escape open to the recipient of a very large income, and then concludes:

> "Secretary Mellon's report for 1922 (page 13) shows that in 1916 of incomes of over $500,000 there were returned for taxes.....$692,972,936
> Decrease.....$746,618,401

"Assuming that the securities which yielded this difference carried 4½ per cent. interest, the principal involved would have been $16,591,520,022.

"Does Dr. Seligman want us to believe that those having incomes of over $500,000 have bought up all, indeed more than all, of the $18,000,000,000 of untaxed bonds?"

Mr. Fish makes the initial error in assuming that the 1916 taxable income of $692,972,936 was the income on a 4½ per cent. basis; as a matter of fact the 1916 gross income of taxpayers having incomes of $500,000 and over was roughly $1,158,000,000, of which the income from dividends was $541,000,000, from interest on notes, bonds and mortgages, $74,000,000, and the income from business, trade, commerce, partnership gains, salaries, commissions, professions, &c., $406,000,000.

It is safe to assume that this income represented at least an 8 per cent. return on the capital invested; that capital, therefore, can be figured at twelve and one-half times the taxable income, or $13,412,500,000. Now, computing the 1920 taxable return of $246,354,585 on the same basis, we get $3,079,000,000; deducting this amount from $13,412,500,000 we have $10,333,500,000 as the largest amount of principal involved in furnishing the tax exempt "isles of safety" for the original 1,296 taxpayers.

No one questions the legal or moral right of taxpayers to avoid the payment of 50 per cent. or more of their annual income to the Government by investing their money in tax exempt bonds. No one would seriously advocate taking away from States and municipalities the right of issuing tax exempt bonds if it were not for the fact that these tax exempt bonds are creating a tax exempt class of citizens and at the same time are injuring the industries of the country by practically giving very rich men the chance to withdraw their money from railroads and other public utilities and commerce and to invest it in a manner which will pay them a much larger net return than investments in stocks, bonds or even in business.

For example, under the act of 1921, for the year 1922 and subsequent years, a man with a $300,000 taxable income will pay or 50% per cent. of his income.

New York State	8,380
Total	$152,260

If he invested the capital which produced the $300,000 in tax exempt bonds bearing 4¼ per cent. interest, the principal sum would have to be $7,058,823.

If, however, he took the $7,058,823 and invested it in preferred and common stocks, in real estate or in business, it is reasonable to assume that he could get a return of 8 per cent.

If Congress became aware of the economic facts of our absurd tax system and limited the total tax for very large incomes to 25 per cent., he would pay the Government	141,176
Balance of income	$423,529
He would pay New York State	16,381
Balance of income	$407,148

This would give the taxpayer the very best reason in the world to convert his tax exempt securities into taxables—namely, an increase of income of $167,148.

The benefits of this reduction of taxes to a maximum of 25 per cent. are:

New York State would get $16,381, where there was no previous income.

Industry gets the use of $7,058,823, which means more work for labor and more prosperity for every one.

On Jan. 7, 1923, THE NEW YORK TIMES published a letter by the writer criticising Professor Seligman's article; this letter was properly headed by the title "Remedy for Tax Avoidance."

This remedy consisted of the plan of forcing rich citizens, in the interest of their own pockets, to reverse the steps they have been taking since 1916 and get rid of the tax exempt securities, because under the plan herein suggested the exemption would no longer be valuable. This plan is again briefly outlined above and consists in working out a maximum tax percentage on larger incomes which will still leave the taxpayer a substantially larger income than he is getting today on his tax exempt bonds and give the Government millions of dollars of income where no income whatever is collected today.

After the publication of my letter in THE NEW YORK TIMES Professor Seligman wrote to me on Jan. 9 as follows:

> My Dear Mr. Rothschild—I was very much interested in your letter to THE TIMES a day or two ago.
>
> I entirely agree with you in your diagnosis, but I purposely refrained from taking up that question as it would have led into an entirely different field of discussion, and I did not want to mix matters up.
>
> The topic you mention is well worthy of an entirely separate article. With kind regards, faithfully yours,
>
> EDWIN R. A. SELIGMAN.

Here is a frank admission of a very high authority that the tax exempt bond question can be practically settled without taking from the States the power to continue to issue evidences of State, county and municipal debts entirely free of tax. MEYER D. ROTHSCHILD,
Chairman Business Men's National Tax Committee.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I wish to take exception to statements made at the convention of the Wholesale Dry Goods Association scoring yarn makers for evading contracts. The record of cotton yarn merchants and cotton yarn spinners for delivering yarn on contracts is second to none in this country. The writer's firm has been in the cotton yarn business for over thirty years, dealing with cotton yarn spinners in the South and the East, and the instances of default in contracts on the part of spinners would average less than one a year throughout our entire experience. On the other hand, the cotton yarn merchants and cotton yarn spinners also insist that all buyers of cotton yarn live up to their contracts, and the work of the Cotton Yarn Merchants' Association in conjunction with cotton yarn spinners in making a contract (a contract, irrespective of the way the market goes, has had a decidedly stabilizing effect in the yarn business. FRED A. RAKESTRAW,
Secretary Cotton Yarn Merchants' Association.

Financing the Farmer Without Tribute to the Money Lenders of the Old Style.

By F. B. BAUER.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your editorial of January 16, under the heading "The Too Prosperous Farm Banks," after calling attention to Senator Borah's bill, introduced "by request," to limit the earnings of Joint Stock Land Banks at 6 per cent., you state: "The Federal Reserve Banks work under that requirement. There is the more reason why the farm loan banks should do it because they are financed by tax exemption."

There is no similarity between the Federal Reserve Banks and Joint Stock Land Banks. The stockholders of the former are the national banks of the country which must join the Federal Reserve system or give up their charters as national banks and such State banks and trust companies as elect to join the system. The purpose of the Federal Reserve Banks is not to create banking machinery for any particular class. Their function is that of centralizing reserves in order that a more elastic currency system might be made available for business and financial purposes. The purpose of the Federal Land Banks and the Joint Stock Land Banks is, according to the title of the law, "to provide capital for agricultural development, to create a standard form of investment based upon farm mortgages, to equalize rates of interest upon farm loans, to furnish a market for United States bonds, to create Government depositories and financial agencies for the United States, and for other purposes."

The farm loan system was evolved in order to do away with the heretofore unsound, expensive and unsatisfactory system of mortgage borrowing of the American farmer. It places the farmer in a position where he may compete for capital under as advantageous conditions as any industry. The tax exempt feature of farm loan bonds was not inserted in the law for the purpose of financing the land banks, but was included in order that agriculture might receive the advantage of low rates of interest. Congress evidently thought in providing for tax exempt farm loan bonds that agriculture, being the basic industry and being so vital to the prosperity of the nation, was entitled to this preferential treatment. While I am in agreement with the action of Congress in this matter, I appreciate that the whole question of tax exempt bonds is a debatable one; but the fact that farm loan bonds are tax exempt is incidental in so far as the profits of Joint Stock Land Banks are concerned.

Since the passage of the farm loan act there has been loaned to the farmers of the United States by the Federal Land Banks and the Joint Stock Land Banks approximately $900,000,000. All of these loans were made to the farmers at 6 per cent. or under. No commissions were charged and the farmer has received the benefit of the long-term amortized loan in which he can have twenty-five or thirty-five years to pay his principal. It has been estimated that the saving in interest to the farmers on the amount of loans already made is more than $20,000,000, and that the savings in commissions equal another $20,000,000. Furthermore, the farmer has been relieved of the necessity of renewing his loan every two or three years and of the expense in commissions and other charges entailed in such renewals. All of this has been accomplished during a period in which the old style farm mortgage lenders have been constantly attacking the new system under one pretense or another. These attacks started first with the suit to test the constitutionality of the tax exempt feature of the bonds. That effort was of no avail, as the United States Supreme Court declared the tax exempt feature constitutional, but since that time there has been a constant and vigorous campaign waged against the system. This campaign has resulted in deliberately spreading misinformation about the system which has been difficult to offset.

The farmer-borrower under the terms of the law may choose between two different types of banks authorized by the Government to make long-term amortized loans. One of these is known as the Federal Land Bank and is operated on the co-operative principle. This principle is somewhat similar to that under which the Federal Reserve Banks are operated in that the Federal Land Banks are, in practice, Government controlled and operated. In this type of farm loan bank the farmer-borrower is an actual member of the system and has a voice in the management of the institution. The other is known as the Joint Stock Land Bank, which is a corporation organized by private individuals and which may pay dividends to the stockholders. Both banks are limited to 6 per cent. as the maximum interest charge and both are limited to the same profit, which is 1 per cent. difference between the rate charged the farmer and the rate of the bonds issued by the banks. Out of this 1 per cent. must come all expenses and profits. The fundamental difference between the two types of institutions is that one, the Federal Land Bank, is in effect a system operated throughout by Government agencies, whereas the other, the Joint Stock Land Banks, while working under the protection of Government regulation and examination, are private institutions operated by stockholders or their elective officers who have invested their funds in the banks and have assumed the double liability which is imposed on bank stock investors. The Joint Stock Land Banks, therefore, have the same degree of protection as the Federal Land Banks, and, furthermore, are operated for the benefit of the borrower with the initiative and incentive of private ownership.

The Federal and the Joint Stock Land Banks are in a sense competitive, but most of the factors affecting new business are in favor of the former. This is for the reason that they are not organized primarily for profit but strictly for the service of the farmer. The fact remains, however, that the Joint Stock Land Banks have been growing at a remarkable rate, and that they have succeeded in attracting the confidence of the farmer. The reason for their success can be attributed solely to the advantages of private ownership and operation as opposed to Government operation. The farmer borrowing from a Federal Land Bank enjoys certain rights which are not obtainable in transacting business with the Joint Stock Land Banks, and he would not, therefore, do business with the latter were it not that the Joint Stock Land Banks provide him with a more efficient service and that this service offsets the advantages he might obtain from the Federal Land Banks.

Both the Federal Land Banks and the Joint Stock Land Banks have been of great value to the American farmer, particularly during the past two years, in which conditions in agriculture have been unfavorable. In that period the farmer has been able to obtain capital from these banks at 6 per cent. or less, and when this fact is considered in connection with the high interest rates that foreign Governments and our great industrial concerns have had to pay in that period, the value of the farm loan system to the farmer may be more readily appreciated. Both the Federal Land Banks and the Joint Stock Banks are gradually developing distinct lines of service, and the agricultural interests of the country would be thrown back into the chaotic and costly system in vogue before this law went into effect, were either of the two types of banks limited in their usefulness. To limit the earnings of Joint Stock Land Banks to 6 per cent. would not benefit the farmer in any way, but it would undoubtedly sound the death-knell of the Joint Stock Land Bank system—something that is greatly desired by the old-time farm mortgage loan shark. There is no more justification for limiting such earnings to 6 per cent. than there would be to limit the earnings of national banks or any industrial to 6 per cent. It would do away with one of the most important phases of Joint Stock Land Bank operation, which is the initiative spoken of above, and it would not in any conceivable way lessen the cost of farm loan mortgages to the borrower.

There will undoubtedly in the next few years be considerable agitation against both Joint Stock Land Banks and Federal Land Banks, for the reason that their organization has worked distinct hardship upon a large group of lenders who made huge profits for many years at the expense of the farmer. There is little likelihood that this agitation will result in any change detrimental to the present system, not only for the reason that the farmers themselves appreciate the advantages of both the Federal Land Banks and the Joint Stock Land Banks, but because the system is eminently sound and is the first great forward step that this Government has taken for the financing of the farmer. On the other hand, these attacks may to a considerable degree retard the progress of these banks and that is to be regretted. Our agriculture in the next twenty years needs development of the most intensive character, and that development will require huge investments not only in farm loan mortgage bonds but also in the capital stock of the Joint Stock Land Banks. Here in the East we are not as close to the problem as the great farm areas of the West and South, and, therefore, are not as apt to appreciate the necessity for the unimpeded progress of these banks.

Demand for American Ships.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In a letter to THE TIMES James McLeod protests against national aid to the American merchant marine. Americans best equipped to decide whether we need a merchant marine are these Americans who as manufacturers, merchants, exporters and importers have had practical experience of dependence upon foreign ships in the recent past. It is significant that these men of business with practically one voice sustain President Harding in his progressive shipping policy and call for the prompt enactment of laws in aid of American ocean shipbuilding and navigation. These men, having tried another plan, insist that American ships are essential for the promotion of American commerce.

But James McLeod of Boston insists that we should continue to depend for the carriage of our commerce on the ships of foreign Governments, our rivals in trade and possible enemies in war. Is it not passing strange that such suggestions as this should come from Boston, for long years the most active and successful of American seaports?

The Republic's Ingratitude.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It made my blood boil to think that such an accusation should be brought against one who had rendered such conspicuous and inestimably valuable service to his country. If it should be shown that Mr. Crowell received no intimation of the charges on which the indictment is based, the officials responsible for it should be removed, and if they are not the Administration responsible for them should be discredited. Republicans are proverbially ungrateful, but when its agents can let their partisanship tip the scales of justice for political purposes, it is time for the people to bring them to the bar. PAUL P. THOMSON.

Concerning Dr. Grant.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

There was once a naughty little boy and his name was Percy. And he pulled a plaster image from the shelf and smashed it on the floor. And the teacher said, "Come here, Percy." And Percy went and got his caning. But he did not weep. He pulled another plaster image from the shelf and smashed that also. And the teacher said again, "Percy, come." And he went as before and got another caning. But when a third image was likewise smashed by this incorrigible little boy, the teacher called the BOARD, and Percy was expelled. But that was not the last of Percy.

PLAN TO X-RAY MUMMY OF KING TUTANKHAMEN

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LUXOR, Egypt, Jan. 26.—Representatives of the Egyptian press with some American and British newspaper men were allowed to visit Tutankhamen's tomb this morning by order of the Egyptian Government.

Of the original contents of the tomb, previously described in THE NEW YORK TIMES, those remaining include two life-size statues of the King, the bodies of gem-studded chariots, a pair of wheels, two large ceremonial couches—one with hippopotamus heads and the other with lion heads—two bouquets of flowers in a bad state of preservation, a collection of faience vases, several bows and arrows, several inlaid figures—put in the tomb to do duty for the King in the next world if his god demanded manual service—and a broken alabaster vase.

All the rest of the treasures which had previously been described in THE NEW YORK TIMES have been removed to the tomb of Seti II. for preservative treatment.

It is understood that reasons of policy dictated the Egyptian Government's order that newspaper men be allowed to enter the tomb this morning, as there has certainly been no new notable fact discovered to necessitate a visit. The tomb will be closed from today until next Wednesday, when it will be decided when the inner chamber will be opened.

LUXOR, Egypt, Jan. 26 (Associated Press).—Tutankhamen is to be X-rayed if his mummy still lies in the tomb. When the archaeologists now at work on the tomb open the alabaster coffin, take off the thin cover of gold and carry the shrouded form into the sunlight, it will be photographed from every angle. The hundreds of yards of bandage will be unwound, and for the first time in history a film of the weird sight will be made.

It has been decided that the mummy is to be X-rayed before the bandages are removed, as it is expected that this will throw light on the ritual of embalming as practiced by the ancient Egyptians.

CITY WILL ADVOCATE MORE FISH ON MENUS

The Department of Public Markets announced yesterday that plans had been perfected for an intensive campaign to stimulate the consumption of fish.

Mrs. Louis Reed Welsmiller, Deputy Commissioner, has charge and has prepared a questionnaire to be sent to thousands of housewives in the city. Members of the Market Committee, composed of representatives of practically all women's organizations in the city, have been invited to attend a luncheon to be held at the Hotel Pennsylvania on Monday, Feb. 5, at 12:30. The luncheon, Mrs. Welsmiller said, will consist only of fish and vegetables.

"The purpose of this propaganda," Mrs. Welsmiller explained, "is solely to get housewives to buy more fish. We have the assurance of leaders in the fish industry that prices will be brought down if consumption can be increased, and we mean to assist them because we believe that fish is a wholesome food, cheap in cost and should be more generally eaten to provide a balanced diet.

"Many housewives are not familiar with the many delectable fish dinners that can be prepared, nor with the economy incident to such preparation. The dinner we are giving to the members of the Market Committee will give them some insight into this art.

"We would like to have all the housewives of the city fill in this questionnaire. It is, of course, impossible for us to mail a copy to each of them, but if they apply to the department we will be glad to send them one. With this information in hand there is no doubt we will be able to bring down the cost to the consumer and thus make fish a food for every day instead of for Friday, as it is at present."

GEO. D. SMITH LEFT $357,275 ESTATE

Leading Expert on Rare Books Made No Will, and Widow and Son Get Property.

VALUE OF BUSINESS SHRINKS

The estate of George D. Smith, who was the leading expert on rare books when he died suddenly on March 4, 1920, was appraised yesterday at $705,708. He had debts of $281,900, which with other deductions left a net estate of only $357,275. He had no will and one-third of the estate went to his widow, Eleanor M. Smith of 8 East Forty-fifth Street, and the remainder of the estate to his son George D. Smith, born after his death.

The assets included $208 cash and securities valued at $100,766. He had a half interest in six horses owned by the Brighton Stable, which were sold for $5,275. Mr. Smith's estate put the net valuation of $232,275 on his business of selling rare books, prints, autographs, &c., before the bulk of the stock had been disposed of, but later, on an appraisal made by the late Samuel Marx after the sale of most of the books and manuscripts, the business was valued at $500,438 by Appraiser Schmeisel.

In submitting the figures on the value of the business, Mitchell Kennerley, one of the administrators, stated that the total value of the assets was $1,676,719, but that the value had depreciated 30 per cent. because of the death of Mr. Smith and that there would be a further cost of 20 per cent. in selling them. He said that this did not include $200,000 as the value of the Schumann Library purchased by Mr. Smith. He stated that there were notes payable amounting to $234,825, and accounts payable of $606,-731.

In the report of Mr. Marx he stated that the bulk of the property had been sold for $667,438 and the net sum received was $833,568. He stated that on July 1 last there still remained to be sold books and other merchandise having a cost price of $452,104. He said that they would not bring anywhere near the cost price because the death of Mr. Smith had removed the chief competitor of other buyers in the sales, with the result that the market price would be greatly lowered. Business conditions also prevented the sale of the books at a reasonable sum, he said.

RELIGIOUS STRUGGLE BREWING IN MEXICO

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 26.—The first rumbles of an impending political struggle in Mexico were heard today when a group of more than forty generals who had fought in past revolutions met and formed a society to oppose, politically and financially, the so-called Fascisti movement. They have issued a call for the support of all men who have taken part in Mexico's past struggles, especially the descendants of free thinkers who supported Juarez in opposition to the Catholic Church.

The founders of the new society assert that the Catholic Church is secretly supporting the Fascisti, and a bitter struggle is forecast with organized efforts of conservatives, known as Cientificos during the Presidency of Portfirio Diaz, and on the other the Liberals, embracing the free thinkers, revolutionists and labor organizations.

The chief strength of the Cientificos is concentrated in Guadalajara, Puebla and Michoacan, where the Church is firmly established, while the Liberals are scattered all through the republic.

From other States reports say that new anti-Catholic organizations are being formed. It is asserted that one of the main reasons for the expulsion of Mrs. Philpot was an alleged discovery of his activity in the formation of a circle known as the "sacred twelve," who were to have charge in directing the activities of the Fascisti.

HALF MILLION TO CHARITY.

The appraisal of the estate of Alfred Blumenthal, who was killed, with his 14-year-old son, Alfred, in a railway accident in Spain on June 12, 1921, and whose wife, Hannah Blumenthal, sustained injuries in the same accident, from which she died twelve days later, was filed yesterday, showing that he left $580,471. The bulk of the estate was in stocks. Mr. Blumenthal gave $5,000 each to his son, Harold Timen, and his daughter, Marguerite Timen. He gave $21,231 each to a stepson and stepdaughter. The share his son would have received became part of the residuary estate.

The appraisal shows that Mrs. Blumenthal would have received the life income from the residuary estate, amounting to $466,990, but, because of her almost immediate death after his own, his property went to twenty institutions at once. Mt. Sinai Hospital and the Federation for the Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies each got a fifth of the estate, and the remainder went to eighteen other organizations.

Wife Gets Half Residuary—Missing Daughter Dorothy Not Mentioned.

The estate of Francis R. Arnold, who was the father of the missing Dorothy Arnold and who died April last, was appraised yesterday at $943,186. The report shows that in 1919 he sold out his business of F. R. Arnold & Co., which imported perfumery and blended perfumes from France, to his sons, John W. and Dan H. Arnold, and accepted from them two notes of $50,000 each and $231 in cash. The sons then engaged their father as general manager of the business at $50,000 a year.

Mr. Arnold gave a half interest in the residuary estate, or $401,711, to his wife, Mary M. P. Arnold, and left the remainder of the estate to his sons and his daughter, Marjorie Brewster La Monte. The bulk of the estate was in securities.

Alfred S. Heidelbach, member of the banking firm of Heidelbach, Ickelheimer & Co., who died Feb. 1 last, left an estate appraised yesterday at $1,570,497. He gave $1,200,000 for life to his wife, Julia Heidelbach, and upon her death the remainder goes to friends, relatives, business associates and institutions. His interest in the banking firm was $1,386,-637 and his Stock Exchange seat was valued at $91,500.

Mr. Heidelbach's collection of porcelains in Paris was appraised by the French tax authorities at $30,219. He owned his wife $106,000 advanced to him for the construction of a Paris residence.

Will Cash or War Come Out of the Ruhr?

"NOT CASH, BUT CLASH," says Lloyd George, is what France will get in the Ruhr. But General Charles G. Dawes, Director of the Federal Budget System, telegraphs The Literary Digest that "the invasion of the Ruhr by France is, in my judgment, essential, both to bring France to a realization that only a reasonable reparation can be collected, and to bring Germany to the knowledge that it cannot avoid its payment. No one need fear Bolshevism at this time in Germany, pending the inevitable ultimate decision of the German people to form such a firm government that it can take the economic measures which will get them rid of the French army, just as France did when the German army, in 1871, occupied Paris. Long within two years it will be universally recognized that the reasonable settlement of the reparations problems, which by that time should have been reached, was made possible by the French invasion of the Ruhr."

Yet the majority of the American press condemns the French move, some for reasons of expediency and some asserting that great moral questions are involved. Many papers, however, stoutly defend France, and individual leaders of public opinion, for the most part, support the French course on legal, moral, and practical grounds. Many of them have joined with the editors of the country in discussing, in this week's LITERARY DIGEST, the "Right and Wrong of the Ruhr Invasion."

Europe is aflame over the question, as shown in a symposium of British, French, and German periodicals. "Gripping the industrial heart of Germany" is how France's occupation of the Ruhr valley is described in dispatches from abroad. But "what is the Ruhr, anyway?" is the question everywhere asked. THE LITERARY DIGEST answers it with an article showing just "Why the Ruhr Is Vital," giving an impressive statement of the area, population, industrial activities and resources of the region.

America is vitally concerned in the settlement of this tremendous problem, and every citizen should avail himself of the opportunity to gain a full understanding of the situation from every angle, as presented by the illuminative articles in THE LITERARY DIGEST this week, January 27th.

The directors of American motion picture theaters strive to obtain the best for their patrons. From a vast celluloid treasury they must select what they think you will enjoy most. A feature is first. But the available stock is always ample. A new reel or a novelty adds variety and interest. Then a comedy. Everybody likes to laugh, but every comedy does not evoke mirth. The manager is in a constant quandary. So The Literary Digest has solved this problem for over a thousand theatrical directors by selecting the best of the world's current wit and humor for presentation on the silver screens. A new "Fun From the Press" flashes across the nation every week with the latest laugh-provokers. And where this rollicking reel is showing you can be reasonably sure the same discriminating taste is exercised in selecting the other amusement numbers for you, the best in their respective classes. For good, clean, well-balanced cinema entertainment go to theaters showing "Fun From the Press." Produced by The Literary Digest. Distributed by W. W. Hodkinson Corporation.

COURT WARNS KLAN OUT OF BROOKLYN

HAD ATTENDED MEETING

COUNSEL MAKES COMPLAINT

Asserts His Clients Were Held in Jail for Many Hours Without Food.

A warning to all members of the Ku Klux Klan to get out of Brooklyn was issued yesterday by Magistrate H. H. Dale in the Gates Avenue Court, Brooklyn, during the arraignment of the eight men arrested early in the morning by Lieutenant James J. Gegan and his bomb squad after an alleged "klonvokiation" at 182 Clermont Avenue, where the Brooklyn Traffic Court sits in the daytime.

Magistrate Dale at first refused to admit the men to bail until after he had conferred with the District Attorney. Later bail was fixed in each case at $1,500. The prisoners were not charged with being members of the Klan, but with disorderly conduct. An additional charge of possessing a blackjack was made against John Collins of 25 Herkimer Street, driver of the automobile in which the men were riding at the time of their arrest, and an additional charge of possessing a bottle of whisky was made against Robert Fisher, 19 years old, of 135 Quincy Street, and an additional bail of $1,000 each was fixed on them.

Collins, Arthur C. Clark of 2,104 Caton Avenue, alleged Grand Cyclops of Brooklyn Klan 2; Ellsworth S. Morse, 811 East Eighteenth Street, W. D. M. Simmons, 218 Sullivan Street, and Charles T. Mulford, 56 Hawthorne Street, furnished bail and were released for examination next Thursday. Fisher, Thomas Jones of 363 Grand Avenue, and John M. Gilmour, 71 New York Avenue, were still in the Raymond Street Jail at nightfall.

Malcolm Ross Matheson, attorney for all the prisoners, except Collins and Mulford, asserted that obstacles had been placed in the way of furnishing bail, and charged that the prisoners were deprived of food for more than twelve hours. Mr. Matheson denied the power of Magistrate Dale to impose a sentence of banishment upon members of the Ku Klux Klan and characterized the arrest of the eight men as "Hun like enforcement."

Denounced by Magistrate.

Magistrate Dale gave his opinion of the Klan when the eight prisoners were first arraigned before him. "I am talking for myself as a citizen when I say that Brooklyn has no room for the Ku Klux Klan or persons who believe in it or are in any way interested, or those who intend to become interested in such an organization," he said. "My advice to all persons who are thinking of becoming affiliated with the Klan is to get out of Brooklyn.

"The Ku Klux Klan will get no room in Brooklyn. This is a serious matter and I shall not fix bail until I have conferred with the District Attorney."

Magistrate Dale questioned the prisoners but received evasive answers. He turned to Mr. Matheson and said:

"What is all this about? Here is a crowd of men with masks, hoods and robes in their possession, as well as blackjacks and whisky. With the many hold-ups and robberies going on around us, the citizens of this town are entitled to protection. I ask you, counselor, what is the meaning of it all?"

"Your Honor can see that they are not the type of men who carry blackjacks," Mr. Matheson replied.

"Were they going to a masked ball or what?" asked the Magistrate.

Mr. Matheson talked with one of the prisoners and said:

"I am informed by my client Fisher that he was invited to ride to his home. He had no knowledge of the presence of whisky or blackjacks in the machine. I am informed that there had been a meeting of the Brooklyn Circle Club to which he had been invited."

Lieutenant Gegan stepped forward and put on the Magistrate's bench a robe and hood which he said were found in the automobile. The robe had a purple cord and a white cape with a bright red lining. At the front of the robe was an insigne in purple, yellow and red. The hood was white with eyeholes an an insigne like that on the robe with the letters "KL."

Called It Ku Klux Meeting.

"It was a meeting of the Ku Klux Klan, your Honor," Lieutenant Gegan said.

"I am informed by my clients that it was an open meeting of Ku Klux Klan No. 2 and that these men were invited there to hear new stuff about the order," Mr. Matheson explained.

"Who is the leader?" asked the Magistrate.

Mr. Matheson said that Clark, understood to be a dancing teacher, owned the robe, and the latter admitted it. Magistrate Dale then committed the men to the Raymond Street Jail and fixed bail later in the day after consultation with the District Attorney.

The building in which the meeting was held was formerly a church. William Haddon, the superintendent, said that the building was owned by the Ace Square Club, which he said he believed was an organization of Masons.

"The Board of Trustees of the Ace Square Club rented the hall to a group known as the Brooklyn Circle Club about six months ago for use on the second and fourth Thursdays of each month," he said. "I never thought the Circle Club was part of the Ku Klux Klan."

Magistrates Alfred Steers and Francis McClusky are sitting in Traffic Court in the same room during the daytime this week. Neither Magistrate knew that the Klan had used the courtroom at night. The city's contract for use of the building as a courtroom provides that the room may be used by the court only until 7 P. M.

In complaining that unusual obstacles had been placed in the way of his providing bail for the prisoner, Mr. Matheson said that Magistrate Dale had told him that he would be at the Adams Street Court at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and that he went there and waited nearly an hour without the Magistrate appearing. He said he received word over the telephone at 3:30 that the Magistrate had just left the Gates Avenue Court and at the same time was informed by a friend of the prisoners that they had had nothing to eat since their arrest at 2 o'clock in the morning.

Criticise the Magistrate.

Mr. Matheson commented sarcastically upon Magistrate Dale's warning for all Klansmen to get out of Brooklyn, and said:

"This is the first intimation that I have ever had that a City Magistrate had the power to inflict summary banishment, unless he means to make his own laws and make membership in the Klan a crime. I thought that the law-making power was a prerogative of the Legislature.

"I am not a member of the Ku Klux Klan, but the example of Hun law enforcement is a sufficient commentary to my mind on the un-American and unfair spirit of its enemies. I think that it will be the surest way to bring real Americans who believe in real freedom of thought and religious belief to a realization of what is going on."

Harry C. Honeck, Warden of the Raymond Street Jail, said the prisoners did not arrive there until after 2 o'clock in the afternoon, too late for the midday meal, and were not served with food until the evening meal at 6 o'clock. He said he did not know whether they had received food before their arrival at the jail.

Lieutenant Gegan, who questioned the prisoners for several hours at Police Headquarters, Manhattan, would not discuss the information he had obtained. Records of the Klan were found by the police in the automobile and were said to have given them information concerning the membership of the Brooklyn Klan. Lieutenant Gegan said the District Attorney of Kings County was cooperating with the police in the case.

"If I had my way I'd let him stay in jail; I am not in sympathy with the Klan," directed John Gilmour when he appeared in Adams Street Police Court last night with his wife, Mrs. Emma M. Gilmour, to furnish bail for their son, John M. Gilmour. Mrs. Gilmour pledged a house at 808 Lincoln Place as security for the appearance of her son. Mrs. Gilmour said she owned the house, valued at $8,000, with a mortgage of $4,000. Magistrate Lawrence Fish accepted the security and released Gilmour. Mrs. Gilmour attempted to bail out Robert V. Fisher, the Pratt Institute student, but her equity in the property was not sufficient.

Collins, the chauffeur, was released on bail earlier in the evening.

There was no crowd in the court room, which was cleared of all except those who had business there. A large crowd remained outside, many of them apparently Klan sympathizers.

District Attorney Dodd of Kings County said that he had not seen the formal complaint against the alleged Klansmen.

"No organization or group of persons can trifle with the law in Brooklyn and get away with it," he said. "We have the machinery and the honesty and the courage to deal with such a tribe. On the other hand all such persons will have a fair trial. We have good and sufficient laws in this State and we do not need any persons who take upon themselves the execution of the laws."

CALL KLAN UN-AMERICAN.

Indiana Episcopalians Denounce It as Menace to Order.

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 26.—The Ku Klux Klan was condemned in a resolution adopted by the Indianapolis Diocese of the Protestant Episcopal Church in a Pentecostal session here today as an "Un-American menace to peace and order."

"We feel that we should * * * record our strong disapproval and condemnation of the Ku Klux Klan and other secret and political societies as un-American and as a menace to peace and order and to social security and well-being," the resolution said. "The so-called enforcement of law and the attempted regulation by bands of hooded and masked men can accomplish no good."

SEARCH FOR SWINDLER WHO SERVED 6 ARMIES

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 26.—Known in Belgium as "the mysterious grenadier" and in France as "Fregoli," possessing a string of false names and forged identity papers, Pierre François Bayens, alias Charles Godrow, alias Paul Martin, is considered by Paris detectives to be the cleverest crook with whom they have dealt. They are hot on his track today and are putting forth ardor to catch him because they owe him a grudge.

Many times Bayens has fooled them slipped through their fingers just at the moment when they triumphantly believed they had him. Yet his appearance is well known. He is a striking looking man, nearly six feet tall and heavily built, with a single gold tooth shining noticeably in his mouth.

Bayens was born in Belgium 43 years ago. During the war he served in the Belgian, French, Italian, English and Russian armies, using forged papers each time in order to enlist. Not content with this record he achieved another by crossing into the enemy camp and serving with the Germans as a soldier.

While with the French Army he was court-martialed but acquitted owing to lack of evidence. The Colonel presiding at the court-martial called him a "Boche" during the proceedings. Bayens deserted and a few weeks later the Colonel received a letter containing his photograph in a German uniform, bearing the inscription:

While serving in various armies the mysterious Belgian acted as a spy everywhere, but tricked the country employing him each time.

Amid his latest exploits in Paris was to steal a check book, open an account and cash 100,000 francs worth of false checks. Then he robbed a Rue de la Paix jeweler of 50,000 francs. A war widow owning a little café next attracted Bayens's attentions. The widow also owned savings of 35,000 francs and Bayens laid siege to her heart. Now she still has the café but her savings have disappeared with "Fregoli." It is for this that the detectives are on a chase for him now.

ERROR IN GAMBLING CHARGE

Manden Released—Meyer Said He Lost $13,422.50.

Richard R. Manden, 60, who said he was a real estate operator and lived at 215 West Ninety-second Street, was discharged by Magistrate Peter A. Hatting in the Chief Magistrate's Court yesterday when he was arraigned on a warrant charging him with being a common gambler. The warrant had been issued by Chief Magistrate William McAdoo on the complaint of Charles F. Meyer of White Plains, N. Y., who alleged that he lost $13,422.50 in a gambling house in which he said Manden was interested in West Forty-fourth Street. Meyers stated in his complaint that he lost the money in 1920, and that the lowest chip cost $10.

Magistrate Hatting released Manden when his counsel discovered an error in the complaint signed by Meyers on Dec. 29 last.

Milk Prices to Drop 1 Cent, Cream, 2 Cents, in February

Mr. Fox announced a 2-cent decrease in prices of cream. Half pints of extra heavy cream will be 30 cents instead of 32, and half pints of route cream will be 20 cents instead of 22. These prices cover Manhattan, Brooklyn, the Bronx and Queens. Staten Island prices are one cent higher.

KLAN HEAD ASSAILS MER ROUGE HEARING

CHARGES POLITICAL PLOT

CHICAGO, Jan. 26.—Ku Klux Klansmen have no right to take the law into their own hands, Hiram Wesley Evans, Imperial Wizard of the organization, said today in a statement in which he charged that Governor Parker of Louisiana had political or other motives in instigating the Mer Rouge investigation of the deaths of Watt Daniel and T. F. Richards.

Asked if the Klan would defend any men who may be arrested or indicted in connection with the Louisiana case, Evans said:

"It would depend entirely upon the condition of the Klansman. If he was unable to provide defense for himself we would most certainly see that his rights as a Klansman were looked after and that he got justice. We would not use any effort anywhere to prevent a man from paying the just penalty for a crime committed.

"There is no set of circumstances under which the Klan would have a right to take into its own hands or be responsible in any way for the enforcement of the law, except in so far as their sworn duty as Klansmen would place them under the officials charged with the enforcement of the law.

Quotes Klan Oath.

"Every Klansman specifically takes the following oath, which has never been published before: 'I furthermore promise and swear that I will always, at all times and in all places, help, aid and assist the duly constituted officers of the law in the proper performance of their legal duties.'

"There is nothing contained in any oath that in any way permits, allows or condones law violations.

"The mask is but a portion of our regalia. It is only worn within our klaverns during the ceremony of naturalization or initiation, or, when special dispensation is granted in public parade; to the grave of a Klansman, a Klansman who has served the Klan or the country in an upstanding way, or upon an errand of charity. On the two latter occasions, it is not worn except that the Klan may express, as a Klan, either its sorrow or its sympathy, and that this action might not be considered individual expression, but representative of the Klan.

"The Klan is not attempting to build upon the personality of men but upon the foundation of principles.

"The Klan is not a political organization, but if it is builded dpon men, instead of principles, it might become such—hence the organization, in maintaining its secrecy, prevents its exploitation for personal profit, and, finally, it is necessary, in many sections of this nation, that we protect the identity of our members from the persecution of un-American, alien or foreign influences which would persecute the membership of the Klan merely because they were members, as evidenced by the persecution of members of the Klan being meted out in Chicago today, simply because they believe in our principles, and have inculcated them into the local life."

"We do not advocate religious prejudice. We are an organization of Protestant Christians. We advocate Protestant Christianity, but not religious prejudice."

Attacks Mer Rouge Inquiry.

Regarding the inquiry and hearing into the Mer Rouge tortures and murders the Klan Wizard said:

"The first and most notable deduction and one which is apparent to everybody is that the enemies of the Ku Klux Klan, represented by Governor Parker, have staged a herculian effort to put over a frame-up on the Ku Klux Klan and that they have signally failed. The Knights of the Ku Klux Klan do not approve or participate in lawlessness of any kind, and the partial inquiry just closed at Bastrop proved this fact as having been brought out clearly by that investigation.

"The hearing at Bastrop has also brought out the fact that those who most fear the Klan and are the bitterest foes are law violators and their associates, and those who would impute or attempt to attach lawnessess to the Klan are compelled to use as witnesses people of low character and lawless regard.

"It is lamentable that the Governor of the great State of Louisiana, whose people rank high as loyal and law-abiding citizens of America, should either for political purpose, to vent spleen or gain notoriety, so far forget the responsibilities of his office as to prostitute it and thus bring discredit upon his own State. The hearing at Bastrop clearly brought out the fact that the Governor of Louisiana was endeavoring to indict a patriotic organization rather than to apprehend criminals and see that they were punished.

"The inquiry developed the absolute incompetency and lack of ability of the Chief Executive of the great State of Louisiana and a lack of veracity or character stamina in that arch-while Mason, Coco, used as the tool of the Executive. In spite of his provocative tactics, plainly followed to try to produce riot in Morehouse Parish, this fiendish scheme against the peace and dignity of a great State, which originated in the mind of its venal Governor, has signally failed.

"Richards or Daniel, or both, may have been murdered. The Klan gave its entire support to this inquiry in the sincere hope that the real truth might be developed and the guilty punished."

An "all nations rally" to form the basis of a national organization to oppose the Ku Klux Klan and kindred organizations will be held at the Coliseum here beginning Feb. 26 and continuing for one week, Patrick H. O'Donnell, Chairman of the American Unity League, announced tonight.

Governor Parker of Louisiana has accepted an invitation to make the opening address at the rally on Feb. 26, and Governor Smith of New York is expected to speak, Mr. O'Donnell announced. Other prominent speakers representing various races and creeds will be invited to address sessions of the meetings.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 26.—Captain J. K. Skipwith, Exalted Cyclops of the Morehouse Parish Klan, will have an opportunity in court to explain what he knows about the fate of Watt Daniel and T. F. Richards, according to a statement made tonight by T. Semmes Walmsley, Assistant Attorney General, in commenting on an interview attributed to the Ku Klux Klan leader, in which it was alleged he had declared "Masons and physicians" killed Daniel because of a so-called attempt to assassinate Dr. B. M. McKoin, and that Richards was still alive, had been placed on a train and sent out of the country after he had betrayed Daniel to the executioners.

"The time will come for Skipwith to explain this interview," said Walmsley. "Until then we are not even inclined to comment on anything so utterly ridiculous and absurd."

MER ROUGE, La., Jan. 26.—A threat that outrages by the Ku Klux Klan are to continue in Morehouse Parish was sent by Mer Rouge residents today in the publication of a letter from a Bastrop Klansman stating that the organization would continue to be active in "guarding the morals of the community." Copies of The Fellowship Forum, a Ku Klux Klan newspaper printed in Washington, D. C., were received here today containing the letter, which branded the citizens of Mer Rouge as moral lepers and viciously assailed the authorities for their conduct of the open hearing and for sending troops to protect the lives of witnesses. The letter closed with this paragraph:

"In the meantime the Vigilance Committee is as vigilant as ever and will maintain its watch over the welfare and morals of the community."

Vincent Astor Plans Newport Air Service; 90-Minute Trips from Here at $30 a Head

A week-end air service between New York and Newport will be established this Summer. Details will be arranged by Vincent Astor and T. Suffern Tailer, acting as a committee representing the Summer residents of Newport, as soon as Mr. Astor returns from the South. It is expected that the service will be started on the first Saturday before July 4.

The Summer colonists at Newport decided some time ago that the finest air service along the coast should be inaugurated between New York and the Summer resort. It was at first thought that the service might be run by those desiring to use it, but investigation showed that the cost would be about $120 a round trip, which was thought too expensive. Accordingly money was subscribed to enable the project to be taken up with some established company operating flying boats, and Mr. Astor and Mr. Tailer were asked to make the arrangements.

They have found that the service might be conducted at a cost of about $30 each way, and negotiations have been begun with two companies who will bid for the route. The proposed service calls for three boats holding four persons each, and there would be room for a golf bag and a small amount of hand baggage.

The boats will leave the foot of East Thirty-first Street and land at a hangar to be built in Newport near the Arthur Curtiss James yacht landing. One boat will leave Friday at 3 P. M. and arrive in Newport at 4:15 P. M., an hour and a half later. Another will leave at 6 o'clock and arrive with a few minutes to dress for dinner. The third boat will probably leave on Saturday at noon, or soon after the close of the Stock Exchange. The boats will return as the passengers desire, one probably on Sunday afternoon at 6 o'clock, one on Monday morning at 8 o'clock and another Monday afternoon.

MORE PROSECUTORS FOR FUEL CASES

C. W. Wickersham Writes District Administrators to Speed Up Trials.

The assignment of Assistant District Attorneys to the offices of the District Fuel Administrators, in order to expedite the prosecution of alleged violators of the fuel laws, was suggested yesterday in letters to the District Administrators by Colonel C. W. Wickersham, counsel for the State Fuel Administration.

"Prompt prosecution is what we want," Colonel Wickersham wrote. "When a case comes up in this way it can be presented to a Magistrate or similar summary court without asking for an indictment except in the more flagrant instances."

Recommendations that the fuel law be so amended "as to empower the District Attorney in each county to investigate and prosecute in the first instances all alleged violations of the fuel laws" were made in a resolution adopted by the Queens County Grand Jury, which has been investigating the coal situation. The resolution was presented to Supreme Court Justice James C. Van Siclen. Commenting upon the report, Justice Van Siclen said that the inquiry had been very helpful.

District Attorney Dana Wallace, after a conference with Ernest L. Smith, District Fuel Administrator for Queens, designated Assistant District Attorney Frank E. Phillips for duty in the Queens fuel office. Mr. Smith announced that he had secured a consignment of 6,000 tons of domestic size coal for Queens, and that it would be ready for distribution early next week.

Samuel J. Drummond, District Administrator for Brooklyn, submitted to J. F. Birmingham, New York representative of the Pittsburgh anthracite distributing agency, a statement of the needs of Brooklyn and Queens, calling for 35,000 tons. Among the items was 7,200 tons of coal for the peddlers' pool in Brooklyn and 1,150 tons for Queens.

Of 323 emergency appeals for coal received and investigated yesterday, the Health and Police Departments reported favorably on 234, and emergency orders were issued. Returns on the reports showed thirty-four of the complainants with coal for at least two weeks on hand and nineteen wrong addressees. There were 902 cars, or 36,000 tons, of steam size anthracite, and nineteen cars of pea coal in the harbor yesterday.

Conditions up-State were reported by fuel officials as clearing up very rapidly. Congestion at various railroad points is being relieved, and shipments are going through with less delays.

OFFICIAL PAPER QUOTES KATO ON NAVY TREATY

TOKIO, Jan. 26 (Associated Press).—The official gazette of the proceedings in the Diet on Tuesday quotes Premier Kato as declaring with reference to the possibility of France and Italy not ratifying the Washington agreement that "an understanding has thus been reached among the three powers (America, Great Britain and Japan), concerning what should be done, or desirable to be done."

The Premier's statement came about in the following manner:

Viscount Kato, leader of the opposition in the Diet, had asked whether an agreement existed between the United States, Great Britain and Japan in the event France and Italy failed to ratify the Washington treaty. The Premier's reply in full, according to the official gazette, was:

"Nothing formal has been proceeded with in the way of negotiations with Great Britain and America, but through diplomatic channels, the Military Attachés, or by telegraphic dispatches mutual communication has been properly maintained on such subjects, or policies. Some of them are very minute and concrete. An understanding has thus been reached among the three powers concerning what should be done or desirable to be done. Only this understanding lacks formal diplomatic proceedings."

The Japanese Embassies at Washington and London have asked for information regarding the Premier's statement.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26 (Associated Press).—Officials of the Japanese Embassy appeared today to be mystified by the conflicting reports regarding the statement made in the Japanese Diet Tuesday by Premier Kato with relation to possible separate action by the United States, Japan and Great Britain, should France and Italy fail to ratify the Washington naval treaty.

The embassy issued a denial last night of a dispatch which quoted the Premier as saying that "an understanding" had been reached as to the course to be taken in the event the treaty failed of approval at Paris and Rome. This denial, it was said at the embassy, was based on dispatches from the Foreign Office.

It was added that embassy advices thus far had not contained the quotation from the official gazette, carried in Associated Press dispatches.

39 Killed in Ceylon Rail Wreck.

LONDON, Jan. 26 (Associated Press).—Thirty-nine persons are reported killed in a railway accident in Northern Ceylon, says a Central News dispatch from Colombo this evening. Many others were injured. The accident was due to floods which washed away part of the track.

HYLAN WAVERS OVER GAS CUT-OFF ACTION

GETS OPINION FROM HEARST

Legality Possible and Proper to Place Expense on Corporation, Says Lawyers' Brief.

Mayor Hylan is undecided whether to sign the automatic gas cut-off ordinance or to send it back to the Board of Aldermen for amendment to place the cost upon the gas companies, it was said last night upon excellent authority. There also was said to be a possibility that the Mayor might sign the ordinance as it stands and then send a bill to the State Legislature for the amendment of the city charter in an attempt to place the cost upon the gas companies in that way. The Mayor has until the meeting of the Board of Aldermen next Tuesday to disapprove the ordinance; otherwise, it will become effective without his signature.

The Mayor indicated that he had taken no definite action when questioned by reporters as he left City Hall last night. "I have nothing to say," he said in reply to a question as to whether he intended to sign the ordinance. "It is nothing to get excited about."

The opinion of Corporation Counsel George P. Nicholson as to the legality of placing the cost of the automatic device upon the companies had not been received by the Mayor last night, but is expected to be in his hands today. The Mayor has announced that he will make no decision until he has received this opinion.

Told Gas Co. Should Pay Cost.

The Mayor, however, did receive an opinion that to place the expense of the device upon the gas companies would not only be legally possible but proper, in a joint note from Martin W. Littleton, Attorney for the New York American and Evening Journal in this matter, and A. C. MacNulty, counsel of the Real Estate Board of New York. This note, which took the form of a brief, was headed "The Board of Aldermen has the power to adopt an ordinance requiring gas companies to install cut-offs on the gas lines between the meter and the street line in all buildings." The brief referred to a number of judicial decisions to sustain this view, and said, in part:

"As the courts have established the doctrine that the gas companies must safeguard their service connections and meters in privately owned property against gas leaks and have mulcted gas companies repeatedly for failure to perform this duty when fatalities or personal injuries have resulted, it follows that the Board of Aldermen may, by ordinance, require the gas companies to provide any safeguard that due care and caution may demand against the escape of gas on the collapse of meters or their disconnection, including the insertion of an automatic device for stopping the flow at any point on the company's service line between the meter and the street main.

"In this connection, it is certainly clear that the pending ordinance requires the consumer to provide a safeguard against the escape of gas, the property of the purveying corporation, from a meter that is also the property of the corporation and which is installed solely for the benefit of the corporation. Such an ordinance, which makes a consumer pay for a safeguard against damage that may be done by property of a gas company and because of the company's failure to exercise due care and caution in purveying it, is neither reasonable nor constitutional, and would be vigorously litigated to the court of last resort by those aggrieved by it."

Sees Dangers in the Device.

The Consolidated Gas Company would refuse to install automatic cut-offs of its own volition, or, if compelled to, would pass on the cost to the consumers, it was said definitely by a man in a position to know. The city, it was said, never had made any attempt to learn if the company would install the proposed automatic device, the cost of which has been estimated at from $15,000,000 to $30,000,000.

The company was said to object to the responsibility and dangers that might come from the device more than to the cost, and objection to their installation will be made on that ground. A short trial of 15,000 automatic cut-offs in Chicago was said to have shown that building superintendents and janitors, as well as tenants, frequently accidentally locked the automatic cut-offs by knocking against the gas pipes. This sudden stoppage of the gas flow was said to be attended with great danger. The rumbling of heavy trucks in the street was said to have produced the same effect.

It also was said that, in the event of the signing of the ordinance, the gas companies would refuse to take the responsibility of turning on the gas after its flow had been checked by the automatic cut-off. It was pointed out that there would be likely to be a number of burners open, and that there would be danger of explosion or asphyxiation when the gas was turned on unless there was very careful supervision.

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 26.—On the invitation of the Carnegie Institute of Pittsburgh, a collection of pictures by living Danish artists was shipped today to the United States.

FRIENDS 40 YEARS, KILLED BY AN AUTO

Run Down on Way Home Together as Usual Every Day for Quarter of Century.

NINE DANCERS HIT BY CAR

Homeward bound from work together, as had been their daily custom for twenty-five years, James Kane, 63, and Patrick J. Smythe, 65, Bayonne neighbors and inseparable friends, were run down and killed last evening by an automobile truck at Fourth Street and Avenue C, Bayonne. The men were run over by opposite front wheels of the truck.

The Kane and Smythe families had lived across the street from each other for more than forty years, Kane at 167 West Fourth Street and Smythe at 174 West Fourth Street. Mrs. Smythe and her four daughters were as friendly with Mrs. Kane and her son as the two heads of the family were toward each other. Twenty-five years ago both Kane and Smythe got jobs with the Babcock & Wilcox Boiler Company. Smythe rose to a foremanship and Kane worked in his department.

They were within a few blocks of their home when they started to cross the street. A truck heavily loaded with rubber and driven by Frank Foster, 28, of 69 Cottage Street, Bayonne, was approaching. Both of them saw it and they tried to avoid it, but, according to the driver and another witness, they apparently became confused and stopped right in the path of the truck. Smythe was instantly killed. Kane's legs were severed from his body. He was still alive when a surgeon reached him, but soon after he arrived at Bayonne Hospital he, too, died.

Foster was arrested on a charge of manslaughter. He told the police that the accident was unavoidable.

Nine Hurt Coming From Dance.

Nine persons were injured, two of them seriously, when an automobile bringing a party home from a dance early yesterday morning was wrecked by a trolley car at Elizabeth Avenue and Smith Street, Elizabeth, N. J. The automobile was owned and driven by George Huler of 663 Fulton Street, Elizabeth. With him were Sarah Bilfowsky, 17, of 621 South Park Street; Sarah Brody, 20, of 544 South Park Street; Fanny Brody, her sister; Mary Endick, 17, of 632 South Park Street, and Rose Ferdinand of 543 South Park Street, all of Elizabeth.

Huler and the five girls were pinned beneath the automobile. The motorman of the trolley, Eugene Harker, of 20 South Second Street, and two passengers were also injured. All were taken to the Elizabeth General Hospital. Sarah Bilfowsky sustained possible internal injuries, and John Buckley of 1,165 Washington Street, Elizabeth, one of the passengers, was believed to have a fractured skull.

Truck Chauffeur Burned.

When an automobile truck which he was driving south on Third Avenue near Forty-first Street last night took fire Joseph Carpinello, 33, of 33 Kings Highway, Brooklyn, stuck to his seat until he could bring it to a halt, although the flames reached up to the driver's seat on both sides. Patrolman James Monohan of the East Thirty-fifth Street helped John Carpinello, Joseph's brother, who had jumped from the truck, to get the driver from his seat. Joseph Carpinello was attended by Dr. Edith McNaughton of Bellevue for severe burns and was taken to the hospital.

WANDERS 10,000 MILES ESCAPING FROM ARMY

LONDON, Jan. 26 (Associated Press).—After wandering nearly 10,000 miles through Asia and Europe, Russell Pattenger, of Roodhouse, Ill., who, according to army records, deserted the American Expeditionary Forces in Siberia on Jan. 17, 1920, is destitute in London, his latest attempt to surrender to the military authorities before the transport St. Mihiel sailed from Antwerp having failed.

Pattenger has been trying to get into custody for two years. Last week, when he heard that the American troops were leaving Europe, he escaped from a hospital at Hartwood, Scotland, by scaling a high wall and swimming a moat. He then beat his way across England, but lacking funds was unable to reach Antwerp.

He left the American base at Vladivostok in the middle of the Siberian winter while in a state of illness, he says. He encountered many adventurers along the Transsiberian route when finally ended for him in a Bolshevist internment camp in Moscow, from which he freed with other Americans late in 1920.

Thence he proceeded to the Esthonian border, where he planned to report to the American occupational headquarters in Cobienz, but illness intervened, and he was taken in to a German hospital where he was deported to Denmark, whence eventually he was sent to Scotland.

Pattenger first came to the notice of American officials here through a letter written to William Howard Taft when the American Chief Justice visited Aberdeen last year, but as he is classed as a deserter in a foreign country the consular and military officials were unable to assist him.

He is probably Uncle Sam's most widely travelled prodigal, and if he eventually gets home will have circled the globe, but the only fatted calves he says he anticipates are "those of the guards who lead me to the courtmartial," and these, he declares, he will be glad to see.

Not only a man without a country, but without food and funds and almost without clothes, Pattenger presents a pitiful spectacle for a man who once wore the uniform. The Red Cross is assisting him while he hunts for a ship on which he can work his passage homeward and do proper penance as the champion long-distance deserter.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—According to War Department records, Russell R. Pattenger is "a deserter at large," and enlisted in the army a number of times previous to his Russian service. Deserting in each instance before completing the term of enlistment.

The records show that on Nov. 30, 1919, Pattenger enlisted at Camp Travis, Texas, was assigned as a private to Company C, Twenty-seventh Infantry, and deserted Jan. 17, 1920, at Vladivostok. At that time, the records show, his home address was given as Dallas, Texas.

On a previous enlistment Pattenger entered the service under the name of Thomas H. Hazelwood at Fort Hamilton, New York. He remained in the service less than a month and again deserted. His residence at that time was given as The Bowery, New York City, and the emergency address as Barrow, Ill., the next of kin being a grandmother at that place.

Pattenger's first enlistment in the army is reported as having taken place on Oct. 5, 1916, at Jefferson Barracks, Missouri. He deserted October 6, the same year, the records show, but later surrendered to the authorities and was discharged at Washington Barracks, District of Columbia, June 6, 1917, on account of desertion and physical unfitness. His character is noted by the department as "bad."

Living Cost 69.5% Higher Than in Last Pre-War Year

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—Final figures announced today by the Bureau of Labor Statistics show that in the country as a whole the cost of living in December, 1922, was 69.5 per cent. higher than for the same month in 1913, the last year before the World War; 2.8 per cent. lower than in December, 1921, and 1.9 per cent. higher than in September, 1922.

Food costs for December, 1922, showed an increase of 46.8 per cent. from the average of December, 1913; clothing an increase of 71.5 per cent.; housing costs an increase of 61.9 per cent.; fuel and light an increase of 86.4 per cent., and furniture an increase of 106.2 per cent.

RUM RUNNERS BUSY ON CALM, FOGGY SEA

LONG ISLAND IS TERMINUS

Six Sailing Ships Off Highlands Said to Carry Liquors—Many Arrests in the City.

Rum runners are reported to have resumed their activities along the New Jersey and Long Island coasts. Prohibition officials refuse to discuss the reports, but a hurried conference was held at prohibition headquarters yesterday, attended by John D. Appleby, Zone Chief in charge of the enforcement of the law in New York and New Jersey; William Moss, New Jersey Prohibition Director, and John A. Murphy, confidential assistant to E. C. Yellowley, Acting Director for this State. It was reported that several thousand cases of whisky were brought in yesterday near Freeport, L. I.

A report from Atlantic Highlands last night said six schooners, believed to be rum-runners, had been sighted off shore. A large yacht is reported to have drawn alongside the fleet and to have taken on a large cargo, later delivered on Long Island. Four smaller boats, each with a capacity for 250 cases of whisky, also made trips to the fleet, it was said.

All along the Jersey coast there was increased activity among smaller boats which are believed to have been engaged for some time in transporting liquors to the shore. At Atlantic Highlands, Seabright, Asbury Park and other places, it was said, the boats were ready for operation last night. Observers at Atlantic Highlands said the sea was calm and with the hazy atmosphere considerable smuggling was to be expected.

It was understood that officials called out all available equipment for handling the situation last night. Chief Appleby communicated with Captain Byron L. Read of the Coast Guards, immediately after the conference and the cutters Seneca and Manhattan were ordered to patrol duty.

Police Search 9 Boats.

The police were also on the alert yesterday. They have a tug in Sheepshead Bay and every boat that enters there is searched. Nine boats were searched yesterday but no liquors were found. One large vessel, said by Chief Appleby to have on board 53,000 cases, is reported off Providence, R. I.

Customs Inspector T. J. Smith yesterday morning on Pier 58, North River, seized forty barrels of salt that also contained eighty cases of Scotch whisky—two cases in each barrel. William R. Sanders, Deputy Surveyor, said the salt was consigned to a large importing house, and was one of many such shipments under investigation. It will be made to find out how long this kind of liquor smuggling has been going on. Inspector Smith was attracted to the barrels by stains he discovered on the salt.

John Vannata, charged with being a fugitive from justice, was seized by four deputy sheriffs yesterday as he entered the Federal Building in Brooklyn. He had gone there to ask that his forfeited bail bond be reopened. He had been sentenced to serve eighteen months in the Federal Penitentiary in Atlanta and to pay a $5,000 fine for violating the Volstead act. The State authorities had been seeking him to serve him with a warrant sworn out by his wife, Edna, who alleges failure to keep up alimony payments. Vannata was out on $10,000 bail pending appeal of his conviction in the United States Circuit Court. When he failed to appear at the hearing on Jan. 3 his bond was forfeited.

Frank Magnante, 48 years old, an ice dealer at 3220 East 123d Street, and his son, John, 11 years old, were severely burned about the face, hands and body late yesterday afternoon, when a liquor still exploded. The father and son were taken to Harlem Hospital. The boy's condition is serious. The wrecked still, some mash and other ingredients used in making liquor, were confiscated. Magnante is charged with violation of the Mullan-Gage act. Firemen extinguished the small blaze which followed the explosion.

Find Garage Guarded.

Federal agents raided a garage at 214 Court Street, Jersey City, late yesterday, and found two Italians armed with sawed-off shotguns on guard. The agents, members of Chief Appleby's staff, said the guards relinquished their guns quickly when they realized with whom they were dealing. They were arrested.

The agents seized 125 cases of Scotch, five barrels of Scotch, five barrels of wine, 200 gallons of grain alcohol, a large quantity of corks, labels, caps, bottles and a complete bottling outfit.

Four arrests were made and forty-two barrels of wine and mash seized when William McCay and Jack Kerrigan, prohibition agents, raided a winery late yesterday at 415 East 123d Street. Augusto Fillona, said to be the owner, and three employes, Jacquino Caso, James Palo and Colin Bertini, all of the Bronx, were locked up.

Federal Agents Leap and Cupperman raided a café at 307 East Eighty-fourth Street, and arrested Charles Hartman, said to be the proprietor. The agents seized three barrels of beer, three gallons of whisky and six gallons of wine. Hartman was admitted to bail after being taken before United States Commissioner Hitchcock.

In the two weeks he has been presiding in Federal Court in Brooklyn Judge Marcus B. Campbell has disposed of 112 liquor cases and collected a total of $7,000 in fines, ranging from $50 to $100 each.

WAGNERIAN SINGERS HERE FROM GERMANY

93 MORE ARE TO COME

Berliners, Conductor Blech Says, Go to Theatres to Forget Troubles They Are Enduring.

One hundred and seven members of the Wagnerian Opera Festival arrived yesterday from Bremen on the President Roosevelt of the United States Steamship Lines with 165,000 square feet of scenery, which will fill eight freight cars on the Pennsylvania Railroad that will convey it with the singers to Baltimore, where the first performance will be given on Jan. 29. The first New York appearance of the German operatic singers will be at the Manhattan Opera House on Monday, Feb. 12, after the company has given a week's opera in Philadelphia.

Leo Blech, the chief musical conductor, who speaks English very well, said the first opera to be given in New York would be "Die Meistersinger," followed by the Ring operas. But would not give "Parsifal." He said the object of the Wagnerian Opera Festival was to give a production of the works as near perfect as possible. They could not afford to pay the salaries demanded by the big stars of the operatic world, he continued, but they aimed at getting together a number of artists who understood the Wagnerian music and took an interest in its interpretation.

When asked about opera in Berlin, Conductor Blech replied that it was a great success and the opera house was packed with an enthusiastic audience nightly. It was true that foreigners had to pay three times the prices paid for seats by the German people, but then that was quite right, as the total with the increase did not amount to anything in United States currency. Mr. Blech told the reporters that he did not bring an orchestra over with him because the union officials would have had the musicians barred under the United States contract labor laws.

Among those who arrived yesterday at the docks on the President Roosevelt were thirty-three principal artists, sixty-five chorus and managers and staff.

Mr. Blech said there was no truth in the report which had been circulated in New York that one of the agents of the Wagnerian Opera Festival in Germany had decamped with the passage money and left the artists to shift for themselves in Berlin. It was the work of some jealous person, he said.

The chief musical director added that the Berliners had to force their merriment and go to the theatres, music halls and concert rooms to forget the troubles they were passing through.

Among the thirty-three principals arriving yesterday in addition to Mr. Blech and George Hartman, the general artistic director, were:

Tenors: Jacques Urlus, Adolph Lussmann, Robert Hutt, Heins Bolimann, Johannes Scheurich, Edwin Stafer.

This is the first time that a European opera company of the first class has crossed the Atlantic Ocean to give a season in the United States. The artists of the Wagnerian Opera Festival are said to have been selected with the greatest care from the great of the opera houses in Berlin, Munich, Dresden, Frankfort and other musical cities in Germany. There are ninety-three more members of the company to come, making 200 in all.

WAR MOTHERS PROTEST.

Object to Baltimore Reception to German Opera Company.

BALTIMORE, Md., Jan. 26.—A formal letter of protest by local war mothers of the Service Star Legion, signed by Mrs. K. Golden Kennelly, Chairman of the Gold Star Chapter, against the proposed reception here next Tuesday by the Baltimore Press Club to the eGrman Grand Opera company was sent today to Judge T. J. C. Williams, the club's President. More than 100 members of the German opera company arrived in New York today. They will open their American tour in this city next Wednesday night.

The letter stated: "We cannot prevent their coming, but it seems an unnecessary indignity heaped upon us to have our Press Club sponsor them."

"In the name of our beloved soldier dead and their families," the letter continued, "I sincerely protest against this reception to this visiting money-making band of German singers."

Mrs. T. Parkin Scott, State President of the Service Star Legion, also disapproved the reception. "We passed a State resolution recently," she stated, "disapproving of German affairs of any kind, and I favor adherence to that plan until the Germans learn how to behave themselves."

State Commander Arthur E. Renouf of the American Legion indicated that no opposition to the appearance of the opera company here would be made by that body.

FAIRBANKS TURNS ON HAYS.

Declares He Is "Official Fixer" and Not "Uplifter of the Movies."

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 26.—Will H. Hays, titular head of the motion picture industry, is the "official fixer of the films" and draws his yearly salary of $150,000 in that capacity and is not the "uplifter of the movies," Douglas Fairbanks, motion picture star, declared, The Los Angeles Times stated today. Mr. Fairbanks made the declaration, The Times said, in an interview in which he commented upon his hope of banding together the stars of filmdom under a "" gentleman's agreement" which would "give photoplay patrons art" instead of what the "parasites of the industry," as he termed them, "think is art."

He made public several weeks ago his plans for grouping the leading actors and actresses of the screen in a combination designed to assure them a free hand in making and distributing their products. The group includes himself, his wife, Mary Pickford; Charlie Chaplin, Pola Negri and Harold Lloyd.

"Mr. Hays has nothing whatever to do with the art or morals of the motion picture industry," asserted Mr. Fairbanks. "He is simply the films' intermediary or 'fixer.' He has done wonderful work in straightening out the censorship tangle, but that, and only that, is his function.

"When Mr. Hays was here last month, I told him the public ought to be informed that 'moral uplift' was not his true role. I admire his ability and admire him as a man, but I believe his true status should be made known."

Will H. Hays, President of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, refused to comment today on published assertions by Douglas Fairbanks that he was not the "uplifter of the movies," but was merely "official fixer of the films."

LAURI-VOLPI, ILL, APPEARS IN 'RIGOLETTO'

The Duke	Giacomo Lauri-Volpi
Rigoletto	Giuseppe de Luca
Gilda	Amelita Galli-Curci
Sparafucile	Jose Mardones
Maddalena	Leon Rothier
Giovanna	Flora Perini
Marullo	Marie Mattfeld
Monterone	Italo Picchi
Borsa	Millo Picco
Ceprano	Angelo Bada
The Countess	Louis D'Angelo
A Page	Muriel Tindal
An Usher	Virginia Grenal

Conductor, Roberto Moranzoni.

Italy in New York, both little and great, had its first opportunity of the Winter to welcome a new compatriot from overseas, brought forward as a member of the Metropolitan constellation, at last night's opera. More persons were turned away from an overflowing house than on any previous night this season, and the crush was only in part explained by the opera, "Rigoletto," a perennial favorite rarely so late in gaining a hearing, or by the presence in it of Mme. Galli-Curci, also a recent arrival within the present week. Popular interest, as became evident soon after the start of the first act, was intent on the fate of a singer of the important role of the Duke. Patriotic feeling was behind the eager tumult and shouting that greeted each of Verdi's most famous tenor airs.

Giacomo Lauri-Volpi, buoyantly young, of pleasing stage presence and virile voice, bore himself well under difficulties that must defer today any final estimate of his abilities. Ill for five days, he had sought to postpone his début, but Gatti-Casazza advised otherwise after surveying a line of standees that surrounded the theatre, and the event justified the manager's action. Mr. Lauri-Volpi sang at moments with much labor, at all times with more fervor than freedom, more of style than substance. There were, however, happier intervals when he mastered his ailing throat and nerves and showed more than a hint of his quality. And at the finish of every aria, he was cheered by a host of voices shouting in his own Italian tongue.

The tenor is to be heard twice next week, in "La Bohème" and "La Traviata," when more critical consideration will be due. He at all events broke the ice last night. His voice was clearly heard, his effort in producing it even too clearly so, but he took the measure of the great house without disaster and gained a personal tribute of warmth and heartiness the more striking in the quiet, orderly procedure of operatic doings on Broadway.

Mme. Galli-Curci, singing her second rôle as Gilda, was applauded in the "Caro Nome" air, which she ended off-stage with an almost ventriloquial trill. Mr. De Luca had the dramatic title rôle of the hunchback jester, Mme. Perini that of Maddalena, Mr. Rothier the Sparafucile.

Mr. Italo Picchi was new in an effective episode of the ruined Monterone, once a great "little" rôle of the late Charles Gilbert, while others were Mmes. Mattfield, Muriel Tindal and Virginia Grenal, Messrs. Millo Picco and Bada, and Mr. Papi conducted. The old opera was, as in recent seasons, handsomely staged, and the ballet added to the ensemble in courtly dances.

PIANISTS IN JOINT RECITAL.

Guy Maier and Lee Pattison Give a Pleasing Performance.

Guy Maier and Lee Pattison gave their only concert of music for two pianos—music that they have made singularly their own—at Aeolian Hall last evening before a house both filled and paying. The audience was in turn repaid with a performance out of the ordinary, and in its opening number, one of highest excellence. Mozart's sonata in D for the dual instruments, his only work of the kind, once played here by Bauer and Gabrilowitsch, became under the hands of its present exponents more like a single voice of dual personality, its interlacing themes often baffling detection as to which side of the stage was their source.

The players gave pleasure, too, in a Brahms andante from the sonata Op. 34, No. 2, grouped with Raff's gavotte and musette and Weber's "Invitation to the Dance," paraphrased by Godowsky. There were also a barcarole of Rachmaninoff, the "Danse Macabre" of Saint-Saëns, and in place of a final dance group the variations on a theme of Beethoven by Saint-Saëns.

MENGELBERG ARRIVES.

Wife Accompanies Conductor Who Will Appear With Philharmonic.

The Rotterdam of the Holland-America Line arrived at Hoboken yesterday from Rotterdam, Boulogne and Plymouth after a good voyage for the midwinter season. Among the 129 first cabin passengers on board was Willem Mengelberg, the Dutch orchestral conductor, who is here for his season. His wife is with him on her first visit to America. He will conduct the Philharmonic Orchestra and will give his first concert Jan. 30 at the Metropolitan Opera House. Another European artist on the liner was Frederick Lamond, a pianist.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 26.—Judge Thomas in the United States Court today handed down a decision in the removal proceedings against Harry F. Morse of Greenwich, one of twenty-four defendants charged with conspiracy to defraud, in which he reversed the decision of United States Commissioner Lavery, who remanded Morse to the Southern District of New York for trial. Judge Thomas sustained the writ of habeas corpus, dismissed the motion of the Government and ordered Morse discharged.

Judge Thomas stated that when the removal proceedings were brought before the Commissioner the Government offered in evidence a certified copy of the indictment, together with testimony identifying the defendant and thereupon rested the case without further proof. The defendant then moved for a dismissal on the ground that the indictment was fundamentally defective and that the local Connecticut practices had not been followed.

ANIMAL STUDY HER AIM.

Mrs. McCormick Seeks Human Soul Through Zoo Reactions.

CHICAGO, Jan. 26.—Advancement of the study of animal-psychology was the reason given last night by Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick for her founding of the Chicago Zoological Park, when she spoke at a banquet here in her honor.

"I want to give to the public for the first time my inner motive," Mrs. McCormick said in discussing the foundation. "It is for the study of the psychology of animals. When we can make scientific deductions of the actions and reactions of animals we will find ourselves in a position to reach the human being. We must get nearer animals to reach the human soul."

ARCHITECTS AWARD MEDALS AT EXHIBIT

FINE SHOWING OF CRAFTS

With its annual dinner and a reception the Architectural League of New York last evening opened its thirty-eighth annual exhibition at the Fine Arts Building. It is a beautifully arranged exhibition with many features which will interest a general public. There are a number of important innovations.

Of great interest is the showing of the work of the Royal Institute of British Artists, whose members include all the most prominent architects of Great Britain. This important society has never but once before held an exhibit of the work of its members, and that was in December last in London, and this was arranged to bring together the work which is now shown in New York. The work of the visiting architects appears as a unit in a Court of Honor occupying the centre of the Vanderbilt Gallery. In it are set formal trees and benches, giving a fine decorative effect. Occupying the most prominent place in the Vanderbilt Gallery and seen through the board passage which crosses the Court of Honor is the outstanding piece of sculpture of the exhibition, the very beautiful Eugene Field Memorial Fountain, designed by Edward McCartan for Lincoln Park, Chicago.

An innovation in the league's exhibition this year is the entering of the crafts which are shown on their merit. Since the crafts have been admitted, as a natural concomitant of an architectural exhibition, they have been allowed to engage space, pay for it, and to show what they pleased more or less independently. This year the architects felt that the crafts should be taken more seriously. They were invited to exhibit and to pass a jury examination as this is done with the architectural exhibits. The result has been a more effective showing as they are combined with the architectural exhibits.

In the Centre Gallery they make a distinguished appearance. There are fine tables, a dresser and beds and hangings on the walls. Interesting in batik is the decorative work by Arthur Crisp. A fine tapestry designed by Albert Herter and executed under his direction by the Herter looms is in this room and a large and beautiful decoration on velvet, by C. Bertram Hartman, for the new Mailliard restaurant fills an end wall. Two pieces of statuary are effectively placed in the composition of the room, nude figures, "Peace," by Robert Baker, and a "Leaping Dancer," a decorative figure for a lawn or garden, by Alexander Zeitlin. Samuel Yellin's medieval wrought iron doors give a pleasingly decorative effect placed at the entrance to the Vanderbilt from the Centre Gallery.

Among the distinguished American exhibits are drawings of the George Washington Memorial at Washington by Helme & Corbett and the Bush Terminal Office Building in London by the same firm; the Eastman Theatre, donated by Mr. Eastman to the Rochester University, designed by McKim, Mead & White and shown in a series of photographs. The prize-winning drawing of The Tribune competition in Chicago is reproduced and submitted by John M. Howells and Raymond Hood.

An important group of landscape architecture is submitted by C. Wellesley-Smith, covering the Loretto (Pa.) estate of Charles M. Schwab and views of the Hudson Parkway development. Harold H. Blossom shows a large number of photographs of work spread over the New England area.

Interesting exhibitions of domestic architecture are shown. Decorative paintings show a tendency to gayety of color. A large decorative composition in bas relief is by Leo Lentelli. A charming series of little figure groups, which are shown to advantage set on pedestals, are by Mrs. George Oakley Totten. A figure of a child in a wood carving is by William Zorach.

The exhibition of the work of the English artists is interesting, showing the British tendency as it can be compared with that of the architects in this country in both commercial and residential buildings. Among the British architects exhibiting are Sir Edward Luytens, Guy Dawber, Paul Waterhouse, Ernest Newton, Mewes & Davis, E. Edwin Cooper, Sir Charles A. Nicholson, G. Gilbert Scott.

Medal in Landscape Architecture—Harold Hill Blossom.

Avery Prize—James Novelli.

NICOLAIDIS CASE DISMISSED.

Decision on Appeal Clears Him of Charge by Woman Detective.

A. Nicolaidis, a cigarette manufacturer of 83 Greenwich Street, who was convicted on a charge of disorderly conduct made by Hortense Thompson, a detective who posed as a stenographer, was discharged and the case dismissed when it came up in Special Sessions on appeal.

Miss Thompson said that when she went to the office of Nicolaidis at night at his request, he threw his arms about her neck. On her testimony he was convicted before Magistrate Levine on Oct. 11. He appealed and the case was heard by Justices Kernochan, McAneny and Edwards of Special Sessions, who, on Jan. 22, ordered the case dismissed and the fine of $50 imposed by Magistrate Levine returned to Mr. Nicolaidis.

FACTORY WAGES INCREASE.

ALBANY, Jan. 26.—A gain of 85 cents since November and of $1.48 since a year ago was made in the average weekly earnings of factory workers in New York State in December, according to the State Industrial Commissioner, Henry D. Sayer, in a report compiled from the payroll records of representative manufacturers and made public today. The average weekly earnings for December were $26.89.

Most industries reported higher average earnings, according to Mr. Sayer, the largest increases being in the metal trades, paper goods and printing industries and men's clothing shops, with an important gain in the chemical industries. The decreases were the usual seasonal reduction in the women's apparel trades, food products industries, factories making builders' supplies and establishments catering to the Christmas trade.

The gain in the entire metal products group was $2.43. Iron and steel mills, however, showed a gain of $6.06, and automobile factories, $3.32. Outside the metal trades the greatest gain was in the cement mills, $2.92. Ten industries indicated averages earnings less than a year ago, noticeably in the fur factories, where the reduction was $2.04, the largest recorded. In bakeries and biscuit factories the reduction was 96 cents, while earnings were lower also in the men's clothing, millinery and paper box industries.

Gains from November to December were apparent in the metal working industries, particularly in factories producing typewriters, cash registers, naval and dental instruments, heat measuring appliances, lanterns and moving picture machines. Earnings declined in plants manufacturing buttons, candy, flour, cereals, cocoa, sugar and cigars.

TO DROP CONTEST OF BENJAMIN WILL

OVERTURES FROM HEIRESS

Compromise Offer Said to Have Come From Adopted Daughter—Financial Terms Satisfactory.

Rumors were heard late yesterday that the efforts to settle the contest of the will of Park Benjamin, lawyer, which was brought by his children because he gave the bulk of the estate to his adopted daughter, Anna Beichi Benjamin, had reached the point where a proposed order admitting the will to probate and permitting the withdrawal of the contest, had been submitted to Surrogate O'Brien.

The Surrogate declined to state whether or not such orders had been submitted to him or had been signed, and said that any information on the subject would have to come from Wise & Seligsberg, counsel for the contestants.

It was said by them that they understood that the Surrogate would sign a decree of probate, but they could not say that he had done so.

Mrs. Dorothy Benjamin Caruso, widow of Enrico Caruso, made a statement at the office of her attorneys, Wise & Seligsberg, indicating that the settlement had been accomplished.

"I am glad to confirm the settlement of contest over my father's will," she said, "not so much because of the financial considerations of the settlement, but because the Court has determined that the derogatory statements therein about my brothers and sisters and myself will not be admitted to probate. I am advised by Messrs. Wise & Seligsberg, our counsel, that the decree to be made on the settlement will, under the Surrogate's ruling, provide that these statements be eliminated.

"I am glad that our objections to the will have resulted in establishing the proposition that a will cannot be used as a vehicle for slander and obloquy down to posterity and into the public records.

"As to the financial considerations, which I regard as secondary, it suffices to state that they were substantial, having in mind the size of the estate, which was much exaggerated in the original reports; also that the settlement resulted from overtures made by the residuary legatee charged with having procured the execution of the will by undue influence, after the Surrogate had, over opposition, directed her examination before trial.

"I am naturally gratified that no trial was needed to vindicate our position in the matter."

CZARIST SHIP IS WRECKED.

Anti-Bolsheviki Ashore on Formosa —Others Reach Philippines.

MANILLA, Jan. 26 (Associated Press).—One ship of the divided fleet of Russian ships carrying Anti-Bolshevist refugees from Vladivostok has been wrecked off the coast of Formosa, according to an unverified report received here by Governor General Leonard Wood visited the Russian refugees' ships at Mariveles Quarantine Station today and on his return announced that a relief fund would be raised for the destitute wanderers. He added that nothing had been determined yet as to their final disposition.

Discipline aboard the ships, which bear the only flagstaffs flying the banner of the former Imperial Russian Government, is excellent. All the voyagers appear to have the greatest respect for their leader, Admiral Stark.

The majority of the men have seen service in the former Imperial Russian army and navy, while some of them fought under the British flag in Mesopotamia during the World War.

There is food aboard the fleet for two or three days, while the bunkers hold sufficient fuel to keep the pumps going and the engines turning over for three days. Governor General Wood said 100 tons of coal and food supplies are being sent to Mariveles for the Russians.

The ships at Mariveles have aboard 500 officers and members of crews, eighty-two women and forty-seven children, besides nine old men, including four priests of the Greek Church. Many of the women belonged to the higher classes and apparently are unaccustomed to the hardships that have been their lot since they fled from their homes.

SAYS MOTOR SHIPS WILL RULE OCEAN

New Zealand Line's Contract Calls for Twenty-Knot Speed for New Vessel.

Sir Joseph Isherwood, inventor of the Isherwood method of ship construction, who arrived yesterday from England on the President Roosevelt of the United States Shipping Lines to consult with William H. Todd and other shipbuilders in this country, said that business was not at all good in England and that there were thousands of unemployed in the large cities. The only remedy, in his opinion, was emigration, because even with a big boom in trade it could not take care of half the people now in need of work. There were a few orders under way in the shipyards on the Clyde, Sir Joseph said, but the greater number of them were idle.

"What do you think will be the future motive power for ships?" he was asked.

"Motor ships," he replied, "driven by the Diesel engine, which is being built now in Denmark, Sweden, Norway and other countries in Europe, because it takes up less space and is far more economical to operate than the turbine or reciprocating engine.

"The Fairfield Shipbuilding Company is constructing a 20,000-ton passenger and freight steamship in its yard on the Clyde for the New Zealand Shipping Company of Lyttleton, which will be 600 feet long and will be propelled by four Diesel engines. The contract with the Fairfield Company calls for a speed of 20 knots, and the trial trip of this vessel will be watched by British steamship companies with great interest, as Diesel engines have usually been installed in vessels from 8,000 to 12,000 tons, with an average speed of 9 to 12 knots."

Sir Joseph will remain here for a few days and will then leave for Florida with Lady Isherwood and their daughter, who are sailing from Southampton next Wednesday on the White Star liner Olympic.

Another passenger who arrived on the President Roosevelt was the Countess Alma von Blucher, President of the Goodwill Charity Circle of Brooklyn, who for the past eight months has been doing welfare work in Germany, Belgium and France. She said that she needed a rest to recuperate from an illness in a German town that nearly resulted in her death. While stopping at Salzschlirf, Hessen Nassau, near Frankfort-on-Main, thieves entered her room in the hotel where she was asleep and drugged her with a gas. They took more than $5,000 worth of jewelry, she said, which was on the dressing table and escaped. The Countess was found unconscious in her bed by the maid and was taken in an ambulance to a hospital where she remained eight weeks.

When she left Germany, the Countess said, the working classes were practically starving and in many sections were killing their pet dogs for food. They spend their paper money as fast as they get it because no one believes it is any use keeping it.

A baby boy was born on Jan. 25 to Mrs. Stephen Borsa in the third class and was named Stephen Roosevelt Borsa. There was a little rough weather for two or three days, but crossing the Gulf Stream, the passengers said, was like a day in June.

CAME HERE TO GET WARM.

Scotch Visitor Praises Our Heating Systems.

Mrs. J. M. Henry of Broughty Ferry, near Dundee in Scotland, who is now att he Hotel Pennsylvania, is perhaps the only visitor to this country from the British Isles who has an euthusiasm for the American system of heating our houses and public places. Usually the high temperature of our houses is the first complaint heard by these guests. However, Mrs. Henry is most expressive in her praise and declares that she came to this country to get warm.

"I have been to America twice before and I am enamored of your central heating systems," said Mrs. Henry. "The damp and fog of England is so penetrating that one just can't keep warm, and so in desperation I decided to come to America and I haven't been cold since I git here. I know that all my lountrymen consider this system the improper way of heating, but when a house is properly heated by a central heating system and not overheated it is the only way."

SEES LIGHT WITH PIG'S EYE.

Can Distinguish Flashes, Says Youth Who Was Blind.

PATERSON, Jan. 26.—After additional tests, Dr. Edward Morgan said today that he was more confident than ever that the operation in which he grafted portions of a pig's eye tissue upon the eye of Alfred Lemonowics of Lyndhurst had been successful.

When Dr. Morgan removed the bandages today the eye was opened about a quarter of an inch and Dr. Morgan said it was healing rapidly. A pocket flashlight was turned on and off in the room and Lemonowics readily told when it was turned on. He is still very weak as a result of the operation.

POSTAL BANK RATE RISE.

Committee Would Pay 3 Per Cent. Interest on Deposits Up to $3,000.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—The interest rate which the Government pays on deposits in its postal savings banks would be increased from 2 per cent. to 3 per cent. under a bill reported today to the House by the Post Office Committee. Also the maximum amount which any individual depositor could have to his credit would be increased from the present $2,500 to $3,000.

Postmaster General Work in his annual report recommended that the maximum be raised to $5,000, but Secretary Mellon suggested $3,000, taking the position that the limit should not be raised so high as to discourage investment of surplus funds in private business enterprise by the small savers.

KEEP VIGIL BESIDE BODY.

Family of Arizona Man Still Insist He Is Not Dead.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 26.—Members of the family of George W. Stevenson continued their vigil in a local undertaking establishment tonight beside Stevenson's body, which they declared to be in a state of suspended animation.

Although a clinic of eight physicians, assembled by order of Coroner Bolen, submitted a unanimous report yesterday, pronouncing Stevenson dead, his family and friends still hold to the belief that life will return to the body. Not ones since Stevenson passed from consciousness Tuesday afternoon has the body been left alone.

C. W. Lewis, a friend of Stevenson, declares that the latter knew of the coming period of suspended animation several days in advance, and had new bed springs and a new mattress placed on his bed.

Train Kills Boy on Way to School.

ARKANSAS YOUTH SAYS NINE MEN BEAT HIM

He Tells Legislative Committee He Had No Connection With Railroad Troubles.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Jan. 26.—The story of Dewey Webb, an eighteen-year old boy, who said he was tied to a post with a strip of barbed wire around his forehead and whipped, was the feature of tonight's testimony submitted before the Joint Senate and House Committee of the Arkansas Legislature which is conducting an investigation of recent disorders along the Missouri & North Arkansas Railroad. Another witness was questioned concerning his relations with the Industrial Workers of the World.

The committee announced tonight that it would go to Harrison, Ark., to go over the scenes of the trouble there.

Webb, the first witness called tonight, said he had never worked for the railroad, had never belonged to any union, and knew nothing about any depredations along the railroad except what he had read in the newspapers.

Following his examination by the "citizens' committee" at Heber Springs, his home, he said, he was preparing to leave town and was followed by nine men. They took him in charge, he said, led him to the edge of town, tied him to a post, and eight of the men gave him two "licks" apiece, and the ninth hit him three times.

The object of the whipping, he said, was to make him "tell about the depredations along the railroad, whether he knew anything or not."

W. C. Webb, a brother, a brakeman on the Missouri & North Arkansas Railroad until he went out on strike, was called to the stand later and testified that he had stayed with Dewey two nights in the woods and that his brother was searching able to talk.

According to his testimony, he was unable to give information regarding crimes along the railroad, and having been given his choice of signing up to renounce his union and strike benefits or leave town, he left.

FACTORY GIRL MURDERED.

Refused to Run Off With Man Who Later Attempts Suicide.

Because Christina Oppido, 15 years old, refused to run away with him, Daniel Maniere, 21 years old, shot her through the heart, killing her instantly, yesterday in front of the factory where the girl worked in the Seventh Police Precinct, Jersey City.

Maniere ran, but when he was in danger of being overtaken he stopped and shot himself twice through the chest. He was taken to City Hospital, where he is dying.

The police took into custody yesterday in the same neighborhood, Antoinette Muscato, 15, of 44 Jewett Street who had run off a week ago with Joseph Beimonti, when her parents refused permission for their marriage. After the girl had been found yesterday, parental consent to the wedding was obtained, and the ceremony will take place today.

ACCUSES JEWELER OF FRAUD

Informed by Assistant District Attorney Vincent Auleta that the defendant was thought to have defrauded patrons out of about $25,000 worth of jewelry which they turned over to him for repairs, Magistrate Francis X. McQuade in West Side Court yesterday held Harry Bernbaum, 36 years old, a jeweler, of 227 East Ninety-fifth Street, with an office on the seventh floor of 7 West Forty-fifth Street, in $10,000 bail for examination Jan. 31.

Bernbaum was arrested on complaint of Hattie Chopak, 26 years old, of 100 West 116th Street, who alleges the defendant failed to return a $1,250 diamond bracelet she gave him on Dec. 26 to repair.

Paul Rosen, owner of a chain of cafeterias, who was in court, said he gave the defendant $11,500 worth of jewelry and $750 in cash to do some work on the jewels on Dec. 24. Three other persons also complained of losses.

VALUABLE PAINTINGS GONE.

Captain U. G. Bellini Accuses Missing Italian Who Was His Guest.

BOSTON, Jan. 26.—Disappearance of three valuable paintings—one of them attributed to Da Vinci—was under investigation today by police officials, who held a warrant for the arrest of Celso Ballieno of Rome, Italy, charging larceny. Captain Umberto G. Bellini reported that the paintings disappeared from his Beacon Hill apartment at the same time that Ballieno, who had been his guest, left a note saying he was returning to Italy. The value of the paintings, at first said to be $540,000, was subsequently placed at $90,000 nominally, although that attributed to Da Vinci was said to be almost priceless.

The Da Vinci picture was that of a madonna and two children; the second missing piece, by an unknown artist, was of the Last Supper, and the third was of a madonna, two children and two saints, by Gentile di Fabrizzi.

19 DEATH-CAR CONVICTIONS.

A jury in Judge Mancuso's part of General Sessions yesterday convicted another chauffeur on a charge of manslaughter in connection with an automobile killing. It was the nineteenth conviction of the kind in General Sessions in the last three months. The case was that of Benjamin Greenberg of 126 East 108th Street, whose car struck and killed Katherine Gilmartin, 11, of 67 East 108th Street, when she and three girl friends were crossing the street in front of her home on the afternoon of Sept. 2.

Greenberg was found guilty mainly on the testimony of his victim's friends, Theresa Neidhamer of 1,599 Madison Avenue, May Glynn of 72 East 110th Street, and Lillian Garvey of 75 East 106th Street. He will be sentenced next week.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren were also received in farewell audience by the Empress. They will sail for America Sunday on the liner President Cleveland.

Dr. Cohen Held in Passport Charge.

Dr. Maximilian Cohen, who is suspected of being an agent of the Communists, was held in $2,000 bail by Federal Judge Winslow, yesterday, to answer a charge of having sworn falsely in an application for a passport to enable him to visit South America. Cohen Mrs. Cohen will be arraigned later.

Woman's Will Orders Dog Killed.

The will of Elizabeth T. Cairns of 1,219 Ninety-fifth Street, Woodhaven, filed yesterday for probate in the Queens County Surrogate's Office, orders that Lassie, her pet collie, be killed in a humane way and buried in a plot to be purchased in the Hart Cemetery for dogs at Yonkers.

DENIES HE KISSED CROMWELL'S WIFE

DIVORCE TRIAL ADJOURNED

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Jan. 26.—The divorce action of John Howard Cromwell, yachtsman and lawyer, against Mrs. Rose Barker Cromwell, which has been on trial before Supreme Court Justice Seeger and a jury for ten days, was adjourned this afternoon until Monday. At that time the attorneys on each side will sum up and Justice Seeger will make his charge.

Harry Cohen, named as one of the co-respondents, testified today that he had a meeting with Mrs. Cromwell four months after her marriage. Humphrey J. Lynch, as counsel for Cromwell, asked Cohen if he was very much in love with Mrs. Cromwell before her marriage.

"I was very fond of her," replied the witness.

"Where did you meet her after her marriage?"

"No."

"Yes."

"Did you ever kiss her in your life?"

"No."

"Did you ever hold her hand?"

"I may have. Maybe I only shook her hand."

Throughout his cross-examination Cohen insisted he had not been unduly friendly with Mrs. Cromwell. While on the witness stand he drank five glasses of ice water.

Lynch, at opening of the court today, called Henry D. Holden of 271 West 125th Street, attorney for Cromwell, to tell about an attempt that had been made by Hyman Bushel, attorney for Mrs. Cromwell, to settle the divorce action. Holden said Bushel telephoned to him and said he would like to talk over a settlement of the suit and he visited Bushel's office.

It was finally agreed to pay Mrs. Cromwell $71,000 cash and her counsel fees, Holden said, but Mrs. Cromwell put in her answer and decided to fight the charges.

Holden, under cross-examination, said Mrs. Cromwell's dower interest in her husband's estate if she lived twenty-nine years would be $400,000.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Generally Higher, but Changes Irregular—Foreign Exchange Rates Decline.

The only market which moved to any purpose yesterday was foreign exchange. The stock market, though with somewhat more of irregularity than the day before, made some display of underlying strength with evident diversion of interest from the European disputes; but the movement was narrow and the amount of business relatively small. European exchange rates, however, were distinctly weak again. Sterling went to the lowest of the week, francs almost to the week's low figure, and the German mark again touched 43 ten-thousandths of a cent, its previous low level of depreciation, with reports of small transactions even lower.

At London, where the mark is quoted more sensibly under present conditions than on Wall Street, the pound sterling exchanged yesterday for 111,000 marks; the highest previous figure was 110,000 a fortnight ago. The top price of 1922 was 41,000 marks to the pound; the price of last January was 695. From whatever viewpoint this extraordinary story of depreciating paper is regarded, the comparisons are equally portentous. Considering the current reports on output of paper marks and the economic situation created for Germany by the deadlock in the Ruhr, it can hardly be said that renewed depreciation is surprising. At the moment it is not clear how Germany is financing her necessary foreign purchases, which in this country alone foot up $30,000,000 to $35,000,000 a month, offset before the new tariff by only one-third as much in German merchandise sold to us. That the Government or the German merchants are still selling marks abroad in quantity for whatever they will bring, seems hardly credible. Probably they are drawing on previously accumulated balances; the longer outcome even of that process not being easy to see.

The day's weakness in the mark may have been connected with the announcement that the Reparation Commission had formally declared Germany in default of all reparations payments, its request for a moratorium nullified automatically by its own declarations since the movement into the Ruhr, and the treaty provisions operative as set forth in view of a possible default. This action was regarded in financial circles as a necessary sequel to the action of the German Government, but more stress was laid on the fact that the British commissioner, though not voting either way on the formal resolution, took part in the drafting of its findings. To the extent that this disposed of some of the rumors current the day before, in regard to England's purpose of cutting loose from France, it may have thrown some light on the situation. But the foreign exchange market appeared to draw no definite inferences, unless such as were unfavorable to German exchange.

Transactions on the Stock Exchange yesterday were not much above the daily average of this inactive week, and nearly one-fourth of the total business was in half a dozen industrial shares, evidently reflecting the energies of a few groups of professional speculators. The bond market was generally steady, but the French Republic bonds went lower. Thus far these bonds have shown more sensitiveness to the "Ruhr rumors" and the pessimistic predictions than anything else in the market.

Reports from the general run of home industries this week, summed up in the mercantile trade reviews, are described as "the best received since the Spring of 1920"; a somewhat striking picture, since it means that activity is greater even than in the normally very busy production of last Autumn. Ordinary mercantile trade will naturally make no such comparison; business in January never measures up to the "Christmas trade." But even from the merchants expanding activities are reported, with avidences of "need for replenishment of merchants' stocks," accelerated distribution by retailers, and with the buyer rather than the seller now taking the initiative. This activity seems to be fairly nation-wide; it is reasonably safe indication that the long-continued process of "hand-to-mouth buying" has pretty much reached its end.

MONEY.

FRIDAY, JAN. 26, 1923.

Stock Exchange call money was firm at 4½ per cent., unchanged from Thursday's minimum and final. There was some calling in forenoon, causing replacements, but marked activity developed later in session when new money came in. Time money is offered in moderate volume at 4¾ per cent., with bid at 4½; actual trading is going at 4¾@4¾ per cent. Mercantile paper and eligible acceptances discounted unchanged in quiet markets.

DECLARE STOCK DIVIDEND.

Pennsylvania Coal and Coke Company Also Changes Personnel.

Directors of the Pennsylvania Coal and Coke Company yesterday announced the declaration of a 10 per cent. stock dividend, payable to holders of record Feb. 2, 1923. The par value of the stock remains as at present, $50 a share. In addition, the board declared a cash dividend of $1 a share, payable Feb. 10, 1923, to stock of record Feb. 2. The cash dividend will be paid upon both the present and outstanding capital stock and on the additional stock to be issued as a stock dividend.

Several changes in the personnel of the company were also announced. John H. Lear and C. H. Memory resigned from the board, and Fairfax B. Landstreet, Joseph F. Ripley, George H. Walker and C. Law were added to the board. Fairfax B. Landstreet was elected Chairman of Directors.

Banking Institute Dinner Feb. 17.

The twenty-second annual banquet of the New York Chapter, Inc., American Institute of Banking, will be held at the Hotel Astor on Feb. 17. Governor Henry J. Allen of Kansas and W. L. Saunders, Chairman of the Ingersoll-Rand Company and a Director of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, will speak. George H. Jackson of the Brooklyn branch of the Bank of America and Edward R. Vincent of the Irving Bank are handling reservations.

NATIONAL COAL CO. PLANS.

Burns Brothers' Directors Will Extend Organization to Other Cities.

Directors of the Burns Brothers Coal Company at their meeting scheduled for next Tuesday are expected to discuss the organization of the National Coal Company, Inc., according to reports in the financial district yesterday. The National Company is being organized by Burns Brothers interests, who have long planned to extend operations of the present organization to other large cities of the country. According to report the capitalization of the new company will consist of $10,000,000 preferred stock and 500,000 shares of common stock of no par value, but it was intimated yesterday that there might be some change in the proposed capitalization before the terms are finally agreed upon.

It is understood that the outstanding securities of the Burns Company will be exchanged for the stock of the National Company, but details of the basis of exchange are not yet available. It is also said that the securities remaining after the exchange of stock will be offered to present Burns Brothers stockholders.

Wilcox Output 2,500,000 Barrels.

The Wilcox Oil and Gas Company yesterday officially announced that production last year amounted to 2,500,000 barrels, which was equal to the entire production for the four preceding years.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Dull Day at the Stock Exchange.

There was little movement of importance in yesterday's stock market. Prices in most of the active issues showed little change from the previous closing, the average of twenty-five railroad stocks being down .04 and the average for the same number of industrials being up .37, a net gain of .16 for fifty stocks. Where net gains of a point or more occurred they were confined to stocks which play little part in the general movement. The net changes for the day, according to general opinion, indicated that even the professional element in the street was tired of bidding up stocks for its own account. So far as concerns the interest of the outside public, it was said in commission houses yesterday that this is almost all, and that the greater portion of the business being done is for professional traders and pools. Several attempts were made during the day to stimulate outside interest, but they were unsuccessful.

The Railway Shares.

Specialists in railway stocks were quoted yesterday as believing that several stocks of this group were being accumulated with a view to "better showing of traffic and earnings in the next few months. The buying of Baltimore & Ohio was particularly heavy yesterday, amounting to 12,500 shares, although the stock gained only fractionally. Lackawanna gained two points, while advances were also shown in Northern Pacific and Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie preferred.

Yesterday's Cabinet Meeting.

The banking community had an idea that the unusually lengthy Cabinet meeting yesterday might prove to be significant in view of the delicate situation in Europe. The news tickers were scanned for hints as to what was being discussed by the President and his official advisers, but nothing was learned during the day except that practically the entire session was given over to a consideration of foreign affairs. Much interest was attached to the news that Secretary of State Hughes and Secretary of War Weeks remained with President Harding after the regular meeting had adjourned, and that after Mr. Hughes had gone the Secretary of War remained for a further conference. This was assumed, however, to be a development in regard to arranging the details of bringing the American soldiers home.

The offer of William C. Durant to buy the Fisher Body Corporation for $200 a share created no end of talk in the financial district yesterday, and in the majority of brokerage houses, where the lively financial scrap now going on is being watched with interest, it was regarded more or less as a "magnificent gesture." It was described as quite outside the range of possibility that the General Motors Company would release to a competitor one of its most valuable units. Nevertheless, the offer, possibly backed by a few judicious market orders, caused a nine-point upturn in Fisher Body yesterday, and it closed at 184, a depreciation of only 16 points from the 200 price at which Mr. Durant has disposed of some of the units. Comment on the offer was inclined to be facetious. One broker remarked, after perusing his morning paper: "Well, if Mr. Durant will give $100,000,000 for Fisher Body I will be perfectly willing to bid an equal amount for the Statue of Liberty."

The French Bonds.

The continued selling of French bonds, which was the outstanding feature in the bond market yesterday, has brought many of the issues down to a point where they are considered by investment bankers in Wall Street as unreasonably low, considering current prices and the fact that France has met every obligation in the New York market. It was pointed out yesterday in several banking quarters that the outstanding French bonds, even including the French cities and the industrials, now outstanding in the New York market are of so small volume in comparison with France's total obligations that the service of this debt is actually a negligible consideration in the budget. The fact was also emphasized that France must protect her credit in this market. The 7½ per cent. bonds and the 8 per cent. bonds both made new low records yesterday, the former at 88¾ and the latter at 91⅝. The Paris, Lyons & Mediterranean 6s struck a new low level at 66¼. Declines ranging from ¼ to ⅝ of a point were registered throughout the list.

Pierce-Arrow Financing Approved.

The terms and amount of the new financing proposed by the Pierce-Arrow Motor Car Company for the purpose of liquidating its bank loans and floating debt were officially approved at a meeting of the Board of Directors held in this city yesterday. The underwriting papers were also signed and it is expected that an official offering of the new securities will be made to stockholders on Monday. According to the bankers, a circular will be sent to stockholders over the week-end outlining the plan as approved yesterday. This plan, the details of which were published yesterday, calls for the issuance of $3,500,000 one-year 6 per cent. notes and $4,200,000 8 per cent. debentures. Each $1,000 of debentures carries a bonus of 3¾ shares of new prior preference stock entitled to 6% annual dividends and convertible into common stock on the basis of five shares of common for each share of prior preference. The securities will be first offered to present stockholders on a pro rata basis, details of which will be covered in the circular.

Studebaker Dividend Meeting Wednesday

Directors of the Studebaker Corporation meet next Wednesday to take action on the quarterly dividend on the common stock covering the first quarter of the year. At the same time the earnings statement covering the last quarter and full year of 1922 is also expected to be made public. According to reports circulated in the financial district yesterday, only the regular quarterly dividend of $2.50 a share on the capital stock, including the amount issued in the form of a stock dividend, is expected. No talk is heard of an extra payment. The earnings statement for the last quarter of the year, although not expected to be as favorable as that for the preceding quarters of 1922, nevertheless is expected to show the dividend earned more than twice.

Brooklyn Rapid Transit Securities.

For the third successive day yesterday Brooklyn Rapid Transit 5 per cent. bonds showed substantial gains, largely on the belief that the forthcoming reorganization plan would prove beneficial to these securities. After selling up to 71¾, the bonds sold off fractionally, closing at 71, a net advance of 4 points for the day. The refunding 4s also exhibited strength, closing at 60¾, a net advance of 1¾, although the 7s—which have been in default since 1923—lost half a point.

$82,923,000 BONDS OFFERED IN A WEEK

BETHLEHEM'S NEW ISSUE

$25,000,000 Thirty-Year Securities on Market—Absence of Foreign Financing.

New bond offerings of the week reached a total of $82,923,000 par value, a sharp drop from the total of the preceding week, which amounted to $232,276,000. Of the new offerings this week $46,800,000 consisted of industrial bonds, $14,873,000 State and municipal, $19,250,000 public utility, $10,000,000 railway, and $1,000,000 farm loan. There were no foreign bonds put on the market during the week.

The outstanding feature of the week's offerings was the $35,000,000 of steel bonds, which two of the largest independent steel concerns of the country sold to banking syndicates and which were opened for subscription yesterday. These issues bolstered up the week's total considerably, and constituted the consummation of industrial financing which had been brewing for many weeks.

The largest of the issues of steel bonds was the Bethlehem Steel Corporation $25,000,000 Series B consolidated mortgage thirty-year 5½ per cent. gold bonds which were offered at 93, to yield over 6 per cent. The proceeds of the bonds were to go for payment of $10,862,000 first mortgage bonds of the Lackawanna Steel Company, the properties of which recently were acquired by Bethlehem, and any unconverted balance of Bethlehem 7 per cent. secured gold notes maturing July 15, 1923. In connection with the present issue, it was explained by the bankers who underwrote the bonds, the Lackawanna properties would be placed under the lien of the consolidated mortgage, either directly or collaterally.

An issue of $10,000,000 Republic Iron and Steel Company refunding and general mortgage sinking fund thirty-year 5½ per cent. gold bonds constituted the other outstanding development of the industrial bond offerings. These bonds also were offered yesterday, the price being 94½ and accrued interest, to yield about 5.90 per cent. The company sold them to reimburse the treasury, in part, for capital expenditures, and to provide funds for a program of additions and betterments. The company plans to finish its construction program by Jan. 1, 1924, a move which is not only expected to increase production, but to bring about substantial economies in operation. It is estimated that this program will increase earnings by at least $1,500,000 annually, measured by present costs and profits.

The State and municipal issues attracted attention during the week largely because of the number rather than for any specific issue. There were seventeen individual issues, the largest being $5,000,000 State of California 4¼ per cent. bonds which were offered at prices to yield 4.15 per cent. The public utility offerings were made up of two issues, one of $4,750,000 Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company 5 per cent. bonds, and the other of $5,500,000 Memphis Power & Light Company 5 per cent. bonds. There was but one issue in the railway group, the $10,000,000 Northern Pacific 5 per cent. bonds, which were offered at 99 to yield 5.05 per cent.

The total offerings for the week were divided into the following groups:

State and municipal	$14,873,000
Industrial	46,800,000
Farm loan	1,000,000

The absence of any foreign financing was widely commented upon in financial quarters during the week, although the situation as a whole was viewed as a natural result of the recent trend of developments in Europe. With the situation in the Ruhr as such an involved point that many foreign countries find themselves vitally implicated, it is not believed in local quarters that any extended foreign financing will be attempted in the near future.

FEDERAL AGAIN SELLS SUGAR

The Federal Sugar Refining Company yesterday announced that it has re-entered the sugar market and that the price for its product will be 6.50 cents a pound, prompt delivery and without guarantee of any kind. At the same time the company announced that it has resumed operation of its Yonkers plant.

"Our reason for closing the Yonkers plant last October was the conviction that the price of raw sugar was artificially high, and the light demand for refined sugar prevailing at that time did not warrant the risk involved. Until now we have noted no new factor in the situation that would have justified reopening the plant. The recent break in raw sugar prices, however, marks a turn in the right direction and the company is again in the market, and today we are offering refined sugar for prompt delivery at 6.50 without guarantees. While competitors' prices are nominally 6.70 it is understood that lower prices are being made privately, and buyers are guaranteed against any decline."

Surplus stock cars increased 2,518 to 6,283.

ARGENTINA TO BULK ITS FLOATING DEBT

PLANS THREE BOND ISSUES

The Argentine Government proposes to consolidate its floating debt, amounting to 604,836,356 pesos, on Sept. 30, 1921, according to advices yesterday in the financial community. It is believed that the debt now amounts to something like 1,000,000,000 pesos, of which $77,000,000 was borrowed in the United States. The par value of the Argentine paper peso is $.4245 and at the current rate of exchange it is reported at $.37856.

Local bankers were unacquainted with the plans of the Argentine Government looking to a consolidation of the floating debt, but it was believed that the move would not be made for some time. From other sources it was stated that the Government would make three bond issues in order to obtain the necessary funds, the first for 500,000,000 pesos Treasury bonds, bearing interest at 3 per cent., and 2 per cent. sinking fund. These bonds, it was said, would be exchangeable for cash at sight at the Bank of the Argentine Nation. The plan was said to call for an invitation to all banks to invest 10 per cent. of their deposits in these bonds.

The second issue, it was reported, would be called the Patriotic Loan and would amount to 200,000,000 pesos at 6 per cent., to be issued in two series, each for 100,000,000 pesos, while the third issue would be a foreign loan for $150,000,000 or $200,000,000. No reference to an Argentine loan has been heard in local markets, and it was held that the Government's plan had not yet assumed concrete proportions.

JERSEY STANDARD WON'T RAISE WAGES

Oil Company's Directors Base Refusal on Decrease in Cost of Living.

PAY 190% OVER 1914

Higher Than Wages Paid Elsewhere in the Community for Similar Work, Says Statement.

The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, the largest operating unit of the so-called Standard Oil group of companies, yesterday refused to grant an increase in wages, requested by the company's employes in the various plants located in New Jersey. The decision of the Directors was made known yesterday at a joint conference of Directors and representatives of employes at Bayonne, Bayway and Eagle Works, Jersey City. In an official statement issued by the company it was said that the decision of the Directors was based upon the fact that recent figures of the United States Bureau of Labor as of December, 1922, showed that the cost of living showed an increase of 74.3 per cent. over 1914, whereas in October, 1921, when the company eliminated the last 10 per cent. bonus, the cost of living was 79.1 per cent. above 1914. The company also pointed out that at the present time the wages being paid to its employes are 190 per cent. above the 1914 scale and that they are higher than wages being paid elsewhere in the community for similar work.

"Directors of the Standard Oil Company (N. J.) today notified joint conferences of employes at Bayonne, Bayway and Eagle Works, Jersey City, that they could not consider favorably petitions for an increase in wages at the three refineries. The men asked for an increase on the ground of higher living costs effective since the last action on the wage question, and the Directors based their decision on the fact that figured furnished by the United States Bureau of Labor Statistics, which have been used in considering all wage adjustments, showed a decline.

"The company also calls attention to the fact that wages paid by it, in every instance are as high or higher, than those prevailing elsewhere in the community for similar work.

"In their adverse finding, the Directors point out that in October, 1921, when the last 10 per cent. bonus was removed, the Government figures showed the increase in living costs over December, 1914, at 79.7 points. The latest figures for December, 1922, show this increase at 74.3, a decline of 5.5 points or slightly less than 7 per cent. The increase in average hourly earnings at the New Jersey refineries from 1914 to date has been approximately 190 per cent."

Disappointment over the action of the Standard Oil Company was expressed by delegates of the men at the regular conference yesterday between officials and workers in Bayonne. Spokesmen for the workers who asked the increase declared that the company, in denying the request, did not take into consideration the fact that living conditions in Bayonne were higher than in other cities in the New York area. One delegate declared that the decision was not consistent with the principle enunciated by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., that all workers are entitled to a living wage.

After the meeting the delegates indicated that future action on the part of employes would depend upon meetings to be held next week.

JAPAN TO RESUME PARLEYS.

New Ambassador Will Reopen Negotiations on Immigration.

TOKIO, Jan. 26 (Associated Press).—Masano Hanihara, newly appointed Ambassador to the United States, who will sail for San Francisco Saturday, has been instructed to resume immigration negotiations with the American Government, according to a statement made in the Diet today by Viscount Uchida, Foreign Minister.

Viscount Uchida, who made the announcement in reply to a question, said that Mr. Hanihara would resume negotiations where they were interrupted between Former Ambassador Shidehara and Roland W. Morris, former Ambassador to Japan, by the opening of the Washington arms conference and the illness of the Japanese diplomat. He added that detailed instructions for Ambassador Hanihara were still under consideration and could not be disclosed at present.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26 (Associated Press).—The last diplomatic conventions on the question of Japanese immigration came to an end in 1921 after Ambassador Morris, acting for the American State Department, and Ambassador Shidehara had discussed the situation, particularly with regard to the California land law. No satisfactory agreement was reached and the discussions came to an end, presumably to await action in the State and Federal courts.

Recent decisions by the Supreme Court upholding certain aspects of the California laws are understood to have illustrated the futility, according to the Japanese viewpoint, of deciding the immigration question to the satisfaction of Japan. At the time Ambassadors Morris and Shidehara were discussing the question it was thought probable that a satisfactory solution might be found through the courts.

Press advices stating that the new Japanese Ambassador would resume conversations upon his arrival here were received at the State Department with surprise.

JANUARY BUSINESS GOOD.

Reports From All Sections to Mercantile Agencies Optimistic.

January business has been good, according to reports from all sections to mercantile agencies here. After a holiday lull that was less evident than usual, activities broadened and many orders have been placed at enhanced prices.

"Following a 16 per cent. advance last year, the general wholesale price level has risen further," according to Dun's Review, "and the wide margin of increases in Dun's list again is a feature this week. The larger demand for goods obviously is a factor in the upward price movement, but there is the contributing element of restricted supplies in some instances, and production costs are maintained on a high basis. While labor troubles do not now seriously interfere with operations, a shortage of workers has become a handicap in some industries and the question of making deliveries as specified enters more sharply into manufacturers' calculations."

"Reports from industrial lines are, in fact, the best received since the Spring of 1920, whereas trade reports have at some ground to gain before equaling the total business of last Autumn, if, indeed, it is possible for business at this period of the year to equal that of the Fall season. In industry, activity is virtually country-wide, the meaning building, mining and lumbering as well as ordinary factory operation, and labor is employed to an extent rare in mid-Winter.

"Our export trade in foods showed a big increase, foreign takings of our wheat for six months of the cereal year 1922-23 are heavily below the same period of 1921-22, and the best showing made among our exports in the cruder forms of manufactures, whereas further raw cotton has been possible because of higher prices offsetting a lessened volume of export."

SAYS LOAN TO CUBA SET HER ON HER FEET

President Zayas, Signing With Morgan's, Declares the Treasury Now Stabilized.

HAVANA, Cuba, Jan. 26 (Associated Press).—"Flotation of the $50,000,000 external loan has absolutely stabilized the Cuban Treasury," it was declared by President Zayas, through José M. Cortina, Secretary of the Presidency, after the formal signing today of the loan contract by the President and Elliott C. Bacon of J. P. Morgan & Co., who heads the American banking syndicate underwriting the loan.

The loan will be applied in strict accordance with the loan law enacted by Congress, that is to say, to the total liquidation of the amounts due public employes, to the payment of veterans' overdue pensions, to contracts for public works and to the replacement of special treasury funds.

"The taxes to be employed for the amortization and payment of interest on the loan," the President's statement continues, "are giving a return this year greatly in excess of the amount necessary for these obligations. The returns from the new tax of 1 per cent. on gross sales will, therefore, be a surplus for the present fiscal year, since no special application has been provided for this income. To sum up, it can be affirmed that this fiscal year will end with all obligations paid, all old debts liquidated and with a surplus in the Treasury.

"The Government, since it took possession on May 20, 1921, has made a reduction in the public expenses from $134,000,000 a year to $88,000,000. It will continue to employ the same methods which have given such brilliant results."

The latter assertion, together with denial by the President of pending Cabinet changes, is believed in well-informed circles to mean that no interference will take place in the work of the so-called "reform cabinet" installed when the "moralization program," suggested by Major Gen. E. H. Crowder, was put into effect eight months ago.

EUROPEAN CURRENCIES AND PAR OF EXCHANGE

Existing Situation and Outlook Discussed by Leading London Banker.

Discussing the question of a possible return of sterling to par, Walter Leaf, Chairman of the London County Westminster and Parr's Bank of London, states in an address to the Manchester Chamber of Commerce that "the old measure of the par of exchange has necessarily ceased to have any meaning unless as a far-ideal, so long as the currencies of the world have ceased to be redeemable in gold and have been inflated in various degrees." Mr. Leaf pointed out that "a return to the gold standard does not mean a return to the old prewar prices."

He continued: "One result of the general substitution of paper for gold currency has been to depreciate materially the purchasing power of gold itself. Gold is a commodity which is not exempted by any intrinsic magic from the laws which govern other commodities. Vast masses of it have been withdrawn from circulation; one chief use for gold has ceased. The result of a largely decreased demand, coupled with no great diminution in the supply, has been the same with gold as with anything else; the value in exchange of gold has gone down.

"Of the gold which was in the pockets of our own people none remains: it has passed into the vaults of the Bank of England and thence very largely into those of the United States Treasury. The great gold reserves held in Russia have been thrown upon the market. Hence it is that in the United States, which have always been on a gold basis, prices have risen largely, though there has been no inflation.

"This fall in the value of gold was very rapid and produced some curious effects. In Sweden the Riksbank found in 1916 that gold was being forced upon it in such quantities that it could not buy, as it was bound to do at a fixed price, without making a serious loss. The importation of gold was therefore forbidden by a special law, and the paper currency of Sweden was thus actually enabled to rise above the gold parity and to stand at a premium; gold was the depreciated currency which threatened, in accordance with Gresham's law, to drive out the superior paper.

"There is this fundamental distinction between the two causes of the rise in prices—that whereas the drop in the purchasing power of gold is limited, at all events so long as important States remain on a gold basis, the issue of instruments of credit is without limits, except those imposed by the temporary incapacity of printing presses to supply fresh currency fast enough. In England we have little inflation, and prices, if we may judge from the American figures, are not far from the point which corresponds to the fall in the value of gold.

"In Central Europe things are very different, and the fall in purchasing power of the various currencies, which has been so amazingly rapid in the last twelve months, is due almost wholly to inflation, to uncontrolled issues of currency notes, the fall in the value of gold taking an insignificant place."

DURANT MAKES NEW FISHER BODY OFFER

OTHER PROPOSAL IGNORED

The offer made by William C. Durant, head of Durant Motors, Inc., and allied companies, to purchase the entire capital stock of the Fisher Body Corporation for $900 a share attracted considerable attention in Wall Street yesterday. In most quarters it was believed that Mr. Durant would never have made the offer, which would involve $100,000,000 if he had thought there was any possibility of General Motors giving up control of the company, which manufactures most of the automobile bodies for General Motors cars. Others said that behind the whole matter was an effort on the part of certain Wall Street interests to stave off a supposed attempt by Durant to get control of the Fisher Body Corporation.

Neither the officers of the General Motors Corporation, which controls Fisher Body Corporation through majority stock ownership, nor those of Fisher Body Corporation would comment on Mr. Durant's offer.

Mr. Durant issued another statement yesterday. Part of it was directed against certain interests which, Mr. Durant asserts, in trying to discredit his efforts to build up a new automobile combination, are attacking his unit plan to sell Fisher Body shares. He also offers to repurchase Fisher Body units at $40 a unit, the highest price at which such units were offered, and pay a premium of $3 a unit. This is equivalent to $215 a share. The stock is now quoted on the Stock Exchange at $184 a share.

The statement issued by the Durant Corporation says:

"The Durant Motors Corporation today issued a circular to purchasers of Fisher Body Corporation units at $40 per unit equivalent to $200 a share.

"The editor and owner of a well known, but at the moment rather discredited, financial publication, with a desire to please certain Wall Street interests, has seen fit to attack the Durant clientele using the Fisher Body Corporation as the vehicle.

"To our subscribers and partners: If any purchaser of Fisher Body Corporation units at $40 per unit is at all concerned about the future and stability of the investment, the Durant Corporation will, upon the acknowledgment and surrender of the contract, return all money paid on same, plus $3 per unit—equivalent to $215 per share for Fisher Body Corporation stock.

"The Durant Corporation."

In local banking circles yesterday the opinion was expressed that it was unlikely that the General Motors Corporation, which owns 300,000 of the 500,000 shares of no par value common stock of the Fisher Body Corporation outstanding, would even consider Durant's offer because the Fisher Body Corporation is too valuable to the larger corporation. Eventually, it is said, it will be made an integral part of the General Motors Corporation just as the Buick, Chevrolet, Cadillac and other companies are now a part of the parent company.

It was pointed out yesterday that the new financing plan of the Fisher Body Corporation is for the purpose of expanding the producing facilities of the company in order that it may better be able to take care of the constantly increasing demands of the General Motors organization.

The new Fisher Body financing, consisting of $20,000,000 6 per cent. serial notes and 200,000 shares of no-par-value stock, will be announced by the bankers on Monday, it was said yesterday. The stock is to be sold at $75 a share. This with the 500,000 shares of no-par stock now outstanding makes a total of 700,000 shares of no-par-value stock.

The plan provides that stockholders shall have the privilege to subscribe to one new share for each five shares now held. The Bankers Trust Company is handling the financing.

CANADA LOSING EXPORTS.

Rowell for Canceling Dominion Claims on Germany.

GUELPH, Ontario, Jan. 26.—Settlement by an international commission of the amount of reparations which Germany should pay and the terms of payment ought to be acceptable to Canada, Newton W. Rowell, one of the first Canadian delegates to the League of Nations, said in an address here tonight.

The cancellation of all Canadian claims against Germany under the head of pensions and separation allowances was recommended by Mr. Rowell, on the ground that these claims were not covered by the agreement under which Germany laid down her arms, and should not be included in the treaty.

Mr. Rowell said that the action of France in occupying the Ruhr would tend to the greater disorganization of Europe, and pointed out the effect of the European situation on Canada, saying:

"Our agricultural industry is particularly affected. We are now the greatest wheat-exporting country in the world. Our wheat was never more needed than it is today. Yet Europe cannot, under present conditions, purchase it. Consequently, the farmers of Canada have to take substantially less than they would if the situation could be stabilized."

Copper Market Firmer.

The copper market displayed a firmer tone yesterday, reports in the trade declaring that sales were made at 14⅛ cents a pound, a new high record for the current movement, and an advance of ⅛ cent a pound over the previous high mark. Most of the inquiries now coming in cover deliveries from February to April, while others cover deliveries during the first half of May. Total sales here for the week are estimated at 30,000,000 pounds, mostly for domestic consumption.

TELEGRAPHERS FIGHT ELECTION BY RAILROAD

Ask for Injunction Against Pennsylvania—Shop Crafts Win Labor Board Decision.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 26.—Federal Judge Dickinson today declined to issue a temporary order restraining the Pennsylvania Railroad Company from proceeding with the election of committees of telegraphers to deal with the company in regard to hours of labor and wages on the ground that the railroad had not been notified of the action, and was not represented at the hearing. The court fixed another hearing for Monday, and instructed counsel for the plaintiff to notify the railroad company so that it would have an opportunity to present an argument.

The bill requesting the restraining order was filed by Joseph Nucklas, a Chairman of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers, but the entire organization was said by counsel to be back of the suit. The bill contends that the election is illegal and designed to oust the general committee representing the company's telegraphers in disputes with the employer, and thus disqualify it from proceedings before the United States Railroad Labor Board.

Balloting in the election will close on January 29, the day set by the court for a hearing in the case.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 26.—With the United States Railroad Labor Board ruling in a decision issued late today that the votes of the workers must decide the issue, the Federated Shop Crafts and the "company unions" set up on many roads as a result of the shopmen's strike, are arrayed to fight for supremacy.

Today's decision, made with reference to the Grand Trunk system, probably constitutes a precedent to which the board will adhere in future cases. The dispute arose when the Grand Trunk served thirty days' notice of termination of its contract with the Federated Shop Crafts.

In ordering a general election to determine the point involved, the Labor Board held that the Grand Trunk agreement with the Shop Crafts "cannot be abrogated, except in conformity with the provisions thereof," and indicated that only an election would satisfy these provisions.

COTTON BREAKS $4 ON HEAVY SELLING

Thursday's inactivity proved to be a prelude to one of the most active sessions the cotton market has had in some time. Instead of resuming the advance, prices turned downward and broke about $4 a bale before the close. Persistent and unrelieved pressure exerted on October finally unsettled confidence among so large a number of holders in the old crop that a rush to secure profits resulted. For several hours considerable resistance developed on every 10-point recession, but afternoon operations were on so large a scale that quotations were finally undermined. Instead of being nearly willing to sell at given figures, holders became anxious to liquidate regardless of price. May sold below 28 cents, a decline of a cent from Wednesday, with all months closing at the bottom. A loss of 78 to 91 points occurred.

Though on the two previous days New York refused to respond to strength in Liverpool, the moment a setback occurred abroad a sharp decline resulted. A reaction of half a cent in foreign prices started the heaviest general selling this month. Monday's extensive realizing came almost wholly from one or two quarters. But from the opening, with May at 28.55 and July at 28.25, an increasing number of those holding contracts seemed willing to let cotton go. It would have been difficult to discover wherein any radical change had occurred in conditions, but there was no mistaking the difference in attitude in many directions. This followed the appearance of selling pressure which first developed in the new crop on Wednesday. That some speculative interest should be willing to put out 25,000 to 50,000 bales of October had a sobering effect on sentiment in old crop positions. More holders began to discuss the advisability of realizing on contracts bought at much lower figures, many of them carried for months. Though there were frequent rallies and for some hours the decline was orderly, brokers reported a larger number of orders to sell on any advance than for some time. While houses with trade connections had cotton to buy on declines, the amount wanted by commission houses was smaller than on recent recessions since prices passed 25 cents.

The importance of the selling in October came from the fact that for virtually a year operations of this nature have been non-existent. There has been practically no selling for a decline since the Spring of 1922. It is doubtful whether any previous period of so many months could be found where nothing in the outlook seemed to justify any but buying movements for higher values. It was persistent buying of the new, or present crop, in April and May last year that lifted prices over 20 cents. The market has had setbacks due to periods of realizing many times in the course of its advance to 29 cents this week, but no evidences of so-called short selling have appeared until October rose above 26½ cents. The immediate effect was not so much that October broke under 26@27c.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—Aggregate increases of $178,000,000 in investments in connection with the allotment on Jan. 15 of a new issue of $346,982,000 of Treasury notes, accompanied by an increase of $113,000,000 in Government deposits, are shown in the Federal Reserve Board's weekly consolidated statement of condition on Jan. 17 of 781 member banks in leading cities.

Of the total increase in investments, $148,000,000 is shown for Victory and Treasury notes. Loans and discounts went up $17,000,000, an increase of $25,000,000 in loans secured by stocks and bonds being offset in part by a reduction of $8,000,000 in loans secured by Government obligations. Only a nominal change is shown for other loans and discounts. Member banks in New York City report an increase of $61,000,000 in their holdings of Government securities, as against reductions of $2,000,000 in other security investments and of $10,000,000 in loans and discounts.

This increase goes hand in hand with a reduction of $32,000,000 in demand deposits.

Reserve balances of all reporting institutions show a decline of $19,000,000, and cash in vault a decline of $37,000,000. Corresponding changes for the New York City banks comprise reductions of $59,000,000 in reserve balances and of $7,000,000 in cash on hand.

HOOVER AT MEETING ON TRANSPORTATION

IN UNOFFICIAL CAPACITY

Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce, yesterday attended a meeting here of the Railroad Committee of the United States Chamber of Commerce at which the whole subject of transportation as it affects railroads and allied shipping interests was discussed. Secretary Hoover explained after the meeting that his appearance in this city on the day that the President's Cabinet was called into session for the first time since Mr. Harding's recent illness was of no especial significance; that he was in New York in connection with a regular meeting of the American Relief Association scheduled for today, and that his attendance at the Chamber of Commerce conference was purely in an unofficial capacity.

Throughout Wall Street, however, the impression prevailed that yesterday's meeting marked another important step in an effort to restore railroads and other transportation companies to their pre-war status and that Mr. Hoover's views, as one of the Administration's spokesmen, were sought by the Chamber of Commerce, which has been advocating a constructive policy in dealing with the railroad problem. Considerable weight was added to this belief in view of the fact that a number of important railroad officials also were present, although not officially listed on the Railroad Committee of the United States Chamber of Commerce. Among them were W. B. Storey, President of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe; A. H. Smith, President of the New York Central; Hale Holden, President of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy; Howard Elliott, Chairman of the Board of the Northern Pacific, and Daniel Willard, President of the Baltimore & Ohio.

Members of the Chamber's Railroad Committee who attended were: Carl R. Gray, Chairman of the committee, and President of the Union Pacific; A. J. Brosseau, President of Mack Trucks, Inc., and George A. Post, President of the Hudson River Bridge and Terminal Association. Julius H. Barnes, President of the United States Chamber of Commerce, presided. The meeting, which continued until late in the evening was adjourned without any statement by Mr. Barnes other than that the session would be resumed tomorrow and that a statement would be given out upon its conclusion. It was intimated that the discussion covered the entire field of transportation, including steam and electric railroad, motor and steamship traffic, and that the question of harbor development in the Port of New York also came in for study.

Mr. Hoover, like others who attended the session, declined to make any comment on the meeting other than to say that "it covered most everything in the line of transportation."

"I am here in an unofficial capacity," he said," and no other interpretation can be placed on my attendance here while the President's Cabinet is in session in Washington for the first time since his illness. My views on the question of railroad betterment have already been outlined—to the extent of many pages of testimony before the Interstate Commerce Commission. I am strongly in favor of the present program of grouping lines into a few large systems and believe that great economies would be effected in that way. I shall attend the regular meeting of the American Relief Association tomorrow and shall return to Washington on Sunday."

In his testimony before the Interstate Commerce Commission Mr. Hoover stated that the nation's transportation facilities were below the needs of the country and unless there was a quick resumption of construction that the whole community, agricultural, commercial and industrial, would be "gasping from strangulation caused by insufficient transportation."

FINDS FARMERS BUY MUCH OF THEIR FOOD

Farmers of the country buy 40 per cent. of their food supplies, according to a survey just completed by the United States Department of Agriculture. It was shown that about 9 per cent. more of the food consumed on farms could economically be produced locally rather than being brought in from distant producing areas.

Goverment officials mailed questionnaires to 25,000 crop reporters in all parts of the United States and the replies revealed that about 40 per cent. of the food consumed on American farms is produced on the farms where consumed; 9 per cent. is produced locally, but not on the farms reporting; about 22 per cent. is not produced locally and could not reasonably be produced there, and about 9 per cent. is not produced locally, but could be economically produced there for the displacement of food brought in from other sections.

"By geographic divisions the Pacific Coast farmers produce at home less of the food consumed than do farmers in other sections, the figure being placed at 42 per cent.," according to a statement issued by the department. "New England farmers produce 50.6 per cent. of the food consumed at home. Farmers in the East South Central States produce the largest quantities of food for home consumption, the figure being placed at 68.6 per cent.; farmers in the South Atlantic Division are next highest, with 67.5 per cent. of home production.

"With regard to the quantity of food produced locally, but not on the farm itself, the East South Central Division is given a figure of 6.6 per cent.; the South Atlantic Division a percentage of 7.1. The highest percentage of food produced locally, but not on the farms where consumed, is shown in the Pacific States, with 16.6 per cent.; next lowest in order is the Mountain Division, with 12.5 per cent.

"The survey shows that in the Pacific Division 13.6 per cent. of the food consumed and which is brought in from the outside could economically be produced locally. The smallest quantity of food which could be produced locally is in the Middle Atlantic and East North Central Divisions, which show a figure of 7.5 per cent.

"By commodities it is shown that the products that are not produced locally but which could be economically produced or reasonably replaced by locally grown products are wheat, fruit, meats, canned goods, cheese, vegetables, sugar, food cereals and potatoes. In a general way the survey indicates that the more isolated farmers produce more of their foodstuffs than do less isolated farmers and that the more prosperous sections of the country seem to buy more of the food they consume than do the less prosperous sections.

"High freight rates appear to have slight effect on the quantity of food bought by farmers, complaints with regard to such rates being directed toward other things that farmers buy, such as farm implements, feed, fertilizer and lumber, and toward things that farmers sell, such as live stock, wheat, oats, hay, corn, apples, potatoes and other crops.

"On the whole, the farmers reporting indicated the desirability of self-sufficiency in the home production of food consumed, rather than bringing in food from other sections which they themselves might economically produce."

Wanderwell to Resume World Tour.

GENEVA, Jan. 26.—Captain Walter Wanderwell, a round-the-world automobile tourist of Atlanta, who went insane here several weeks ago and has been in an asylum, has so far recovered as to be able to take a walk today. He expects to leave Geneva in three weeks for a rest in the Jura Alps. After that, he says, he will resume his tour.

Captain Wanderwell left New Orleans two months ago. It was reported that he jumped or fell out of a window at Geneva.

SILK NOW DOUBLE PREWAR PRICES

The manufacture of silk in the United States continues to record rapid increases, despite the fact that the raw product is selling at prices more than double the pre-war average. The capital invested in the industry of this country is now in excess of the half billion mark and the value of the output is in the neighborhood of $700,000,000. The August, 1922, figures of the Department of Commerce show that the average import price for the raw silk entering the country in that month was $7.34 a pound, against an annual average of $3.15 per pound in 1913.

"The silk worm has apparently not heard that the war is over," says the National City Bank of New York, in a review of the industry. "At least, it is a fact that the prices which Americans are still compelled to pay for this product, four years after the close of the war, are nearly two and one-half times as much per pound as the annual average prior to the war."

Regarding the imports of raw silk into this country, the review says that "curiously, too, the quantity of silk being brought into the country even at these spectacular prices of over $7 a pound, is approximately twice as great as in 1913, when the price was less than half that of today. Silk experts estimate that the quantity of raw silk entering the United States in the full year of 1922 exceeds by 25 per cent. that of the former high record year 1921; if so, this would bring the 1922 total to 56,000,000 pounds against 28,000,000 in 1913, and 45,000,000 in 1919, when the silk factories of the country turned out $688,000,000 worth of silk goods against $254,000,000 in 1914, and $107,000,000 in 1900. The total value of silk goods manufactured in the United States in 1919 was six times as great as in 1909.

"The head of a great silk manufacturing establishment of the United States is reported as estimating that over $1,500,000,000 worth of silk manufactures were sold in the United States in 1922 and that the total for 1923 will be even larger.

"The United States has become by far the largest silk consuming and manufacturing country of the world, despite the fact that all the raw material which we use in this line is brought half way around the globe, and experts are quoted as saying that we are today importing 80 per cent. of the raw silk of the world and using practically all of it in our own factories, for the quantity re-exported in the natural state is negligible.

"The value of silk manufactures exported from the United States in the calendar year 1920 was approximately $27,000,000 against a little over $2,000,000 in the year preceding the war."

NEW ENGLAND ROADS PAY INCREASED TAX

Average Assessment Per Mile in 1921 Was $1,460, or 48% More Than in 1916.

The amount which the railways pay in taxes and the extent to which these payments have increased within the last few years were brought out in transportation quarters the past week in a survey accomplished by railway statisticians. The study, which was centred largely on the New England carriers, showed that the average sum paid by Class 1 and Class 2 railroads in that territory in local, State and Federal taxes in 1916 was $988 per mile, amounting in its entirety to $4,534,055 in revenues.

In 1921, it was found, the average taxation per mile had increased to $1,460, or 48 per cent. above the 1916 taxes, with total payments amounting to $6,211,929, or 41 per cent. increase. The railroad taxes in Rhode Island, the executives learned, were the highest per mile of any State in New England, these being $2,008 per mile, while those of Vermont were the lowest, amounting to $576 per mile.

The taxes paid in the New England States by the railroads in 1916 and the amount of revenue which they produced, with the extent of the increases subsequently are shown in the following table, prepared by the Bureau of Railway Economics:

New Hampshire	600	817
Vermont	502	576
Massachusetts	1,220	1,604
Rhode Island	2,008	2,965
Connecticut	1,116	1,778
	Total R. R. Taxes.
Maine	$1,216,129	$2,122,782
New Hampshire	746,161	993,880
Vermont	490,729	427,240
Massachusetts	2,574,726	3,313,222
Rhode Island	387,313	570,853
Connecticut	1,119,992	1,778,418

"Increases in taxes as they affect individual roads are seen in the reports of the roads to the Interstate Commerce Commission," says the bureau in commenting upon the survey.

"The Boston & Maine Railroad in 1916 paid $2,091,089 in taxes and in 1921 $3,728,224, or an increase of 33 per cent.

"The New York, New Haven & Hartford in 1916 paid $3,500,255 in taxes and in 1921 $4,443,275, an increase of 25 per cent.

"The Bangor & Aroostook in 1916 paid $161,416 in taxes and in 1921 $422,709, an increase of 260 per cent.

NINETY-FIRST ANNUAL REPORT

CAPITAL PAID-UP, $10,000,000 R

FOREIGN OFFERINGS AFFECTING WHEAT

Seller Thursday, a Buyer Yesterday, Turns Seller Again When the Bulge Comes.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 26.—While prices were off over 1 cent on May's wheat at one time, the finish was on a strong rally, with the close ⅞ cent higher to ⅛ cent lower. That crop market is now about the same as it was early in December, when every one was bullish, while July is up nearly 4 cents. There was persistent buying of May today at $1.16¼ and under, that was attributed to the best seller of the previous day; on the rally to around $1.17, which came toward the last on general local short covering, the early buyer turned seller again.

Scattered reins were reported in parts of Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, and Nebraska and had some effect on values, as did the reports of a lack of export demand, with a further recession in Gulf premiums of ⅝ cent to 7 cents over Chicago May.

After the close it was estimated that 1,300,000 bushels of Manitobas had been sold at the seaboard, including 925,000 bushels to Greece and a cargo to Germany, the latter for deferred shipment, while Greece is said to have taken 2,000,000 bushels in the last ten days. Liverpool paid little attention to the Continental situation, and closed ½@¾d. higher.

The trade looks for world's wheat shipments of 15,000,000 bushels for the week, compared with 12,541,000 bushels the previous week and 16,511,000 bushels last year. A sale of 25,000 bushels of No. 2 hard Winter was made here to go to store at 5 cents under May, and later it was said to have been offered at 5¼ cents under. Private English cables said Russia was asking for bids on wheat for February shipment from the Black Sea.

Corn showed more strength than wheat and closed ¼ cent higher, after a range of ⅝@1¼ cents. May dropped to 71¾ cents early, when local traders unloaded on account of a decline of 1¼ cents in Buenos Aires the previous day and on prospects that rain would relieve the drought in Argentina.

The rains failed to materialize, however, and when wheat started upward toward the close an oversold condition was disclosed and the finish was within ⅛ cent of the top.

Oats were dull and unchanged to ¼ cent lower, while rye was off 1¾ cents with a dull trade despite claims of sales of 150,000 bushels to Germany at the seaboard.

Primary arrivals of wheat today were 968,000 bushels; week ago, 1,181,000; last year, 748,000. Shipments were 970,000 bushels; week ago, 632,000; last year, 462,000.

Corn receipts were 1,112,000 bushels; week ago, 1,154,000; last year, 2,094,000. and shipments 766,000 bushels; week ago, 745,000; last year, 1,320,000.

SAYS PUBLIC LOSES IN NEW PHONE RATES

SEES FAVORS TO COMPANY

"Sweeping Victory for the People" Increases Revenue in the City $2,500,000.

Commenting yesterday on the report of the Public Service Commission concerning telephone rates and its readjustment of them, Corporation Counsel George P. Nicholson said that what appeared to be a total net increase in telephone revenue in the city for the company amounting to $2,500,000, was hailed as a sweeping victory for the people.

"The small user is said to benefit by the decision," said Mr. Nicholson. "There is an apparent reduction of the large amount of seventeen cents a month, but there is a string to this. If the subscriber in any month uses more than sixty-six messages (the smallest number that can be contracted for), he must pay five cents a message, but if in any month he uses less than sixty-six messages he gets no credit.

"Heretofore any excess above the minimum in one month was offset against a deficiency below the minimum in another month. The result will be that many subscribers will find that throughout the year, under the Public Service Commission rates, they will pay more than they are now paying. For example, if in one month a person uses at his residence sixty-six messages, and yet for the year should use less than 800—the present yearly minimum—he will pay $47 throughout the year as against $44 under the present rates."

Mr. Nicholson said that out only the decision of the commission was disastrous to the public, but that on almost every question of importance in the case it has decided in favor of the telephone company.

"The commission," he said, "has practically sustained the entire claim of the company for the large payment to the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, making al allowance of $2 per station per annum, instead of $1, per station allowed by the commission in 1915. The difference upon this point alone would mean over $1,000,000 annually to subscribers in New York City.

"The intercompany relationship with the Western Electric Company, a sister subsidiary of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, is sweepingly approved. On this point alone the difference in favor of the company is $2,700,000 annually, and this is more than the entire established increase in rates.

"The commission criticised in its opinion various expenses, particularly the large sums spent for advertising while rate cases were pending, but in the allowed results only $400,000 more for 1923 than the company spent in 1922. Similarly, in the case of general and miscellaneous expenses, in which are included salaries, legal expenses, rate-case items, &c., the commission allows $400,000 more for 1923 than the company spent in 1922.

"Doubtless the New York Telephone Company will not object to the hard words in the opinion so long as it gets the right figures in the rates."

President Displeased at Exceeding Committee Estimate.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—A veto threatens the army appropriation bill if the Senate passes without amendment the rivers and harbors section, which the House raised $19,000,000 above the committee estimate.

President Harding has shown marked hostility to the bill as it now stands, with the appropriations for Government engineering works on harbors and inland waterways raised from $37,000,000 to $56,000,000. The President believes that the figure set by the Bureau of the Budget for river and harbor improvement next year is ample. The action of the House was to approve the first estimate of the army engineers of $56,000,000 before it was pruned to $27,000,000 by Budget Director Lord. The Appropriations Committee raised this latter figure $10,000,000.

It was said at the White House that the Senate's action on this section of the army bill was contrary to the Administration's financial policy, and that the President saw no necessity for the act. In recent talks with Republican leaders in the House President Harding has given it as his opinion that the reason Congress is so far ahead of its appropriations this year, as compared with other sessions, is on account of the budget machinery that has cut down the amount of committee work at the Capitol. Having this regard for the budget, President Harding is taking the position that it should be upheld by the Administration and by Congress.

Already he has vetoed one fiscal measure—the Bursum bill raising pensions—on the ground of extravagance, and the hint was thrown out today that a similar fate awaits the army bill if the Senate does not prune the rivers and harbors appropriation to at least the House Appropriations Committee's estimate.

WALPOLE'S CASTLE FOR SALE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 26.—Horace Walpole's "castle" at Strawberry Hill, now the property of the Dowager Lady Michelham, is offered for sale.

"I am going to build a little Gothic castle at Strawberry Hill," wrote Walpole. It became the chief occupation of his life and from 1750 to 1770 he was continually adding to it. A refectory with a library above it was the first addition. A picture gallery and cloister, a round tower, great bedrooms and reception rooms followed. Then he proceeded to make it Gothic to his heart's content with battlements, arches and painted glass. Not all the architects are prepared to say that the result is an artistic success.

ACCUSE FRENCH SHIP MAN.

Charges of Embezzlement Declared Trick of Foes by His Wife.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 27.—M. Jean Stern, prominent in shipping circles, was arrested yesterday on the charge of embezzling 5,000,000 francs from the shipping company Société de Affréteurs Réunis of which he was formerly Managing Director and President.

When interviewed, Mme. Stern said that it was a trick on the part of the governors of that company to keep her husband away from the general meeting of shareholders set for Monday. She declared the charges absurd.

Mrs. H. O. Havemeyer and Mrs. Marcus M. Marks will speak at the Hiou Theatre next Monday evening, in support of bills favored by the Woman's Party.

THE WEEK'S PRICE TREND.

A Large Excess of Advances Over Declines Is Again Shown.

A slightly larger excess of advances over declines than last week is shown by Dun's current list of wholesale commodities prices, although there were fewer changes indicated this week than last. So marked was the upward trend of values this week that there were nearly three advances for every decline. The actual division, respectively, was 52 and 20, against 51 and 24 last week. Among the features were the higher prices quoted for textiles, due to Fall openings, together with the price strength of metals, hides and several of the miscellaneous items.

The following list gives the minimum wholesale prices quoted on selected standard commodities. They are corrected to yesterday, and with them are given the comparative prices for last week and the corresponding week a year ago:

A drop of 5 cents a barrel in Spring patents was the only change in flour in the local market for provisions yesterday. Neither bacon nor hams showed change here, and the same was true of Middle Western lard. At Chicago live beef, live hogs and short ribs advanced, with mess pork and live sheep unchanged. Tallow was cheaper.

Butter continued to decline, the local dairy list showing drops of 1¼ to 2½ cents a pound, according to grade. Whole milk cheese advanced half a cent. Fancy near-by eggs advanced 2 cents a dozen, the first upturn in several weeks, but fresh-gathered "firsts" were off slightly in price. The eggs are now well below the corresponding 1921 figures, but the rest of the list is higher.

No changes either way were shown this week in the list for dried fruits, but in the fresh ones both common and fancy apples were 50 cents a barrel higher. The changes in the vegetables were few in number, but quite sharp. Choice white kidney beans dropped 50 cents a hundred pounds, while cabbage and turnips went up 50 and 75 cents a barrel, respectively. The basic grades of Brazilian coffee were both higher, but there were no revisions in the list for teas. Spices showed rises in cloves, ginger and white pepper. Sugar showed a drop for fine granulated, but this time there was no accompanying change in 96-test raw sugars.

Neither lumber nor building materials showed change either way this week, but there were a number of revisions in the metals. Advances were seen in pig iron, open-hearth billets, refined iron bars, steel bars, copper, lead and tin. The only decline was listed in spelter.

Wheat, corn, oats, rye and malting barley were all cheaper in the grains list, but there were no revisions in hay and straw. Leather continued to show no change, but in the hided hides higher prices were seen in No. 1 Texas, Colorado, No. 1 buff, No. 1 extreme, No. 1 kip and No. 1 calfskin stock. Chicago city calfskins also advanced.

Changes in the combined lists for drugs, chemicals, dyestuffs and oils were fewer than usual, and about equally divided up and down. Menthol dropped a dollar a case, but is still substantially higher than at this time last year. Naval stores were bars of changes for the first time in many weeks. Chip and straw boards were higher in the paper list, as was No. 1 old paper mixture pulp.

In the miscellaneous changes were included advances in both Brazilian and Eastern crude rubbers, and Chinese raw silk. Japanese silk was quoted lower, and a drop in platinum was also indicated.

Seasonal openings in the cotton and woolen trades resulted in numerous advances, with ginghams and kindred fabrics the only cloths of importance yet to be priced. Gray cottons moved up somewhat during the week also, although these stepped short with the break in cotton yesterday.

ISSUES WARRANT FOR HOWAT

Kansas Judge Rules Strike Leader Must Complete Sentence.

COLUMBUS, Ks., Jan. 26.—Judge Boss in the Cherokee County District Court today, issued a bench warrant for the return of Alexander Howat to the county jail here to serve the remaining 56 days of a six months' sentence for violating the industrial court law. The Sheriff was instructed to hold the warrant until next Tuesday when Howat's attorney promised he would surrender.

Howat's attorney argued that his client was technically in the custody of Judge Woolley who paroled him and five associates last Saturday after they had served 266 days of a year's sentence for contempt. Judge Boss stated he would be glad to parole Howat if the latter would pledge himself not further to violate the law, but that a speech made a few days after the parole was granted did not show any attitude justifying clemency.

Gets Life Term; Fought Case 7 Years

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Jan. 26.—Cecil Victor Brown, colored, convicted of the murder of Dr. Charles F. Mohr in Barrington in August, 1915, was today sentenced to life imprisonment. He has been in jail over seven years while his counsel has exhausted every legal move to secure a new trial. Last week the Supreme Court finally denied a new trial. Dr. Mohr was killed by a bullet fired in the dark when his automobile was stopped on a country road on the chauffeur's plea of engine trouble. George W. Healis, the chauffeur, turned State's evidence and implicated Brown and his cousin, Henry Spellman. Spellman, also convicted, died in jail while awaiting sentence. Mrs. Mohr, wife of the doctor, was acquitted of being an accessory before the fact.

Not Guilty of Bank Defalcation.

BOSTON, Jan. 26.—A jury in the United States District Court tonight returned a verdict of not guilty in the case of Edward R. Grosvenor and Joseph Adams, charged with misapplication of $75,000 of the funds of the Winchester National Bank. Grosvenor was former cashier of the bank. Edward S. Foster, former president of the bank, was also indicted on the charge of misapplication of funds, but died before the case came to trial.

Irene Castle Sued for Gowns.

An old claim of Hickson, Inc., dressmakers, against Irene Castle, dancer, for apparel came up in Bronx County yesterday when Julius Tobias, counsel for the firm, asked Supreme Court Justice Edward G. Whitaker to restore to the calendar the company's suit for $6.99, dropped in 1917 after many postponements. Justice Whitaker set the case down for April 2.

COLLECTS MILLIONS IN U. S. BACK TAXES

Internal Revenue Department Proceeds Against Estates of Bankrupts.

GETS $25,000,000 A MONTH

Millions of dollars in unpaid Federal taxes are being recovered as the result of a Government drive against bankrupt concerns, Vincent House, Assistant United States Attorney in charge of internal revenue matters in this city, declared in an address last evening at the Commerce Building of the College of the City of New York, Lexington Avenue and Twenty-third Street.

Dr. Joseph J. Klein, income tax authority, of Klein, Hinds & Finke, 1,182 Broadway, and a lecturer at the City College, who introduced Mr. House, said the balancing of the Federal budget was made possible in great measure by the Treasury Department's recovery of back taxes averaging more than $25,000,000 a month. As Congress did not take into calculation the collection of these back taxes, Dr. Klein said, the Government found in those funds the means of meeting such extraordinary expenditures as unexpected deficiency appropriations and refunds of millions of dollars in taxes.

"The systematic and prompt undertaking of the collection of these claims against bankrupt estates," said Mr. House, "is a development of only the last year or two. The amount which the Government will collect within a few years as a result of this effort will possibly run into hundreds of millions of dollars.

"This systematic activity on the part of the Federal Government in collecting arrears of taxes from bankrupt estates is largely an outgrowth of the decision of the Circuit Court of Appeals for the New York District in the case of Alma Newton Anderson. The Court held in that case for the first time that the Government could be compelled to file its claim in bankruptcy proceedings just as any other creditor is obliged to, and that in the event it's failure so to file its claim, it might be barred from participating in the estate.

"Prior to this decision, and by reason of the pressure of work in the Bureau of Internal Revenue, the filing of claims for arrears of taxes in bankruptcy matters was often long delayed by the Government, with the result that frequently the assets had been in good faith distributed by the receiver and trustee among the creditors and others before the Government asserted its rights. While the law gives the Government priority in payment of its claims against insolvent estates, obviously there can be no collection when there are no funds left to collect from.

"Attorneys in the Office of the Solicitor of Internal Revenue at Washington have told me that the losses to the Government arising from this cause, prior to the Anderson decision, ran up to a total of many millions of dollars. At the present time, and upon a concern is petitioned into bankruptcy, the Government begins an investigation of its accounts to ascertain whether all tax returns have been properly filed and all outstanding obligations to the Government paid.

"As an illustration of the large amounts often involved, I might say that within the last two weeks the Government has collected in two such cases in the New York district alone over $100,000 which might have been lost by delay in asserting its claims."

SIZING UP RUSSIA'S WHEAT.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—Figures from Russian sources indicating a large increase in crop acreage in that country in 1922, as compared with 1921, are discounted to some extent in official circles, in view of Secretary Hoover's statements on various occasions that such information was not dependable at present because of the disorganized situation there.

The statistics, which have been received by the Department of Commerce, indicate that the crop acreage in Russia in 1922 was 5,385,000, compared with 7,158,000 in 1921, an increase of 1,227,000, but that crop failures involved an acreage of 1,884,000 last year, compared with 1,261,000 during the preceding year, an increase of 623,000.

Mr. Hoover said today that the activities of the American Relief Administration in Russia would cease only when the food production situation there warranted a belief that the Russians could care for themselves.

MRS. STILES GETS DIVORCE.

AUBURN, Maine, Jan. 26.—Mrs. Eugenia Stiles, wife of Vernon Stiles, concert and opera tenor, obtained a decree of divorce today from Chief Justice Cornish of the Supreme Court. A cross libel brought by her husband was dismissed at his request.

The court decreed that Dorothy Vernon Stiles, the singer's 13-year-old daughter, should remain in the custody of G. E. Ramsdell of Bates College, with whom she has made her home for two years. Each parent may visit the child and Stiles must pay $50 a month for her support. In their cross libels Stiles and his wife each alleged cruel and abusive treatment. An allegation of infidelity brought by Mrs. Stiles was dropped today.

READ TESTAMENT IN RELAYS

End Reached in 17½ Hours in a Philadelphia Church.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 26.—The reading aloud of the New Testament from Matthew to Revelations was accomplished in seventeen and one-half hours at the Siloam Methodist Episcopal Church today.

Seventy persons took part in the Reading, which was in fifteen-minute relays, the testament having been divided into parts by the Rev. John C. Bierl, pastor of the church. Four of the parts were read in Greek, Chinese, Hungarian and German. Bishop Joseph Berry read the last three chapters of Revelations.

The reading, the purpose of which was to encourage Bible study, was started at 5 A. M. and concluded at 8:30 P. M.

THE BUSINESS WORLD

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday—4½ per cent for the best names. Thursday—4½ to 4¾ per cent. for the best names.

Seven Miles of Silk Decoration.

At the second International Silk Exposition, to be held at the Grand Central Palace from Feb. 5 to 15, three floors will be taken this year instead of two, as was the case in 1921. In area this space is equal to three city blocks. On the first and mezzanine floors finished fabrics will be displayed, while the second floor will house exhibits of an educational nature. Perhaps the outstanding feature of the show will be the decorations, composed entirely of silk fabrics. Howard Greenley, President of the Architectural League of New York and art director for the exposition, estimated yesterday that there will be seven miles of silk for decorative purposed alone. While there will be no separate pageant this year, every exhibitor will furnish his own attractions. This means that scores of living manikins will parade through the aisles every afternoon and evening, clothed in the latest style in everything that can be made of silk.

Silk Glove Demand.

Orders for women's silk gloves for Spring continue to reach manufacturers. Consumer buying of this merchandise in some centres has already begun. This has surprised the manufacturers who have had this report, as it was still considered very early for retailers to show their glove lines. It is said that the long glove and the gauntlet type are still in most request. But that there is a tendency toward the shorter wrist glove seems a growing opinion in the market. One buyer who is credited with being a shrewd judge said he looked for the long glove to be popular for another season, but that then would come the end of its vogue.

Garment Makers Using Braid.

Braid manufacturers have found a considerable revival in demand this season. Silk braid at the present time orders are described as not so large as they were two or three weeks ago, there is understood to be still a good volume of business done. The recent falling-off is attributed to garment manufacturers filling their needs for the time being and also to the possibility of the dress strike crippling that industry. Fancy silk and artificial silk braids for dress and suit decorations have been among the leading types taken by garment makers. They include those known as radium and knitted braids. These are in combinations of colors, and in a large number of instances are copied from imported numbers. They are frequently used with cabochons. Soutache braids have been ordered for narrow trimming purposes.

Hard Coal Demand Still Big.

Little easing up is to be noted in the pressure for any kind of anthracite, Saward's Journal will say today. The two smallest sizes are most in demand this week, as has been the case right along, but the domestic sizes are wanted in quantities far in excess of the supply. Even No. 1 buckwheat, which showed signs of softening last week, seems to have stiffened up again, and the tendency is that the market is being eagerly snapped up. Uncertainty continues in the bituminous market, although the present situation differs little from that of last week.

Gray Goods Sales Drop.

The break in cotton yesterday put an effective stop on trading in the local gray goods market. Some fair-sized business in Southern 39½-inch 60-48s was reported at 9¾ cents for delivery through the rest of this month and next, with Eastern goods quiet but firm on the basis of 9 cents. First hands were firm in their demands for 12 cents for nearly 39-inch 68-72s and 11 cents for 39½-inch 64-60s. Sheetings sales for the day included some 40-inch 4.25-yard goods at 11¼ cents. A few lots of 37-inch 48-square, four-yards were let out at 12½ cents. Fine-yarn goods and specialties showed little feature.

May Hold Prices Back.

Although it is possible that important producers of ginghams and kindred fabrics may send out prices today for the Fall season, these goods being about the only ones yet unpriced for the new season, there is also a possibility that the sharp break in cotton yesterday may result in these quotations being held up for a time. The rise in the staple is the chief peg on which the higher prices for the finished goods have been hung by the manufacturers and accepted by buyers. Even though it would take some time to offset the advance in cotton since the goods in question were last priced, it may not prove to be good policy to add further to the burden of buyers until the flurry is over. There is no question that buyers are active, as some line is being sold up and withdrawn nearly every day. Yesterday, for instance, the Cone Export and Commission Company withdrew Revolution narrow solid color flannels for the season.

Buyers After Silk Hosiery.

As the Spring season advances the call for silk hose of the better grades shows a marked improvement here. Despite the fact that men on the road took excellent advance business, the orders that are being written by buyers now in this market call for a very tidy volume of merchandise. One of the interesting things about the current demand is the more active way in which local buyers are taking goods after several months of picking and choosing. Not a little of this business is being done to refill stocks broken by the demand of consumers now at or preparing to visit the well-known Winter resorts. Paradoxically, perhaps, the demand from retailers in those centres is nothing out of the ordinary, from all accounts. Grays continue to show very strongly among the wanted colors.

Expect Lines to Be Withdrawn.

So favorable has been the reception accorded the showing of the women's wear lines of the American Woolen Company that the trade expects an announcement, either today or Monday, that department four is sold up. This action could have been taken shortly after the lines were opened last Monday, it is understood; but the effort was made to give as many of the garment manufacturers as possible a chance to see the lines. As was expected, the pile fabrics and polret twills are the bulk of purchases to date, although there was marked interest in other fabrics, particularly the velours, pelaires and the cloth resembling camel's hair. With the largest producer out of the market, the independents have their chance to size up the situation. Executives of the latter, however, appear to be in no hurry to open their lines. The women's wear division is not expected to get generally under way until the latter part of next month.

Spring Stout-Wear Buying.

Orders thus far received by stout-wear manufacturers are described by them as being satisfactory. In volume the business is ahead of last year at this time, as more retailers are said to appreciate the possibilities in serving the stout trade with a specialized line of garments. Coats and capes in pile fabrics and twill cloths are being freely bought. Capes, especially, are showing up well in stout wear, this following the trend in regulation sizes. Suits have had a good response from an early season standpatat, those of poiret twills and tricotines being most favored. In dresses intended for this trade those of flat crepe and canton crepe are most desired in current buying.

Burlaps Ease Off Here.

The easier feeling that developed in the Calcutta market for burlaps a couple of days ago was transmitted itself to the local market, with the result that buyers will not take goods now at prices which they would have regarded highly satisfactory at the opening of the week. Standard 40-inch cloths, spot were nominally quoted at 7.40 cents for lights and 8 cents for heavy, but it was said that a good buyer could shade those prices at least five points. The same thing was true of 44cloths, for which the nominal lightweight price was the same as spots and for which 10½-ounce cloths were held at 9.05 cents in a nominal way. For February-March shipment from Calcutta 8-ounce goods are now held at 7¼ cents and 10½-ounce cloths at 9 cents, with nothing doing. The question of whether the weakness in the primary market is due to the unsteadiness of rupee exchange or to various other suggested reasons is an open question.

BORROW FOR ANCIENT LOANS

Quebec Has Paid $3,800,000 Interest on a $1,800,000 Accommodation.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, Jan. 26.—The City of Quebec is calling for tenders for the purchase of $1,800,000 5 per cent. bonds to redeem two loans floated in England fifty years ago and renewed for the first time in 1893. Tenders are to be received until Feb. 15. The bonds will be redeemable in ten, fifteen and thirty years with sinking fund.

It was pointed out in the course of the discussion on the matter that, through the lack of provisions for a sinking fund in 1873, when the loan was first issued, the City of Quebec has paid already $3,800,000 on the loan without redeeming it.

NINETY-SIX CHOSEN AS 2D LIEUTENANTS

Weeks Announces List of Those Who Passed Examinations for That Grade.

MOST ARE COLLEGE MEN

Five Have Had Service as Army Officers and Three as Enlisted Men.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—Secretary Weeks today recommended to the President the nomination for commissions as second lieutenants in the regular army of 96 candidates who successfully took the examination held Oct. 23 last to fill out that grade. Five of the successful candidates recommended for appointment had seen prior service as officers in the regular army, three had served as enlisted men and the other eighty-eight are college men.

The examination was a stiff one and there has been the keenest interest among college men throughout the country as to the outcome.

There were no second lieutenants in the regular army at the time the examinations were held and it was then the desire to obtain about 1,700 to fill the vacancies. It has since been determined that the number of second lieutenants in the regular army should be 1,871, and there are now only about 600 vacancies, the other places having been filled by the demotion of officers from other grades, instead of eliminating them from the service to bring the strength of the officers' personnel within the limits established by recent legislation.

West Pointers to Be Added.

The present 600 vacancies will be filled by the appointment of the ninety-six successful candidates on the list announced by Secretary Weeks and by those who will graduate from West Point in the next year. About 700 will graduate from the Military Academy next Summer. At the end of eighteen months there will be about 85 additional vacancies, and these will be filled from subsequent graduates of West Point.

Although the army stood ready last year to examine all who would enter the competition for second lieutenants, only 300 college men actually took the examination in October. Since that time the papers have been undergoing check and study at West Point and Washington with the result that ninety-seven passed the examination, and ninety-six of these have been recommended to the President and will be appointed. One who was successful was Luther Adolphus Brown, who was graduated from the Naval Academy in 1921, and who has now indicated to the War Department that he would decline appointment as second lieutenant.

SALESMEN CO-OPERATE ON N. Y. ADVERTISING

Will Attempt to Create a National Market of the City and Its Environs.

The first co-operative movement on the part of newspaper advertising salesmen to "sell New York City" to the national advertiser was explained in detail at a dinner last night by the Advertising Managers' Association of New York City at the Advertising Club, 47 East Twenty-fifth Street. A survey of New York City and its environs as a market for national advertisers prepared with zoning maps by the Research Bureau of the New York University was explained by E. L. McGivena, Chairman of the bureau.

About 200 advertising salesmen of the advertising staffs of THE NEW YORK TIMES, Tribune, Herald, Daily News, Sun, Mail, Globe, Telegram, Brooklyn Eagle, Elizabeth (N. J.) Journal and The Long Island Star were present, besides the following advertising managers: William Horner, Brooklyn Eagle; Jerry Vogel, New York Evening Telegram; Lou C. Payne, New York Commercial; Benjamin T. Butterworth, New YORK TIMES; Porter Caruthers, New York Evening Post; U. S. G. Welsh, New York Tribune; William Severen, New York Globe; William Byrnes, New York Evening Mail; E. A. Sutphin, New York Herald, and E. L. Wallace of The Elizabeth Journal. E. S. Friendly, business manager of The New York Herald and Sun, and C. C. Lane, business manager of The New York Evening Post, also were present.

"The New York market," said Mr. McGivena, "has been much maligned as a hard market by advertisers who have tried it and failed; but the New York market in general is not more difficult than any new market. It has some peculiar difficulties and some marked advantages. The most difficult aspect of it is its size. The failure of many attempts to enter the market is traced to one fact—that the extent and scope and hugeness of the job are not considered and realized beforehand, and the effort made is totally inadequate to the situation."

The difficulties, Mr. McGivena explained, could be greatly overcome by co-operation among the salesmen of the various newspapers, and it is this plan that is being worked out by the Advertising Managers' Association.

Public School Notes.

There were graduations yesterday morning in these schools: P. S. 1. and P. S. 10, Manhattan; the John Ericsson Junior High School, Brooklyn, and the Elmer Ellsworth Junior High School, No. 159, Manhattan.

The Washington Heights Evening High School offers for the coming term elementary and advanced courses in Italian in preparation for the State Board of Regents' examination. The board will grant ten points to those passing the examination in second-year Italian.

Dr. Ettinger's offices were moved yesterday from the fourth to the seventh floor of the Education Building. The new quarters are large and comfortable and are equipped with a system of semi-indirect lighting.

Dr. Ettinger is suffering from grippe, and has been away from his desk for the last three days. Associate Superintendent William J. O'Shea is acting as Superintendent of Schools in his place.

Automatic savings banks will be installed in the schools shortly, President Ryan said yesterday. He showed reporters one of the banks, which deliver coupons for the coins deposited. The pupil pastes these in a deposit book and the saving institutions, which supply the new devices, will make regular collection of the cash and of duplicate slips. "This will remove responsibility for the custody of the children's savings from the Board of Education to the banks," said Mr. Ryan, "and will aid in encouraging thrift among the pupils. When a boy or girl has saved a dollar or two he or she will be allowed to start a savings account at the bank itself."

The annual entertainment and reception of the Custodians and Engineers of the Public Schools of Greater New York will be held at the Palm Garden, Fifty-eighth Street and Lexington Avenue, the evening of Friday, Feb. 2, it is announced.

Judge Samuel D. Levy of the Children's Court will be the guest of honor at the DeWitt Clinton High School Sunday evening, Feb. 4, and will speak on "The Children's Court and Juvenile Delinquency." There will also be a concert by the Evening Mail.

ACTIVE BUYING OF WOOL.

LONDON, Jan. 26.—The offerings at the wool auction sales today amounted to 12,909 bales. Home, Continental and American traders were active buyers. There were some withdrawals due to the high prices asked.

BOSTON, Jan. 26.—The Commercial Bulletin tomorrow will say: "The opening of prices on heavyweight goods for the 1923 season, at advances of about 10 per cent. on the average above the prices named a year ago, is regarded by the wool trade as conducive to good business and this is reported to be the actual result. Early withdrawal of lines and repricing to a higher level are looked upon as inevitable."

TWO ROBBERS TRY TO SHOOT CAPTORS

FLEE MOORESTOWN HOME

MOUNT HOLLY, N. J., Jan. 26.—Two Philadelphia negroes, caught in the act of robbing a home at Moorestown near here, attempted early today to shoot the Chief of Police of that place and Maple Shade, when they had been cornered on a trolley upon which they were fleeing. The negroes were quickly disarmed and locked up in the jail here. They gave their names as James Stafford and Max Evers, and said they were step-brothers, but refused to tell where they lived in Philadelphia.

Richard H. Lytle and his wife returned to their home about midnight last night and noticed a front window open and a light upstairs. On the second floor they found two armed negroes who ordered them to the first floor after they had taken Mrs. Lytle's watch and a sum of money she had. They then fled.

Lytle telephoned to Police Chief John Bradshaw of Moorestown, and he notified Chief Frank A. Ward of Maple Shade. Chief Bradshaw on his motorcycle, gave chase to a trolley car which had left Moorestown a short time before. He overtook the car at Maple Shade and found Chief Ward there. Chief Bradshaw saw two men in the car whose descriptions fitted those of the robbers, and he boarded the car from the front. Chief Ward entered from the rear.

The negroes pulled revolvers, but Chief Ward knocked the weapon from one of the men. The other succeeded in putting the muzzle of his weapon against the stomach of Chief Bradshaw. The Chief says the negro tried to shoot him but the revolver failed to go off.

Chief Bradshaw managed to get the revolver from the negro and then beat him over the head with it until he had him subdued. Mrs. Lytle identified a watch found on one of the prisoners. Other victims of robberies in Moorestown will try to identify articles found on the prisoners.

BLOW SAFE; ESCAPE WITH $10,000 IN FURS

Undaunted by the ringing of a burglar alarm, thieves some time Thursday night opened a safe in the office of Cuttner Brothers & Abrahams, fur blenders and dyers, on the third floor of the loft building at 112 West Thirty-eighth Street. According to a member of the firm they stole a quantity of mink and sable skins. They then gathered up some of the more valuable pieces in the stock rooms. The loss was estimated at $10,000.

The building was formerly a dwelling and it has been made over for business purposes. The police believe that the burglars gained an entrance through a window from the rear fire escape. The robbery was not discovered until a member of the firm arrived yesterday morning.

The office is protected by a burglar alarm. The alarm bell, it was said, began to ring some time during the night. A policeman on post heard it ringing and, according to Mr. Cuttner, he investigated, tried the door, found it locked, and evidently concluded it had been accidentally set ringing. He thought the burglars were at work while the bell was sounding a warning.

James Biancolo, a safe expert of 215 Grand Street, who examined the safe yesterday afternoon, said that the burglars had drilled a hole just above the combination knob and exploded a charge in it. The force blew out the metal sheet lining of the door and blasted the cement from about the mechanism. The force was sufficient to bend the edge of the door slightly outward but not sufficient to blow it open. A crowbar inserted under the raised edge was the method employed to pry it open. Mr. Biancolo expressed the opinion that the safe blowers lacked experience and that it had taken them at least an hour to get at the contents of the safe.

When Viaco Stanzio returned from the theatre to his apartments at 2,477 Belmont Avenue, the Bronx, he found that during his absence burglars had entered the place through a rear window from the firescape and left with $500 in cash and $200 worth of jewelry. Detective Mencino of the Bronx Park station later arrested Joseph Villano, 627 East Eighty-seventh Street, and Rocco Bompillo, 2,475 Hughes Avenue, the Bronx, on suspicion of burglary.

GET MEDALS FOR SEA RESCUE

Two gold medals and eleven silver medals, were presented yesterday to the officers and sailors of the liner Giuseppe Verdi for bravery in rescuing the crew of 33 men from the sinking freighter Montello on January 17 in mid-Atlantic during a storm. The presentation was made on board the liner off Beach street, North River, by Colonel Alexander Guidomi, Naval Attache to the Italian Embassy at Washington. It was arranged by Comm. Carlo Barsotti, editor and publisher of the Italian newspaper Il-Progresso-Italo-Americano.

Captain G. Manganaro and the first officer, Captain G. Stagnano of the Giuseppe Verdi, and Captain F. Sturlese, who lost his ship, received gold medals. Petty Officer P. Patron and ten seamen of the Verdi, who formed the crew of the lifeboat which rescued the men from the Montello, received the silver medals. Sixty-five members of the Italian colony in New York were present at the ceremony.

CROSS 55 MILES OF BAD ICE.

Four Men With Sleigh Brave Lake Michigan to Save Two Lives.

STURGEON BAY, Wis., Jan. 26 (Associated Press).—A fifty-five-mile trip in horse-drawn sleighs over a dangerous expanse of ice sheeting Lake Michigan between Washington Island and Sturgeon Bay, in the hope of saving the lives of two young men in need of a surgical operation, was completed late last night by Captain George Moe of the Plum Island Coast Guard Station and three companions, including a physician, with the result that hope is held at a local hospital for the boys' recovery.

Charles Jensen and Oliver Bejarinson, both 19, were brought to the hospital here after a perilous fourteen-hour trip. The dash over the dangerous ice fields was marked by many narrow escapes from cracking ice. A change of horses was made necessary near the end of the trip.

The young men were suffering from the after effects of pneumonia and pleurisy, Captain Moe stated, and their serious condition made departure from the island necessary to save their lives.

In telling of the thrilling trip across the ice, Captain Moe said: "The ice on the bay has been behaving wildly for the last two weeks, being on a continual move, back and forth from the shore. When we were a short distance from shore, we were forced to chop large chunks of ice banked in our path. Several times we were forced to lift the bob sleigh, upon which the boys were being carried, up on one end and then set the rear end down to avoid bumps which we feared would be fatal."

MAY RECOVER FOR ALIENATION ONLY

Appellate Division Says Wife May Not Sue "Other Woman" for "Criminal Conversation."

UPSETS $20,000 VERDICT

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court decided yesterday that although a husband may sue another man for criminal conversation with his wife, a wife may not recover damages from another woman for similar conduct with her husband, but is limited to an action for alienating his affections.

The court accordingly set aside a verdict for $20,000 obtained by Mrs. Jennie M. Oppenheim against Mrs. Martha Kridel. Mrs. Oppenheim divorced Myron H. Oppenheim, realty operator, lawyer and one time owner of the Shadow Lawn property in New Jersey, occupied as the Summer White House one year by ex-President Wilson. The court dismissed the complaint. The suit was also based on allegations that Oppenheim's affections had been alienated by Mrs. Kridel, but this cause of action was dismissed by the trial Judge on testimony that the Oppenheims were living apart at the time.

"The right of a wife to maintain an action for the alienation of her husband's affections is no longer questioned in this State, but the right of a wife to sue her husband's paramour for criminal conversation has never here been recognized. So far as we have been able to discover, this is the first case in this State in which a verdict has been returned in favor of a plaintiff in an action by a wife against another woman for such cause only."

Justice Merrell dissented and voted to affirm the verdict. He said:

"There is little force, it seems to me, in the suggestion that because in the past the common law did not afford a wife the right to sue for criminal conversation with her husband, and because of the novelty of the action it cannot be maintained. The just right to invoke a remedy for a wrong committed upon her has always existed in the wife, although her peculiar married status denied her the right to pursue such remedy in court. Her disability has been removed by the Legislature. There is, to my mind, the very strongest reason for holding that the ancient common law prohibition against such an action by a wife has been removed.

"I am unable to distinguish between the wrongs to the husband in the one case and to the wife in the other. The question of the legitimacy of children is but one element in an action for criminal conversation. As an element of damage, the mental suffering, humiliation and disgrace which come to a virtuous woman from the knowledge that another has accomplished her husband's wrongdoing is of little less importance."

A New Women's Entrance To The Terminal Knickerbocker Beauty Salon

The separate entrance to our Beauty Salon in the Knickerbocker Building at 42nd Street and Broadway, has now been supplanted by an absolutely new and reserved stairway, independent of the entrance to the Men's Terminal Shop. This was made necessary by an increasing patronage, and by our desire to spare no expense in preserving and promoting the exclusive character of the Knickerbocker Salon. The entrance is now as exclusive as that to your own home.

Richest Rhode Island Breaks Its Own Record

To the Editor of The Providence News:

Sir—I thought you might like to know as regards our savings deposits in Savings Banks, State Banks and Trust Companies, which come under the direction of this department, as of December 30, 1922.

On December 31, 1921, the savings deposits were $207,809,364.32, showing an increase for the year of $13,985,784.69.

Of this latter amount a little over eight million dollars was the increase from June 30, 1922, to December 30, 1922, showing there has been an increase of about two million dollars more in the last six months of 1922 than in the first six months.

According to the last National census of Rhode Island, taken in 1920, this shows an average deposit of $866.96 for each person in the State, and is the largest amount of savings deposits in the history of our banking institutions, and the largest amount per capita we have ever had.

This does not include savings deposits in National Banks, which do not come under the direction of this department.

GEO. H. NEWHALL, Bank Commissioner.

The New York Times and The New York Market

In one year the people of Greater New York buy more food than would supply New Orleans for twenty years, St. Louis for ten years, Philadelphia for four years or Chicago for three years.

There are nearly 100,000 retail stores in New York City. In the 36,731 factories, more than a million employes turn out annually goods worth $3,358,060,000, a sum greater than the yearly revenue of the United States Government from income and profit taxes combined.

In this great market, The New York Times is read by the largest group of intelligent, discriminating and responsive persons ever assembled by a newspaper. Its circulation of 350,000 on week days and 550,000 on Sundays makes it an important factor in business and home life.

Outside of New York, The Times is read in 8,000 cities, towns and villages throughout the United States.
